Fifth Horseman of the Apocalypse Now Overruns Europe, Writes Ibanez

His Color Is Red and He Is the Symbol of Revolt That Must Be Met and Disarmed—It Is Silly to Pretend to Ignore Him.

By V. BLASCO IBANEZ

TO despise the enemy is a dangerous error to make We ought either to have an understanding with him or we ought to attack him The latter is often an indirect means of coming to an understanding, when the forces on both sides throw themselves into the conflict To despise the enemy implies forgetting him, and meanwhile the enemy, far from forgetting us, while we are not thinking of defense, is free to plot against us. And this alone presupposes for him the almost inevitable certainty of victory.

And this is all apropos of the allies and of Soviet Russia.

A little while ago the allies agreed to forget revolutionary Russia; to create a vacuum around it, and to put an end to its existence. It was a childish mistake, as if it were possible to put an end to the existence of a people simply because to do so suits our convenience!

Allied Blunders in Peace.

It is impossible not to see that the allies, admirable as were their tactics during the war, have blundered continually since the coming of peace, and the arrival of diplomacy on the scene. Unity of viewpoint and solidarity of interests no longer exist among them. England does as she chooses, considers European affairs from the point of view of her own needs and colonial interests, and carries in tow the other allies, even though by so doing she is destroying them. Of all this France knows something.

From the beginning of the peace parleys, the European Powers established the principle that the representatives of revolutionary Russia should not be admitted nor given a hearing. For a brief moment the allies considered assembling these representatives in a special session to take place on the Island of Prinkipo, in the Sea of Marmora, the scene of so many of the tragedies and crimes of the Byzantine Emperors. But almost immediately the managers of Europe gave up this attempt in view of the protests of many of their fellow managers and the outcry of a great part of so-called "Public Opinion." Europe was not to recognize, so they decreed, anything proceeding from the Bolshevists. The Russia of the Soviets did not exist! Thus decreed the rest of Europe; turning its back on Russia in order to devote itself to discussing the vital question as to whether some wretched little town on the Adriatic, or some Balkan valley containing eight square miles of territory, ought to be given to this nation or that one, for the sake of avoiding war.

Soviet Russia's Growth.

And meanwhile revolutionary Russia, which was to be isolated from the world, grew and grew in direct ratio to this contempt which ended by converting former Russian imperialists into reds.

When Lenine and his associates in government were beginners in revolution, facing powerful enemies, and were without the prestige of victory, the allies did not care to treat with the Soviet commissars.

Now, disdainful Europe, seeing them advance toward the West, like one of those Asiatic invasions which terrified the world in the Middle Ages, must seek them out, discarding its earlier arrogance to propose an interview in which the representatives of Russian Bolshevism may express their ideas and state their plans.

Europe, having laid aside its contemptuous attitude, recognizes the fact that Russia exists; this in itself constituting a first, though not decisive, victory for the Russians.

Little Faith in Prophesies.

I have little faith in the prophecies of other people, and I feel little inclined to utter prophecies on my own account, but since peace came to the earth, an incomplete peace, a peace to no one's taste, which has left many urgent problems to be solved, I, like many other men, say to myself:

"The cycle of these events is not yet complete. Civilization cannot continue under the old terms; a new horizon is closing about us."

Further, the history of Europe during many centuries, shows us that wars never end at the moment when peace is declared.

After this peace, although the weapons of the great nations are at rest, and men no longer kill, the contest of wills continues, and groups of human beings change their organisms as a good or bad consequence of the war. Great progress or a fatal retrogression has always occurred in Europe after wars between its various nations.

The recent war was the most enormous known to history. The New World itself had to send an armada of heroes to save the Old World. It is absurd to believe that the greatest of all wars is not to affect the future of humanity, at least as much as the infinitely less important conflicts of other ages.

Aftermath of War.

But what might happen in the world did not show clearly until quite recently. A mist of clouds hung over Europe like the dust which rises above the battle field and lingers long after the battle is over. Those who had directed it knew less about what was going to occur than the merest spectator. They were blinded by the dust of battle. The fatigue that followed victory did not allow them to think.

The people of Europe, until recently, were like the audience at an opera at the moment when the gauze curtain descends and conceals the stage and the house waits in the darkness, listening to the hammer blows that are fastening in place a new setting, conscious of the movements of an invisible chorus being grouped by the concert masters. But no one knows what will come to view, when the painted clouds disappear, and the light is turned on. We have all been in the same state of ignorance up to the present.

Were we about to behold, when our eyes could see clearly, the same spectacle which the world offered before 1914? Was the stage setting to be different, only in its general lines, and was it to be made of the same materials as before? Would it be entirely new in form and composition, as so many sociologists, and so many generous dreamers have desired, in the course of the centuries?

The Fifth Horseman.

No one could answer these questions. There were no indications clear enough to give us the certainties necessary for discerning the future. The only thing that was certain was that on the other side of the wall of shadows there breathed something huge and monstrous, which had just been born, something unknown which moved in mystery with the dull rumble of a menacing storm.

And this unknown force which was preparing to fall upon human beings, changing its shape, like a hurricane which puts into disarray the wheat stalks in the fields, was called by some of us "the fifth horseman of the Apocalypse."

War and Death, Hunger and Pestilence, the four terrible horsemen seen by the sacred poet who, in the solitude of Patmos, believed that he had discerned the future of mankind, have for five years been riding over the land, crushing under the feet of their livid horses, a road made of millions upon millions of corpses. The dead are now buried; the four horsemen have fled. But now enters upon the world scene the fifth horseman! It is social revolution; it is the red horseman.

Manner of Meeting.

To wish not to see him is to make a mistake as great as that of the European diplomats when they planned to ignore the existence of Soviet Russia. If we turn our backs upon it we shall be caught up by the smoking nostrils of his charger; the horseman will pursue us in our flight with the assurance of one who is going to conquer. We shall end by falling under the iron-shod hoofs which will destroy us.

The Old World must not be terrified by the new arrival. It should meet him face to face and say to him:

"Stop and let us talk, red horseman. What do you want? And what new thing do you bring the earth? If your words are reasonable I will listen to them. If you represent something that is of advantage to human beings, something which previous generations were unable to see, I will accept it. I know that he who brings to the world a new idea is like the laborer who harvests a few handfuls of wheat from heaps of useless straw. Together we shall separate the kernels and throw to the wind the useless chaff of exaggeration, of absurd Utopias, of dream illusions, which may be generous, but which are worth nothing if they cannot be realized. If you mean only destruction, if you are a negative force, aspiring only to replace eternal human grief with the immobility of nothingness, then prepare to fight. There is no room in the world for both you and me. One of us must perish that the other may rule without hindrance."

Red Horseman a Reality.

Why cannot the same tactics be used in international life? To all the nations in the world which are at present organized under the capitalist system, Soviet Russia's possibilities of action are important. The entire world ought to find it to

League of Nations Is a Going Concern, Its Journal Shows

Operatiug Satisfactorily Though United States Is Not Sitting In Council Has Decided Numerous Questions Submitted to It and Begun Activities Provided for in Treaty of Versailles and Covenant.

Former Professor of Law at University of Missouri, Now on Staff of Secretary-General, Forwards Document Telling of Activities.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.

THE League of Nations is a going concern. Both the Permanent Secretariat and the Council of the League have been in full operation for several months; the council has decided numerous questions submitted to it, and has taken steps toward the creation of some of the organizations provided for in the covenant of the league and the Treaty of Versailles.

Evidence of the league's activity along many lines is contained in its "Official Journal," a copy of which has been received by the Post-Dispatch correspondent from Dr. Manley O. Hudson, one of the staff of Sir Eric Drummond, the secretary-general of the league. Dr. Hudson is a former resident of Montgomery, Mo., and until recently was a professor of law at the University of Missouri. He has been attached to the league's secretariat since its foundation.

The Journal details the proceedings of the fifth session of the Council of the League, held at Rome May 14 to 19. Representing the eight member nations comprising the council, the following were present: M. T. Tittoni (Italy), M. Destree (Belgium), M. Gastao da Cunha (Brazil), Mr. A. J. Balfour (the British Empire), M. Leon Bourgeois (France), M. Caromilas (Greece), M. M. K. Matsui (Japan) and M. Quinones de Leon (Spain). Sir Eric Drummond attended as secretary-general.

M. Tittoni, president of the council, in welcoming the members to Rome, said that the council "regarded itself as a tribunal above the interests of individual Governments and therefore found it easy to deal unanimously with the subjects which they had to discuss." Several reports and resolutions were then presented to the council and adopted unanimously.

Consider Traffic in Women and Children

One of these was on "Traffic in Women and Children," by the Brazilian representative, M. da Cunha. A problem before the council, he said, was that of devising the best means of aiding in the suppression of the so-called white-slave traffic. This traffic, M. da Cunha reported, seemed less general than before the war, but he thought this seeming decline might be only because the persons engaged in the traffic were operating more secretly. In any case, he said, the vigilance of the different countries should be redoubled and international measures should be drawn up to fight any renewed outbreak of the evil. He approved a proposal of the secretary-general that a special member of the secretariat be appointed to study the white slave problem.

Problems growing out of the holding of a plebiscite in Eupen and Malmedy, to determine whether those territories should pass under German or Belgian sovereignty, were the subject of a report to the council by the Japanese representative, M. M. K. Matsui.

Mr. Balfour, the British representative, presented a report on disease in Central Europe and recommended that the League of Red Cross Societies be asked to "proceed with the great work which they alone, perhaps, are able to carry out." While the league itself could not provide the necessary relief materials for dealing with the spread of typhus and other infectious diseases, Mr. Balfour said the league could give assurance to the Red Cross that the supplies would be forthcoming. He referred to a recent survey of available stores of food, clothing, transport and medical supplies in Poland and Eastern Europe, and said the conclusion had been reached that the stores were adequate provided they were properly used, until the next harvest. These supplies, he said, were partly due to credits supplied by the British and American Governments.

Prisoners of War Live Under Terrible Conditions

Sir Eric Drummond told of having sent invitations to 12 famous jurists (among them Elihu Root) to form a committee charged with drawing up plans for a Permanent Court of International Justice.

M. Tittoni of Italy told the council there were still many hundreds of thousands of prisoners of war in Russia, Siberia, Germany and elsewhere, living under terrible conditions. The International Committee of the Red Cross, he said, had been able to repatriate a small number of prisoners from Vladivostok, but the needs were so overwhelming that the council of the league considered it its duty to take up the problem. M. Tittoni said the famous Norwegian explorer, Nansen, had been detailed by the council to investigate the situation and had already set to work. An early report was hoped for, so that the league could take action to save the prisoners from spending another winter in exile.

Opening the public session of the council on May 19, M. Tittoni dwelt on the necessity for international action and international guarantees for the preservation of peace. He said there was the further necessity of practical co-operation among the nations of the world in dealing with the problems with which they were immediately confronted. It was essential, he said, for the League of Nations to obtain the moral support of public opinion; and to obtain this support the league must show that it was independent and impartial, and not a mere instrument of Governments. He referred to the required registration of treaties, which was intended to put an end to secret diplomacy, and stressed the importance of the International Labor Organization and the program of social reform which it had undertaken.

Greek Prepares Meeting of League Assembly

M. Coromilas of Greece recalled that 37 countries and dominions had become members of the League of Nations and said the time had come for the summoning of a meeting of the assembly of the league to deal with several questions of the greatest importance, such as the Permanent Court of International Justice, the Permanent Health Organization and the General Conference on Communications and Transit. The council, he said, had taken the necessary preliminary measures to enable the assembly to deal with these questions usefully. He thought the most suitable date would be the first fortnight in November, and presented the draft of a telegram to President Wilson—who is authorized by the covenant to convene the first meeting of the assembly—asking whether he would be prepared to call it for that date. The telegram expressed the unanimous hope of the council that Brussels be chosen as the meeting place.

The Belgian representative, M. Destree, reported that steps had been taken to set up an International Institute of Statistics. M. da Cunha of Brazil followed with a report of typhus in Poland.

"The fact that the league, although in its infancy," said M. da Cunha, "is able to interest itself actively in the prevention of disease and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world, is surely a good omen. This is indeed a sphere of action embracing all humanity. Here it may exercise its powers for the good of the peoples without raising any delicate international question. If our efforts are crowned with success, the League of Nations will have done incalculable good, not only in combating suffering, but in developing among the nations a spirit of mutual understanding and co-operation.

"Humanity cannot hold aloof from a country which, stricken with this disease (typhus), has not the resources at its disposal for checking it. If an epidemic breaks out in any region, laying hold on its inhabitants, it threatens all surrounding countries which have commercial or other relations with the infected areas. The civilized countries of the present day cannot, in their own interest, afford to dissociate themselves from the fate of the region which forms the center of infection."

Ask for $10,000,000 for Relief Work in Poland

The council adopted a resolution requesting the nations of the world to contribute toward a fund of $10,000,000, which, it was estimated, was the minimum amount required to deal with the situation in Poland.

M. Bourgeois of France, in a report accepted by the council, declared the council had no more important duty than to set about the execution of Article 2 of the league covenant, under which the members "recognized that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations." He recommended that the council proceed to organize the permanent commission which the covenant provides shall deal with the question of armaments.

"No action of the league could be of greater value for the maintenance of peace," said M. Bourgeois. "No decision of the council in other matters could be really effective if it did not carry out these duties, with the execution of which it has been expressly entrusted. It is this question, above all others, which interests public opinion. To postpone the discussion of so important a problem would be to disappoint the most confident hopes of the peoples of the world.

"We are fully aware of the difficulties with which this commission will be faced from the outset. It will be difficult to draw up a practical scheme and to determine the military situation of the world as long as the conditions of the treaty of peace, regarding the disarmament of the Central Empires, have not been fulfilled. The troubled condition of Eastern Europe makes the situation still more obscure.

Must Prepare to Solve Disarmanent Problem

"Our present duty, however, is not to take final decisions, but to prepare the work and outline the future policy of the council. The technical work of the permanent commission should begin at once in order to enable the council to take the final decision when part of the stipulations of the treaty of peace have been carried out and when the conditions of Europe will be such as to make it possible to discover a solution of the problems.

The council adopted a resolution providing for the establishment of the commission, to be known as the Permanent Advisory Commission for Military, Naval and Air Questions and to consist of one military representative, one naval representative and one air representative from each of the nations holding membership in the council. The commission was instructed to begin at once its study of problems involved in the reduction of armaments and to draw up regulations in regard to the military forces of the several states which had applied for admission to the league—the Esthonian Republic, the Republic of Georgia, Iceland, Luxemburg, the Republic of San Marino and the Ukrainian Republic.

Balfour proposed, and the council approved, that the provisional seat of the secretariat be continued at London, the permanent seat to be decided by the council after the assembly has had the opportunity of discussion. The council approved the provisional appointments to the secretariat made by the secretary-general, adopting Balfour's suggestion that the term of service be five years.

"It is most desirable," said Balfour, "that at the end of the quinquennial period a certain infusion of new blood should be secured. This will obviate any danger of the staff of the League of Nations becoming a separate bureaucratic caste. It will also give room for the citizens of nations not at present represented on the staff, to obtain in their turn the intimate knowledge of the working of the league which would be invaluable not only to the league as a whole but to the nations which compose it."

The secretary-general, said Balfour, had made his appointments to the staff with due regard to the great importance of selecting officials from various nations.

Organization Expenses of League About $650,000

"Evidently," he said, "no one nation or group of nations ought to have a monopoly in providing the material for this international institution. I emphasize the word 'international' because the members of the secretariat once appointed are no longer servants of the country of which they are citizens, but become for the time being the servants only of the League of Nations. Their duties are not national but international."

The organization expenses of the league, for the period up to March 21, were reported by the Spanish representative, M. de Leon, to have been approximately $650,000. This sum included both the direct expenses of the secretariat and the indirect expenses, or those incurred by the International Labor Organization and other bodies depending on the league for the payment of their expenses. For the three months from April 1 it was estimated the expenses, direct and indirect, would be about $600,000.

The council directed the secretary-general to gather information on the area, population and resources of the states members of the league, so that the expenses might be equitably apportioned among them. Payment, it was decided, should be made in gold francs or their equivalent.

A method, outlined by the secretary-general for the registration of treaties in accordance with the terms of the covenant, was approved by the council.

"It is hardly necessary," said Sir Eric Drummond in his memorandum on this subject, "to dwell on the importance of an arrangement whereby publicity of treaties and other international engagements—and, as a preliminary thereto, their registration—will be secured.

"Publicity has for a long time been considered as a source of moral strength in the administration of national law. It should equally strengthen the laws and engagements which exist between nations. It will promote public control. It will awaken public interest. It will remove causes for distrust and conflict. Publicity alone will enable the League of Nations to extend a moral sanction to the contractual obligations of its members. It will, moreover, contribute to the formation of a clear and indisputable system of international law."

Two Noted Irishmen Explain the Sinn Fein Issue and Tell How Both Sides Err in Present Crisis

Sir Horace Plunkett Says Government Plays Into Enemy's Hands by Favoring Ulster—P. W. Wilson Thinks Premier Should Talk With De Valera.

Because of the hunger strike of Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney of Cork, American interest in the Irish crisis probably today is at its most acute stage. The prevailing opinion in this country is that Great Britain must settle the row with Ireland at all hazards in order to retain the good opinion of the world. There are some complexiities to the Irish question that make it difficult to understand in all its aspects, but the Post-Dispatch has obtained from two leading Irishmen the subjoined signed statements that will aid the reader in reaching a precise understanding of the tremendous difficulties in the way of settlement. Sir Horace Plunkett is one of the most eminent of Irish statesmen, having presided over the conference of Irishmen, held under the auspices of the British Government in an endeavor to determine just what could be done to satisfy all parties. The conference failed. Sir Horace is a Home Ruler He gave his statement to Arno Dosch-Fleurot, the Post-Dispatch correspondent who has been investigating conditions in Ireland. Patrick Whitewell Wilson is the Parliamentary writer for the London Daily News. Both believe that a settlement is possible on a basis of moderate opnion, provided all sides will forget the past.

By SIR HORACE PLUNKETT.

THE latest developments of the Irish situation, which are being closely watched by representatives from the American press, are interesting, I might almost say sensational, in a variety of ways. The chief conclusion I hope to see drawn from them is that Ulster, and Ulster alone, now blocks the road to an Irish settlement. I have often emphasized the importance of American opinion as a factor in the solution of the Irish problem and have regretted that Americans paid so little heed to the Ulster difficulty To an examination, therefore, of this aspect of the immediate situation I will confine the present statement.

What Ulster Means.

It is necessary for Americans to know that the term Ulster in this connection does not mean the province of that name. Out of its nine counties three are predominantly Nationalist and in the Government of Ireland bill now going through Parliament—but which I regard as practically dead—are placed in the southern of the two Irelands into which this worst of all Home Rule bills proposes to divide our country. Even in the six counties which the bill proposes to christen "Northern Ireland," two, Tyrone and Fermanagh, are governed by Nationalist majorities, and, if the bill were to pass, their forcible inclusion in Sir Edward Carson's area would of itself prevent its ever being any settlement at all.

Assuming that every Protestant in the six counties is a follower of Sir Edward Carson, they aggregate considerably less than one-fifth of the total population of Ireland. It is this minority which stands in the way of an Irish setlement by refusing to recognize not the Irish Republic, but the Irish nation. Its spokesmen in the British Parliament, which is supposed to represent some 45,000,000 of people, exercises an influence without parallel in the history of democratic institutions. Never did such a tail wag such a dog.

Carson's Course.

The explanation of this anomaly is recent and simple. When in 1910 John Redmond demanded the satisfaction of Ireland's political aspirations, he commanded enough votes in the House of Commons to wreck Mr. Asquith's Government by transferring his support to the Unionist opposition. But whatever the House of Commons might do, the House of Lords could undo, and therefore the only way by which Asquith could deliver the goods was by abolishing the veto of the upper chamber. Against this procedure Sir Edward Carson threatened to drill and arm a formidable body of Ulster Protestants.

He had the active support of the present leader of the House of Commons and the Lord Chancellor of England, who presides over the House of Lords. He had given pledges to his Ulster followers, and he has since exacted similar pledges not only from leading politicians who would be classed as reactionary in America, but also from Mr. Lloyd-George and other so-called radicals of pre-war days.

Of course, there were large issues at stake behind these personal commitments which have paralyzed the present Government in their Irish policy and compelled them to make themselves responsible for an Irish situation which has done infinite harm to the fair name of England as the champion of liberty. It is the industrial and commercial interests in the northeast corner of Ireland that dictate the Irish policy to Sir Edward Carson, who in turn dictates it to the Government. These people fear that the immense businesses they have built up under the laws and administration of a Parliament largely controlled by men with similar economic interests

By P. W. WILSON.

PLAIN people everywhere today are asking the plain question why—here and now—this Irish question should not be settled. And plain people are entitled to a plain answer, both from Ireland and from England. Politicians are few, plain people are many, and the many as well as the few have rights; and sooner or later those rights will have to be respected, even by extremists on both sides.

There are two ways and only two in which Mr. Lloyd George can settle with Ireland. First, he can meet Sinn Fein in conference and come to an agreed understanding. Secondly, he can pass some measure over the head of Sinn Fein. At present he is doing neither. There is no conference and there is no legislation—except coercion. That is the deadlock.

Why is there no conference? The reason is, again, simple. Sinn Fein says that the Irish Republican leaders must only enter such conference as plenipotentiaries from an independent state—in other words, that British sovereignty must have ceased. The purpose of the conference would be merely to sign a treaty with England as between equals and so terminate "the war."

The Prime Minister, on his side, says that there can be no conference except on three preliminary conditions—namely, first, recognition of British sovereignty; secondly, special treatment of six counties in Ulster; and, thirdly, naval and military safeguards. Unless, therefore, Mr. De Valera gives up his presidency, or Mr. Lloyd George gives up the King's sovereignty over Ireland, the parties cannot meet. This is the situation, and in a sane world it is intolerable. It is because the parties disagree that they ought to confer. If they did agree, a conference would not be required.

Badly Handled.

I am one who thinks that even labor in Britain supports, however unwillingly, Mr. Lloyd George's three conditions. With those conditions I do not quarrel. But I still think that Mr. Lloyd George should handle the question of conference differently. Let us suppose, for the sake of argument, that Sinn Fein cannot hope for an independent Irish Republic, as demanded. Let us suppose that the ultimate solution is to be Dominion Home Rule. Even on that assumption it is unreasonable to ask the Sinn Feiners to surrender their chief bargaining point before the bargain is even discussed. Suppose that the surrender were made and a conference called and that on a previous occasion Sir Edward Carson and the Tories made trouble at a later stage, where would Mr. De Valera be? He would be as completely ruined as was Mr. John Redmond when the late conference broke down. Mr. De Valera must enter the conference, fully equipped or not at all, and I cannot but believe that Mr. Lloyd George is shrewd enough to know this better than anybody can tell him.

The Prime Minister should meet Mr. De Valera and his colleagues just as he meets the Soviet delegates. In that case, as in the Irish case, the conversations do not mean a recognition of the "Government," authorizing the delegation. Quite the contrary. Moreover, it is surely clear that the Sinn Fein leaders cannot act without their Dail Eirrean. You may ignore Sinn Fein and suppress it, or you may bargain with Sinn Fein—one or the other—but you cannot logically talk about desiring to bargain with Sinn Fein as Mr. Lloyd George appears to do, unless you are ready to allow Sinn Fein, as a movement, to discuss and ratify the bargain.

A Vague Sovereignty.

That is what needs saying to Mr. Lloyd George. But public opinion should also deal with Sinn Fein.

Price to Farmer and Consumer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As a would-be farmer, I sold a lot of hogs at the market price, 16 cents. I am living in St. Louis and am paying 65 cents for breakfast bacon, 60 cents for hams and 90 cents for pork tenderloins. I would like to know who is getting the difference between my selling price and the price I am paying to the grocer? Corn today is selling for $1.60 per bushel, which will, when fed to hogs, add three pounds of flesh that at 16 cents would yield me 48 cents. How can a farmer feed corn and sell at these prices? I want to know who the profiteering person is? Mark my word, the farmer will not raise any hogs at these prices. Why high cost of living?

Please keep on exposing those dishonest, profiteering, coal operators who are robbing the consumer in the prices they charge for coal.

By exposing them you may bring relief to coal users. Your paper is the only one to take part of the little fellow. All the other papers keep silent upon this subject.

Metric System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

March 3 of this year the Board of Aldermen of the city of Chicago, Ill., referred to its Committee on Judiciary a resolution urging that the United States and the British commonwealths adopt the metric system of weights and measures as the exclusive legal standard.

The Committee on Judiciary reported the resolution out favorably and, something more than a month ago the resolution was adopted by the Board of Aldermen by a vote of 66 in favor and none opposed.

Morris Eller, Chicago's Inspector of Weights and Measures, supported this resolution in a concise recommendation that is a masterpiece of lucid logic.

This Board of Aldermen, so typical of the spirit that has made Chicago Chicago—the invincible spirit of potential bigness that reaches down to the very bed-plates of the mighty city—explained its vote by this expression: "The city of Chicago is vitally interested in speedy adoption of the simple, world-wide, uniform standard of weights and measures."

Chicago had but to sense present world conditions that shriek for American sustenance and then look along her waterways to ocean and know the very things to do.

Most regrettably, our beloved St. Louis is different. Our press gives precedence to the quibblings of Dale and other sophists whose every word reveals misconception of what the metric system is—mistaking a lot of foreign terms quoted from the tongues of non-English-speaking nations that use the metric system for the system; and, thereupon, our trade bodies doubt and fear to do what some of the most backward nations have done readily and to their immeasurable trade advantage. We train our young men in Spanish and Portuguese, give banquets, cite to sensitive Latins the benevolences of the Monroe Doctrine, struggle to clear ample waterway to the Gulf of Mexico and do every other thing thinkable to gain Spanish American market, except adopt the most rational, understandable, inexpensive, workable and world acceptable system of weights and measures, without which we can never enter South and Central American (or any other than some British) markets except in the guise of ridiculously obstinate peddlers who are only to be occasionally dealt with when necessity may present us as a last, undesirable recourse.

Why may not St. Louis, like Chicago, see clearly enough to help to the United States that metrologic reform that must, and will, be here? Why lag back in ignorance and groundless fear rather than take leadership of the nation in its advance to beneficent world dominance?

The Pure Olive Oil Fraud.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Pure olive oil is no better than peanut or cottonseed oil as far as health building is concerned, is much more expensive and in America very difficult to obtain. The common olive oil of commerce in America is cottonseed or peanut oil colored and flavored, and is injurious to the extent of the coloring, flavoring and preservatives. Animal fats are positively injurious to health and should never be used in either raw or cooked foods. The vegetable fats or oil foods hold the 15 body chemicals or salts, if at all present in the modern white bread, rice, candy dietary, which operate the brain and nervous organisms; while to a lesser degree they hold the chemicals for all the other parts of the body.

Oil compounds compose about one-fifth the total bulk of brain and nervous substance in tissue. Hence the exceeding importance of using sufficient vegetable fat of the right kind with each meal, if one wishes brain and nerves in prime condition and operating to their highest capacities. Real butter and cream are vitamine carriers, just like unheated vegetables, fruit and rock salt, and beyond this of no efficiency value. I write this to save many a dollar for the poor people. It is time to curb the preserved food grocer and turn to more economical and healthful living. There is more health in the feed store than in the drug store.

THE FUND INVESTIGATION.

The Senate committee investigating Gov. Cox's charge that the Republican campaign management was raising an enormous fund, estimated at $15,000,000, with which to "buy the presidency," has adjourned till Sept. 22, when hearings will be resumed in some Eastern city. Since Aug. 30, when Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee appeared at Chicago to testify to the charges preferred by Mr. Cox in his Pittsburg speech, the investigating body has examined a great many witnesses, but the facts adduced thus far have not established the Democratic candidate's allegations.

An impartial survey of the testimony leaves the average citizen badly confused and disappointed in both sides. Neither party to the controversy has acquitted itself with grace or dignity. Criticism may be extended, also, to include the members of the senatorial committee, sitting, presumably as a court, but, in fact, frequently acting as counsel for the witnesses of their respective party affiliations. Instances of such unseemly deportment have been numerous, Republicans and Democrats alike being guilty.

A review of indecorum might well begin with the Pittsburg speech of Gov. Cox, proceed to Chairman Hays, who, as a witness, seemed unacquainted with the word mistake, but from whose lips the charge of falsehood fell glibly, and continue uninterruptedly on with a roll call, sounding the name of almost every figure of consequence that has appeared.

The entire episode would have been ugly enough under the most considerate auspices, but the issue might have been fought out on a level of gravity, with a sincere purpose on both sides, not to besmirch each other, but to get at the truth. That has not been done. The dishonors, we should say, are easy.

It had been far more in keeping with the eminence of his position had Mr. Cox, in his Pittsburg speech, submitted his documentary evidence, not as proof of a conspiracy to buy the presidency, but as a strong presumption that the raising of a huge fund was in contemplation and plans to that end were being perfected and in places were being executed. Such a claim, solemnly advanced on the strength of the "cities list," showing a total of $8,145,000 to be secured in 51 cities, and on the sordid exhortation of "Boys, get the money," as officially bulletined in the house organ of Treasurer Upham's headquarters, could properly have been made. In our opinion, too, a claim so presented, though it might not be followed by the instantaneous reaction which the sensational method evoked, would have made a far stronger impression upon the public mind. But Mr. Cox declared the presumption to be the fact, and Chairman Hays, as a witness, replied in much the same vein. Every charge made by Mr. Cox was false, and "libelous in purpose," and, as if to demonstrate his talent for vitriolic accusation, Mr. Hays enumerated a set of tu quoques in which the Democrats were described as perverting the functions of government, drawing drafts upon bankers in whose banks Government funds were deposited and levying upon Government employes.

But the unfortunate manners of the affair aside, the facts so far developed as to the Republican campaign management's finances still leave the burden of proof upon Mr. Cox, though, of course, no final judgment can be entered at this time. What we do know, from the testimony of Mr. Hays, is that the maximum campaign expenditures contemplated is, say, $5,000,000. It is stated, and the books produced by Treasurer Upham support the statement, that the preconvention fund, collected between Dec. 1, 1918, and June 12, 1920, from 18,515 contributors, was $1,835,353.70. Since the convention the collections slightly exceed $1,000,000, the contributors numbering 12,389, the average contribution being $82.11. The campaign budget, as presented by Mr. Hays, was slightly more than $3,000,000, but the senatorial and congressional funds, and the possibility of unforeseen expenses, which was frankly acknowledged, could easily approximate the maximum figure. And such figure, in view of the present scale of costs and the larger electorate, by reason of the suffrage extension, does not seem excessive, especially when compared with the Democratic expenditures of four years ago, which, according to Homer Cummings, was $2,300,000.

But the testimony does not end at that point. The appearance before the committee of E. H. Moore of Youngstown, O., Mr. Cox's preconvention manager, abruptly changed the drift and tenor of the inquiry. Mr. Moore candidly expressed his dissatisfaction with the attitude of the investigating committee, related, in rather intimate detail, the frenzied collection activities in a number of Ohio cities, ventured the opinion that a fund program was being carried out without the knowledge of Treasurer Upham, and gave the names of a number of witnesses that should be examined. In consequence of Mr. Moore's instructions, the public has listened with some amazement to the testimony of Dudley Blossom of Cleveland that the quota of that city was $400,000, the amount named in Mr. Cox's "cities list"—the list which Mr. Hays had called "false" and Mr. Upham described as "phoney." From Blossom it was also learned that a paid worker of the Republican National Committee had appeared in Cleveland to direct the work. Moreover, the work had been organized along the lines prescribed in "Form 101," the plan devised by Harry M. Blair, first assistant treasurer to Upham, but which Mr. Upham declared had been vetoed. Other details of significance were brought out from witnesses suggested by Mr. Moore. The Augusta (Ga.) total, specified in Mr. Cox's "cities list" at $25,000, was substantially verified. And the action of Mr. McNider, State chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of Iowa, in arbitrarily raising the fund in that State from $75,000, as specified in Treasurer Upham's "states list," to $200,000, gives ground for unfavorable surmise. So, in Missouri. The national committee's quota for this State is $90,000, but Mr. Dickey declared there was no limit as to State and county funds.

The most confirmatory evidence, however, as to reliability of the famous "cities list" came from Harry M. Blair, who, under the questioning of Senator Reed, admitted that plans had been completed for intensive drives in 54 cities, and that Mr. Cox's list of 51 cities was an underestimate, though in this question and answer the amounts assessed against the cities were not included. Mr. Blair, it developed, took charge of the Republican National Committee's collections in November, 1919. He has a large staff of high-salaried subordinates, "the most extravagant payroll any national committee ever had." Blair also told that men were employed on the Chautauqua circuit to preach Republican propaganda. He explained, too, that he had nothing to do with collections in seven Eastern states; that that territory was under the direction of Col. William Boyce Thompson, chairman of the Republican Ways and Means Committee, with headquarters in New York, and one of the witnesses designated by Mr. Moore as able to illuminate the investigators as to the campaign finances.

So, if proof be wanting, it is a reasonable presumption, we believe, from the plans as explained and the activities acknowledged, that funds far in excess of the estimates or anticipations of Mr. Hays and Mr. Upham might have poured in on the Republican exchequer, especially if the tide of sentiment seemed to be running against them in the latter days of the contest.

In any event, the necessity for further inquiry seems apparent, not as a vindication of Mr. Cox, or Mr. Hays, or anyone else, but in the interest of an honest vote. The investigation cannot be regarded as complete until Col. Thompson has testified.

Meanwhile, the great issue before the American people has been subordinated. Mr. Cox has been expending his energy in an engagement which should have been left to his campaign managers. He has identified his candidacy, temporarily at least, with an alleged political scandal, while the country was looking to him to assume the leadership of the supreme cause of world peace.

BANKS AND WATERWAYS.

The plea in the Sunday Post-Dispatch by Gen. Frank T. Hines for an intelligent and fair appraisal of waterways as a factor in the problem of national transportation was a convincing presentment from the standpoint of the public interest.

Just now, after a heavy increase in rail charges, the effect of transportation costs on living costs is much in public thought. The General, at present on the retired list of the army and head of an ocean steamship company, argues that waste due to lack of transportation also has an important influence on living costs.

Throughout the West no negligible fraction of a huge apple crop is rotting on the ground under the trees, the General says. In Maryland, farmers are plowing up tomato fields, red with their ripening fruit. Labor scarcity in harvesting these crops is one difficulty, but who can doubt that if transport from the farm to the shipping point were easy over good roads and if railroad cars were plentiful rather than scarce and service prompt, much of this food destined for waste would find its way to market? And if it found its way to market, would it not result in a cheapening of prices?

That the waterways are of direct benefit only to territory which they serve is one of the fallacies to be combated along with biased opinion, hostility and inertia. An intensive use of waterways relieves strain on the personnel of the railroads, on rolling stock, on the general capacity to handle traffic. A barge line on a waterway in Alabama might make needed cars available for the apple growers of the West. Mississippi River traffic, developed to the point to which it ought to be developed, might make cars available for the distant Maryland tomato raisers.

The lack of private initiative that left the Mississippi idle until Government enterprise and Government money reclaimed it to serve the needs of war has not been without comment of critical nature. But, as we know that no attempt other than the Government's ever was made to adapt river service to modern traffic needs, so having a completer knowledge now than formerly of the handicaps, we may believe that none other ever would have been made. The difficulties were too many.

Among many adverse conditions, Gen. Hines speaks of one that may be new to some, the attitude of the financial world. He says that the banks, which lend money for all sorts of more or less hazardous ventures, including stock speculation, have a distrust of floating property. A ship company with millions in vessels could not, he declares, borrow half a million for a new steamer in New York, a lack of confidence that extends to river craft.

The barge line will soon be carrying 12,000 tons on each Mississippi voyage—as much as 200 freight cars of the largest capacity can carry. The experiment should continue until the most skeptical is convinced, but, of course, the time will come when responsibility for the barge line's continuance must be intrusted to private hands. That is a time when a sound, rational policy on the part of the banks toward river development will be indispensable. They should deal generously with those who in the meantime plan to supplement Government river facilities with private facilities.

In behalf of the Republican "money diggers" in Missouri it must be said that they have played no favorites. Contributions from Democrats have been as welcome as contributions from Republicans, and donations from Prohibitionists would have been acceptable, too, it is supposed, if those chaps ever handed out anything stronger than water.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
by Clark McAdams

"THERE SHALL BE NO MORE SEA."

BITTERLY beautiful, uncaring sea;
You are the chilling apathy of man,
Dumbness of kindness, impotence of love,
Kisses unkissed, and fond embraces shunned,
Kind words unsaid, and pardons never given,
You are the mask and wornout veil of God,
And you the tear-drops of eternal doom.

O cruel, death-fanged, tireless weight of woe,
You are the sins of angels and of man,
Constantly gathered, never to be shrived,
All hates, all errors, all inharmonies,
All terrors, all deceits and treasons vile,
And curses killing victims unawares.

But sea, old sea, sad gulf of man's despair,
Sea of division, ignorance and hate,
The sun of knowledge yet shall make you fair,
And love shall light your waters desolate,
For man now sees, who hitherto was blind,
And man now hopes, who has not hoped before,
He loves where he has never loved of yore,
To all his fellows learning to be kind.

The inquiry into campaign funds has put the Republicans in the worst hole they have been in since Col. Roosevelt went to the mat with the Republican bosses. They set out to overwhelm the Democrats with money, something they have been accustomed to doing for 30 years. Gov. Cox caught them at it when the country had been interested in campaign funds by the primary scandal in which both Lowden and Wood were disqualified by revelations before a Senate committee. Except for that scandal the country would have paid no more attention to this one than it paid to the charges of Mr. Bryan when he was being overwhelmed with money in his celebrated tries for the White House. What are the Republicans going to do to be saved? They have on their side all the great interests profiting by Republican rule and high tariffs, and except for this bothersome investigation into what they are doing they could buy the presidency without causing a ripple. It does not matter that no party since the Democrats stood for slavery has gone before the country with a worse cause. Money can win anyway. Anybody knows that, just as Newberry and his relatives knew that with money they could beat Mr. Ford, who would run for the Senate on some high moral ground characteristic of him. Half the Republican leaders are scandalized by the party's opposition to the League of Nations. Not many Republicans are in sympathy with the party's attempt to hold up the clique in the Senate which has lined this country up with Turkey, Mexico and Russia, instead of the 29 nations associated together in an effort to end war. There is no enthusiasm about the man who got the nomination when Lowden and Wood were eliminated by the primary scandal. A man of mediocre attainments, a record of downright opposition to progress, and knowing no way but that in which the Senate leaders tell him to go, cannot be expected to command the enthusiasm of a party which not so long ago followed Roosevelt even into the moose country and back. Yet money could win, and the Republicans have the money. It is impossible to hold everybody in line in a general denial of what they are doing. The man from Cleveland who testified that they are working on a $400,000 quota for that city alone, was bound to turn up. Others equally honest will turn up. Money is all the Republicans have in the campaign, and if that is to be outlawed where are they to turn for victory? With an unholy cause, a figurehead for a candidate, and so divided among themselves that they cannot take a definite stand upon anything, only money can save them. Isn't that a pretty fix for a party to get itself in?

AN OLD PHRASE RESTORED TO ITS OWN.

From the Browning (Mont.) Review.

W. W. Dunning, connected with the Wood & Weiller "hook 'em cow" livestock commission firm of South St. Paul, was a Browning guest last week. Mr. Dunning was unfortunate enough while here to be the indirect cause of the falling from the water-wagon by Green-Grass-Bull, the local water-man. While on his way for a load of water, the team driven by Green-Grass-Bull became frightened at the auto driven by Mr. Dunning, with the result that Green-Grass-Bull, wagon, horses, water-barrels and all, were piled up in the ditch.

A PLAINT FROM A CRUISER.

I'M sick an' tired of readin'
In all the magazines
A lot of sticky poetry
Of the soldiers an' marines.
How they fought an' sweat an' acted brave;
Resolved to do or die,
An' all such bunk an' junk. Say, don't
It pain your starboard eye?

Now, I don't say them poet ginks
Wa'n't in the bloody fight,
But just because they was it ain't
No reason they should write
Of doughboys an' the leather necks
An' all the things they done,
Like if it wasn't for them birds
We never would 'a' won.

Hey! How about us sailors?
Ain't we got no poets 'mong us
To sing our fearless histories
Like the ones the soldiers sung us?
There's been a lot of croiks dee gewers
Hung on them khaki slobs,
But if you'll look around you'll find
Quite some is worn by gobs.

THE AMERICAN FARMER.

U. S. SENATOR CAPPER in North American Review.

I KNOW of no better way to bring conditions back to normal, to reduce the high cost of living, than to encourage the farmer. It is the only way. To do that the consuming two-thirds must, for its own welfare, help the farmer to attain fairer market conditions. Some of the states permit farmers to organize co-operative associations to market their products. Some of the states do not grant this privilege to farmers, although they do grant it to organizations of capital and of labor. There must be a national law giving the farmer this right in all the states. Federal supervision of the packers is another reform that must come, and if the agricultural industry is to expand to meet the country's needs there must be a more liberal system of short-time and long-time credits for farmers. Land speculators are one of our most harmful influences. While the agricultural colleges are training young men and women to be more efficient farmers, these land speculators are making it impossible for the young farmers to obtain farms, and are the main cause for the alarming growth of tenantry with its decreased production on American farms. The farmer knows how he has been used by manipulator and politician alike and he is taking steps to correct conditions. He desires better schools, better roads, not speedways; but most of all, he desires fairer market conditions. And he is going to get them, for he realizes that the question of sufficient farm labor, sufficient farm machinery, livable conveniences for the home, better schools, roads and churches and wholesome amusements, can be had only by obtaining a fair price for his livestock and his crops and by taking from the speculator and the middleman the just due of which he has been robbed so long. And the salvation of agriculture and of this whole country depends on it—absolutely.

PITY THE POOR CANDIDATE.

From the New Republic.

WHEN posterity finds time to focus its eyes upon us, and to consider our late nineteenth and early twentieth century ways, posterity will doubtless grin at, among other things, our treatment of presidential candidates. And the grin will not be undeserved. For the period of four months we expect every candidate, whether he travels about the United States or sticks to his front porch, to spend a lot of time standing on his legs and talking about four or five things called issues or about one thing called a paramount issue. Such a demand is obviously unfair. It is hardly decent. No ordinary person could do that sort of thing, month after month, day in and day out, without going stale. Sooner or later comes the day when he sickens, if he is a normal human being, at the prospect of making another speech on the same old momentous and threadbare topics. Sooner or later he is bound to lose his batting eye. Although he may [illegible] campaign, a pretty gift for making the worse appear the better reason, some time or other he is sure to [illegible] the better reason look like no reason at all.

THE NINETEENTH AMENDMENT.

From the New York Tribune.

CONGRESS instructed Secretary Seward in 1868 to ignore attempts to withdraw approvals of the Fourteenth amendment given previously by the Legislatures of Ohio and New Jersey. Necessarily an approval once given is final, else the Constitution would be subject to perpetual changes of opinion on the part of individual states. And if the state's assent has been regularly certified to, as Tennessee's was, it will be exceedingly difficult to convince Congress or the Supreme Court ([illegible] question has ever been carried to the Supreme Court) that it is practicable to go behind the returns.

College Set Is in the Midst of Social Festivities

MANY BOYS AND GIRLS GOING AWAY

Rushing Has Started in Earnest; Washington U. Set Is Giving Parties and Dinners.

THE fun of carefree vacation days will soon be over for the school boys and girls, and the last of this month will see the departure of many young St. Louisans for various boarding schools and colleges in the East, while at home the festivities, if not the grind, have already started at Washington University. Rushing is in full swing and no one in the university set is doing anything now but going to the parties. Several affairs already have been given and many more are planned. Six additions to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund since Friday's acknowledgment have increased the total to $5217.54. With but three weeks remaining before Oct. 1, the usual closing time of the fund, this leaves a balance of approximately $1800 which must be forthcoming if the bills of the season's work are to be met.

Six ladies of Des Peres gave an ice cream social for the fund about three weeks ago and cleared $23.30.

A play entitled "Blue Beard" and several dancing and singing numbers comprised a recent evening's entertainment at the Cunard Apartments, Page and Goodfellow. The affair netted $13. It was managed by Harvey Gunther, Gene Gunther, Tillie Feinberg, Floyd Friedman, Goldie Friedman, Adele Cohen, Frances Cohen and Ted Shanks.

Six children gave a show at 8548 Church road and earned $12. Their names follow: Marjorie and Lelia Chopin, Verita Oberbeck, Adele Guhman, Muriel Kuhs and Bernice Soeder.

An entertainment for the benefit of the babies was given on the lawn of the residence of Mrs. Harry Huger, 4158 Botanical avenue, Sept. 3. The program was arranged by Lauretta Jenkins, Gladys, Theola and Area Huger, Dorothy Linch, Katherine Nies, Bernice Ellman and Miriam Aye. The affair was well attended and netted $11.30.

Billy and Inez Woodward, 5255 Vernon avenue, donated $2 earned by the sale of ice cream.

A check for $1.29 was received from Florence Ushor and Mary Trigg.

INJUNCTION ALLOWS PRIEST TO HOLD PULPIT

Rev. Father Naum Cere Expects to Preach Today as Result of Court Action.

The Rev. Father Naum Cere expects to hold services today at the Albanian Orthodox Church of St. Dimitri, 1014 Mississippi avenue, thanks to a temporary injunction issued yesterday by Judge Klene. The court order restrains Father Cere's opponents in the congregation from any effort to prevent him from preaching there.

The legal decision is the result of a schism that has existed for several weeks in the congregation of about 50 members, and which is a local reflection of religious disorders in Southern Europe.

According to the testimony, the Rumanian and Albanian churches voluntarily placed themselves under the jurisdiction of the Russian Greek Church; but recently, for nationalistic reasons, there has been an effort to draw away from that jurisdiction.

Father Cere holds his pulpit by virtue of the authority of Archbishop Alexander, of New York, an officer of the Russian Greek Church. Several members of his congregation, supporting the movement to withdraw from the Russian Greek Church, sought an injunction to prevent Father Cere from preaching in St. Dimitri Church, alleging that the priest and his supporters caused the locks on the door to be changed and denied entrance to the disaffected members.

Father Cere replied with a cross-bill, which Judge Klene's decision upheld.

"LLOYD GEORGE SHOULD CONFER WITH DE VALERA OVER IRISH CRISIS"

Some people will ask me to denounce this movement as pro-German, criminal and the rest of it. My object is not recrimination but reconstruction. I want friendship, not diatectics. Therefore, I put this to Sinn Fein—"you are adopting pretty strong tactics. In your war against England you are quite ready, apparently, to involve Asia and Africa, and even the United States. You are thus causing a good deal of disturbance in a planet already disturbed to destruction. Now, your "war" may be all right or it may be all wrong, but at least you should be very clear as to your casus belli. Are you now fighting on differences that are worth the cost? All I do is to put the question.

In the world today there are 20 different kinds of "sovereignty." Rhode Island is a sovereign State. Occupied by Japan, Shantung is under Chinese sovereignty. Panama is an independent republic, like Hayti, governed by the Navy Department! Canada is British. Under Lord Coomes and the Khedive, Egypt was "ruled" by the Sultan of Turkey. Hyderabad, in mid-India, has only "a treaty" with King George. And so on—and so forth. I can imagine a sovereignty for Ireland which would permit the Irish flag to be flown, the Irish plenipotentiary to sit with the League of Nations, Irish Consuls to promote Irish interests wherever desired, the Irish language to be pronounced by all who can, with complete Irish management of Irish finance, Irish schools, Irish land, Irish trade, Irish universities and everything else that is Irish; with full freedom as now for Irish faiths. When we are considering matters in the dread terms of peace and war, when homes are at stake on the one side and the other, is not such a sovereignty as this worth considering by the men who under it would probably form the first Irish Cabinet?

One Parliament.

In Sinn Fein there is an overwhelming sentiment in favor of an Ireland united under ono Parliament. Even if that Parliament met in Belfast, not Dublin, it is held that it should speak for the entire nation, with her boundaries determined by the Almighty Who ordered the country to be an island. Let us accept this as the ideal. Even so, does anybody regard her as being united here and now? Suppose there were an acknowledged republic. To what extent would Belfast pay income tax? I can imagine a sovereignty which might be incalculable as a means of working toward Irish unity, just as such sovereignty—criticise it as much as you like in other ways—has contributed to evolve unity between Boer and Briton in South Africa, between French and Briton in Canada and between Islam and Buddha in India. The Ulster of Canada was Quebec. The Ulster of South Africa was Natal. The Ulster of Australia was New South Wales. Yet in every case there was a reconciliation to the Commonwealth.

I cannot believe, then, that there are no materials for an understanding even with Sinn Fein. And if in this I am right, it is obvious that a conference should take place. But men's passions may be so aroused as to make any conference impossible. On that supposition, which cannot be lightly dismissed, the move lies with Mr. Lloyd George. He must arrive at a measure for Ireland, over Ireland's head, and must hope that as a lait accomplishment Ireland will accept and work the measure.

The Fixed Idea.

Here, then, may be genuine misunderstanding, because Irish opinions look at British leglislation in terms of the American Constitution, which can only be revised with much difficulty. A British statute can be amended at any time and with comparative ease. Indeed, the Act of Union itself was so amended when the Irish Church was disestablished. Sinn Fein may argue that this right of amendment acts both ways, but in recent colonial practice it has worked wholly in favor of the dominions. Indeed, Canada, despite the emergence of her strong national instincts, prefers her more flexible British North America Act to a Dominion Constitution, only amendable by consent of all nine provinces. The mistake made constantly by Irishmen as well as Englishmen is in discussing proposed settlements as if, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, they were final. Whereas, there is no settlement that cannot be improved with experience and developed further with good will.

Now, there are on the table three plans. First, we have on the statute book Mr. Asquith's Home Rule Bill. Next we have, "in Committee of the House," Mr. Lloyd George's Home Rule Bill, which the peers will accept. Thirdly, there is Dominion Home Rule, into which either of the previous measures can be transformed by amendments. We are told first that this clause won't work; then that some sub-section is absolutely vital; but the fact is that any of these bills would work as a start, if people wanted them to work. And if the angel Gabriel were to announce a fourth and fifth and a sixth bill there would be those who would promptly pick to pieces the divine revelation because lighthouses or census returns were improperly provided for. Lighthouses and census returns are doubtless very vital matters, but they are not worth war between nations that ought to be friends.

Land of Saints.

I shall be asked, first on one side and then on the other, what about Archbishop Mannix and Lord Mayor MacSwiney and the murdered policemen and the Orange riots and the kidnapped general and all the other foolish or tragic happenings and utterances that enrage people either for or against Ireland? My answer is that these are symptoms, not causes. Deal with the cause and the symptoms will die down and disappear. I am not going to argue with delirium. What doctors do is to prescribe for the fever.

And I wish to add this in conclusion: One reason why Ireland is not always understood can be very simply stated. Most of the world is indifferent to the Christian religion as a compelling personal influence. Erin is still a land of saints. About their churches, Catholics and Protestants care intensely and for their beliefs Catholics and Protestants would die without a murmur. All honor to both sides. A little more of such religion would do no nation much harm. But if religion, whatever be the form it takes, inflames men's minds instead of promoting peace and happiness among men, it follows that religion, whatever be the form it takes, will be discredited among those who have it not. For 30 years after the Reformation mid-Europe was devastated by wars of religion. Men fought one another in faith until they fought like wild beasts. And over many acres nothing survived, whether of life or of property. With this as a warning it is not open to men, claming to act under a sense of responsibility, whichever view they take, to play the part of incendiary. To foster peace is the peremptory and immediate duty of every good citizen, to whatever country he belongs.

FESTIVAL OF "ROSH HASHONAH," JEWISH NEW YEAR, BEGINS TODAY

One of Most Important Holidays on Calendar, and Is Observed Two Days by Orthodox Jews.

The observance of "Rosh Hashonah," the festival of the Jewish New Year, begins at sundown today and lasts until sundown tomorrow. This festival is one of the most important holidays of the Jewish calendar and is observed two days by the orthodox Jews.

In part 3, page 6 of today's Post-Dispatch it is incorrectly stated that the observance will be next Sunday.

HORACE PLUNKETT SAYS GOVERNMENT FAVORS ULSTER

Religious Issues.

And then there is the religious issue, which has always been used with great effect to sidetrack industrial politics and which recently has been revived rather inconveniently in this case for the industrial and commercial leaders with terrible results in bloodshed and destruction of property in both Derry and Belfast.

All through this conflict, with its economic basis and religious excuse, Britain—in modern times industrial rather than agricultural in its policy and always intensely Protestant in its religious bias—has carried its not unnatural partiality for Ulstermen to a length which has exasperated the four-fifths of Ireland to whom the last home rule bill is abhorrent. In this four-fifths are now all the Protestants and former Unionists of the south of Ireland and their brethren in the three Ulster counties where the solemn covenant has been scrapped. While these good people are possibly as strongly opposed as ever to an Irish republic, they have accepted Irish self-government, and above all they are as bitterly opposed as is Sinn Fein to the partition of the country.

Dominion Settlement.

In this situation the obvious solution is to be found in a mutual concession between the two extremes, Sinn Fein agreeing to abandon its demand for complete separation from the British commonwealth of nations and for Ulster to recognize that there never can be any peace in Ireland otherwise than on the basis of Irish unity. This is the meaning of the dominion settlement, which seeks to solve the two-fold problem of adjusting relations between Ireland and Britain and between the majority and the minority in Ireland, just as it has been solved in Canada and elsewhere in the British Empire.

What good does it do to keep teeth white —if their foundation is weakening?

Despite the wide-spread use of dentifrices which keep the teeth white and free from film, thousands of people develop pyorrhea as middle age approaches.

The gums bleed easily, become tender or soft, begin to recede. The teeth often are sensitive. Gradually they loosen and eventually fall out or must be extracted.

The reason is that the tooth foundation has been weakened. Tiny pockets, breeding places for germs, form about the roots. If allowed to develop, they affect and undermine the bony root socket which holds the tooth in place. Then the teeth loosen or fall out because their support is gone.

So Pyorrhea can be prevented or checked only by keeping the gums healthy, as well as keeping the teeth clean. That is why leading dentists recommend Pyorrhocide Powder.

Pyorrhocide Powder contains tooth cleansing and polishing ingredients of the highest efficiency. But in addition it is medicated with Dentinol, a germicidal and healing agent extensively used by dentists in the treatment of pyorrhea at the chair.

Pyorrhocide Powder promotes both gum and tooth health. It removes from the teeth the germ-laden deposits or mucoid films which harden and form tartar. It also stimulates blood circulation in the gums and makes them hard and firm, thus increasing the power of resistance against pyorrhea infection.

If pyorrhea has already developed, Pyorrhocide Powder aids in repairing soft, bleeding, spongy, receding gums.

The economical dollar package contains six months' supply. At all druggists and dental supply houses.

Free trial package to prove what real gum health means

Send coupon for free sample of Pyorrhocide Powder. Note how it leaves a refreshed, cleanly feeling of the teeth and gums long after brushing. To you who have used other dentifrices, it will prove a revelation. We will also send our educational booklet on the Prevention and Treatment of Pyorrhea.

LOW NECK GOWNS DISAPPROVED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 11.—Simplicity of dress is urged and low evening gowns with shoulder straps deprecated in letters mailed today by Miss Josephine Simrall, Dean of Women, University Kentucky, to all prospective young women students at the University this fall. Any extravagance in material or style is declared incompatible with college ideals. Dean Simrall prescribes strictly afternoon gowns as suitable for most university functions instead of low neck evening gowns.

FIFTH HORSEMAN OF THE APOCALYPSE AMUCK IN EUROPE, WRITES IBANEZ

its interest to have an understanding with Russia; failing this, it must conquer or suppress it.

This revolution, although it is still in a latent form and has not yet crystallized, has very frankly announced its international character. The republic of the Soviet is the weapon of the world proletarist against the bourgeoisie of the wordl. The red horseman is a reality.

I repeat that it is useless to cover one's eyes in order not to see him. He took shape in Russia, but now he has passed beyond the limits of his native land, and the farther he advances over the earth the more terrible he becomes.

Whithersoever he gallops he will find someone to follow him. In this world those who consider themselves unfortunate are more numerous than those who live at ease. And the poor devil, from rancor and hatred of the prosperous, cherishes the illusion that changing his behavior will make him better off and instinctive sympathy always follows the man who overturns what is established and who inspires terror in those who exercise power.

This fifth horseman is not riding against certain nations. He knows nothing of nations; he knows only the social classes into which humanity is divided. He comes for everyone, and it is useless for you across the ocean to say with blind egoism: "European affairs do not concern us. America is far from Europe, with wide seas between. We should be able to keep out of foreign difficulties."

For to the Red horseman the sea is no obstacle. His charger tramples the waves as if they were mountains. Useless, too, to set up walls to check his galloping. On the other side of these walls he has always sympathizers, few or many, who always succeed finally in opening the gates to him.

The most logical and proper line of action is to go to meet him. There is little to be lost in looking closely at the enemy. If he is human one ends by coming to an understanding with him. If he is deaf to reason, and bloodthirsty, by holding him at arm's length, he can be disarmed by a blow at the right moment.

Combined Front Necessary.

It is of the utmost importance that America and Europe should stand shoulder to shoulder on this vital question, that there should be no divergence in their tactics against this new and fearful enemy who is menacing the security and the progress of every nation on the earth. Their interests are the same and they cannot be separated without disaster.

This world revolution which was at first held to be the ephemeral creation of a few idealogues, today possesses powerful armies, is organizing a fleet, and possesses diplomats and statesmen who, instead of splitting into group interests, as has occurred in so many revolutions, have been skillful enough to profit by the mistakes of European politicians who committed the blunder of wounding Russian patriotism to the point that even imperialists have gone over to the Soviet.

In a later article I shall speak of the armies of this Russian revolution which so closely resembles the French Revolution of 1792; of Lenine, who makes one think of Robespierre and of the "Red Invasion" that is so like the advances into foreign territory of the French Sansculottes. But who knows whether the Russian menace will be more disorganizing and less positive than the work done by the French people at the close of the eighteenth century?

Mankind in Europe has always contemplated with a certain mystic terror the catastrophes which might descend upon it from the Orient, or from mysterious Asia. During our Middle Ages the Mongolian invasions sowed terror in Europe. They were announced in Holy Scripture and in that same Holy Scripture many still read the warnings of another invasion which it seems to them is unmistakably that of the Bolshevists. Others, looking farther afield, long since glimpsed the menace of China and began to talk of the "Yellow Peril."

The fifth horseman is not yellow! He is red!

MIDDELKAMP AND SULLIVAN BLOCK TAXATION PLANK

Proposal to Have Both Parties Approve Identical Planks for Enforcing Assessment Law Seems Defeated.

Opposition by supporters of State Auditor George H. Middelkamp, Democratic nominee for State Treasurer, and Secretary of State John L. Sullivan, Democratic nominee for re-election, have prevented progress on a plan suggested by leading Democrats and Republicans to obtain identical planks declaring for the enforcement of the assessment and taxation laws in the two party platforms to be adopted at the state conventions in Jefferson City Tuesday, it was stated yesterday at Democratic State headquarters.

It was explained that a platform declaration in favor of equalization of assessments according to law would be a straight-out repudiation of Sullivan and Middelkamp, who as members of the State Board of Equalization during the past four years voted to equalize assessments on the basis of actual value, as the law requires.

C. E. Yancey, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, was out of the city yesterday and no authorized statement as to the proposed platform could be obtained.

To Prevent Misunderstandings.

After the meeting of the Republican nominees for State office in St. Louis two weeks ago, a movement for an agreed plank by both parties was started. The movement was justified upon the ground that, the law being very plain and having been ignored for many years, the only honest position either party could take was to demand strict enforcement. To keep the question out of politics it was argued that neither party could suffer from misunderstanding of the plank by rural voters, among whom there is opposition to assessment at actual value, if both platforms contained the same plank.

Information from Republican sources is that the Republicans intend to attempt to obtain approval of the assessment law enforcement plank, notwithstanding the refusal of Democrats to adopt the same plank, and that the Republicans during the campaign will take the position that there is no more justification for ignoring the law on assessments than there would be in ignoring the law on the enforcement of the Volstead act or any other statute.

In 1916 the Democratic platform contained a plank proposed by the defenders of tax dodgers, while the Republican platform was silent upon taxation. Gov. Gardner, notwithstanding the platform, attempted to enforce the tax laws through the State Tax Commission, and was aided by State Auditor Hackmann, a Republican. His efforts were nullified through the joint action of Attorney-General McAllister, Sullivan and Middelkamp, who were a majority of the members of the State Board of Equalization.

Would Indorse Hackmann.

The adoption of a full value assessment plank this year would be a repudiation of Sullivan and Middelkamp, which, it appears, their supporters are strong enough to prevent. A Republican platform declaration in favor of full value assessment will be an indorsement of Hackmann, who is a candidate for re-election.

The convention will meet at noon Tuesday and are expected to complete their work by Tuesday night. The two State committees will also be in session Tuesday, perfecting formally the organization which was effected in St. Louis two weeks ago.

John M. Atkinson, Democratic nominee for Governor, and Breckinridge Long, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, have prepared a tentative platform to present to the platform committee of the convention, Atkinson preparing the planks dealing with State affairs, and Long the planks dealing with national affairs. Arthur M. Hyde, Republican nominee for Governor, and Senator Spencer have prepared some planks for the Republican platform.

Both platforms, it is expected, will indorse the $60,000,000 road-bond issue and the plan prepared by the Missouri New Constitution Association for a constitutional convention. The Republicans also will have a plank pledging the party to redistrict the State to do away with the Democratic gerrymander and give the Republicans a greater proportion of the Congressmen and State Senators.

There will be the usual "pointing with pride" and "viewing with alarm" to be found in all political party platforms.

The state committees will be called upon to settle several contests from St. Louis for membership on the Women's State Committees. The party organizations in the cities have taken the position that they have the right to name the members of the women's committees. In most wards there has been no insurgent movement among the Republican women, though it is expected there will be a contest from the Thirteenth Ward, where Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson was chosen member of the Women's City Committee at one meeting of women under the auspices of the supporters of John Schmoll, former chairman of the City Committee, while Mrs. G. Whittelsey was chosen at another meeting called by Dr. A. H. Meyer, who defeated Schmoll for re-election as committeeman from the ward.

The Democratic women have contests in a number of wards, and in all congressional districts in St. Louis.

In preparation for these contests members of the regular City Committee have caused to be adopted resolutions at meetings of men and women in their wards declaring that the City Committee is the only organization with power to direct the work of the party, and that the women desire to work under that organization. Such a resolution was adopted Friday night in the Seventh Ward, in which J. J. Mestres is committeeman; in the Fifteenth in which James J. Fitzsimmons is committeeman, and in the Sixteenth, in which John Clooney is committeeman.

Chairman Hughes of the Republican State Committee said yesterday he had not selected a temporary chairman for the Republican convention. He said it would be his purpose to speed up the work of the convention, and that little time would be given to speechmaking. Chairman Yancey of the Democratic Committee has chosen Floyd Jacobs, former Prosecuting Attorney of Jackson County, to deliver the keynote speech and preside over the temporary organization of the Democratic convention.

MAIL CARRIER SLIDES FOUR FLOORS ON ELEVATOR CABLE

Steps Into Shaft Thinking Car Was There; Has Ambulance Take Bag to Postoffice First.

When Walter A. Merklin, 26 years old, of 4224 Pleasant street, a mail carrier, saw the elevator gate raised on the fourth floor at 1515 Pine street, at 11 a. m. yesterday, he thought the elevator was there and stepped in.

It was not there. He clutched the steel cable and clung to it, sliding down to the first floor level, where he was taken from the shaft. His right groin was injured and both hands and arms were burned and lacerated from friction. He was taken to the city dispensary. He insisted that the ambulance, before taking him home, should take him to the Postoffice station at Sixteenth street and Lucas avenues, where he delivered his mail to safekeeping.

AIRPLANES FIND FOREST FIRES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Location of nearly 500 forest fires in time to prevent a dangerous spread has clearly demonstrated the value of the airplane as forest patrols, according to a statement issued today by the Army Air Service.

Six bases from which forest air patrols operate were established between May 16 and July 1 of this year. The aviators on the work have flown 1995 hours over approximately 6,247,091 square miles of timber, have detected 464 fires in time to prevent any considerable damage.

The first forest patrol base was established at Fresno, Cal. Other bases are located at Matherfield, Red Bluff and Marchfield, Cal., and Medford and Eugene, Ore. Six patrols operate out of Matherfield alone.

DOCTOR CHARGED WITH WRITING DRUG ORDERS

Dr. C. A. Moeller Alleged to Have Supplied 500 Prescriptions to Addicts in Two Meeks.

Dr. Charles A. Moeller of 11½ Main street, East St. Louis, against whom a warrant was issued yesterday, charging him with writing prescriptions for drug addicts not in the course of his professional practice, is declared by inspectors to have written 500 prescriptions in the last two weeks. Addicts commonly pay $2 for each prescription.

The inspectors say that Dr. Moeller has succeeded Dr. Thomas S. Manning of 3867 Lindell boulevard in the issuance of prescriptions to addicts, now that druggists are refusing to fill Manning's prescriptions. Dr. Manning is under a two-year penitentiary sentence. Manning is said to have written 13,974 prescriptions for narcotic drugs between Jan. 10. and July 20. The inspectors say that Dr. Moeller's prescriptions are brought to St. Louis drug stores to be filled.

MAN ABSENT 28 YEARS RETURNS TO SALEM, ILL.

Is Recognized by Old Inhabitants Despite Fact He Changed His Name.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SALEM, Ill., Sept. 11.—A man came here the other day announcing himself as Mr. Ledwick or Lederidge of South America. A number of the older citizens were positive that he was Presley Goodnow, absent from Salem 28 years. The stranger, however, maintained he was a distant relative of Presley. His purpose in coming, he said, was to settle an old estate.

Several days later Judge Charles N. Goodnow came down from Chicago and recognized the stranger as his brother Presley and then the latter laughingly admitted that he was Presley and accompanied the Judge to Chicago.

Presley said he had been traveling in foreign countries since his disappearance. His mother, who had refused to believe that he was dead, died a few months ago. The last heard here from Presley before his disappearance was a letter in which he stated that his partner in Arizona was ill and that he feared he, too, would become ill.

STILL THAT COULDN'T KEEP STILL FOUND

Two Held After Dry Agents Locate Mash and Liquor-Making Device on Grand Avenue.

When revenue agents went to the home of Mrs. Lucia Mikulaco, a widow, at 7411 South Grand avenue, to look for a still, they found it was not still there, but still it wasn't far away. It was a still that didn't keep still, but went visiting. The agents found it at the home of Mrs. Mikulaco's next-door neighbor, Anzelmo Vlah, 7409 South Grand avenue.

Warrants charging Mrs. Mikulaco with having in her possession 175 gallons of raisin mash and charging Anzelmo with operating a still were issued yesterday.

The agents, after finding the mash in Mrs. Mikulaco's home, Friday, detected a familiar odor to the south. They traced it to the kitchen of the Vlah home, where Mrs. Vlah, they reported, was busy cooking raisin mash to make whisky.

Vlah told the agents he was opposed to the whisky making, and had tried to induce his wife not to do it, but the warrant was issued for him on the theory that he could and should have prevented his wife from using the still, which she said she had borrowed from Mrs. Mikulaco.

THE NOTORIOUS MISS ANSTRUTHER by E.W. HORNUNG...

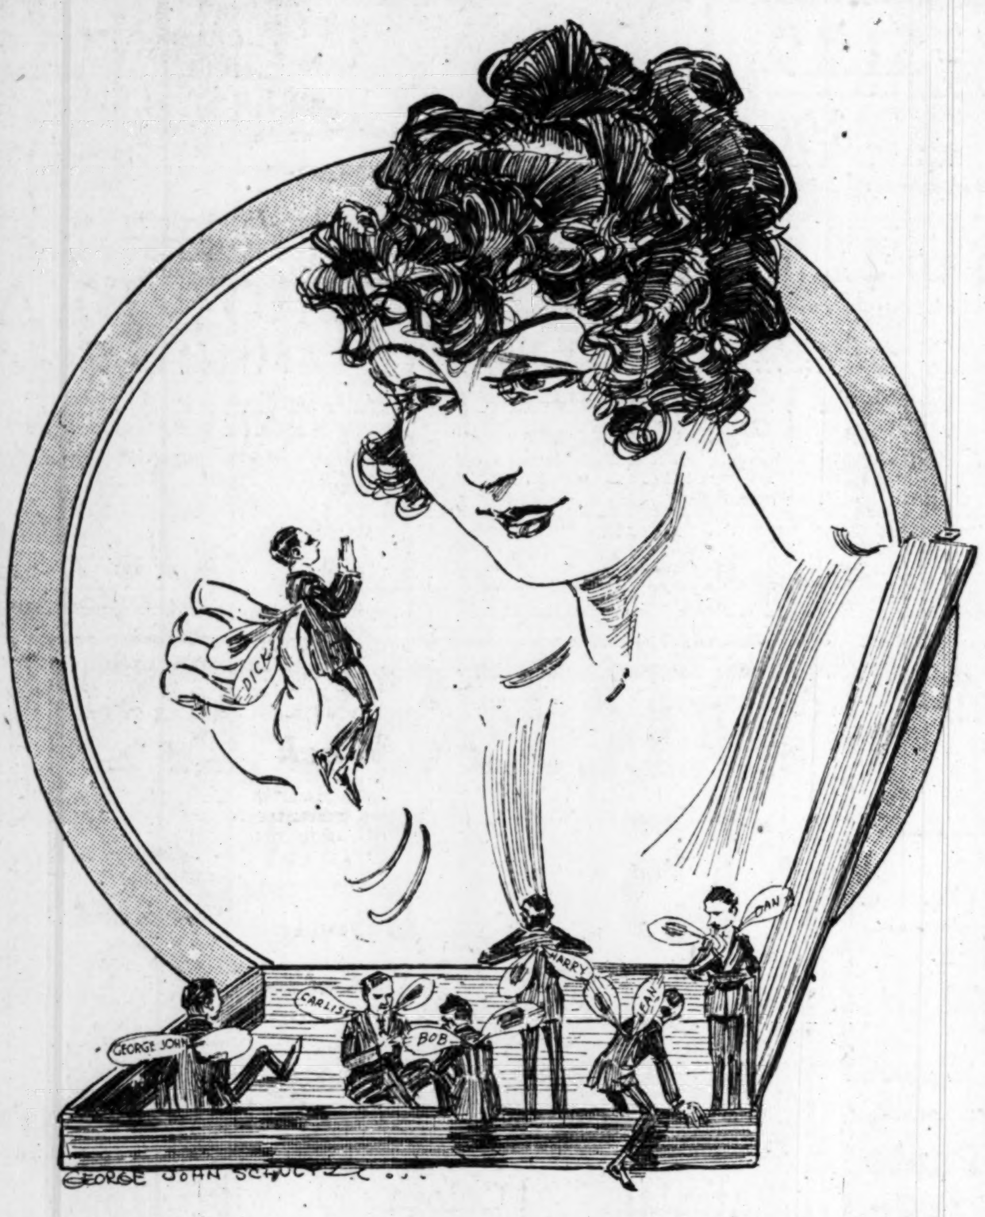
It IS prejudicial to the nicest girl in this unjust world to be asked in marriage too frequently. Things come out, and she gets the name of being a heartless flirt; her own sex add that she cannot be a very nice girl. A flirt she is, of a surety, but why heartless, and why not a nice girl? So grave defects do not follow. The flirt who doesn't think she is one—the flirt with a set of sham principles and ideals, and a misleading veneer of soul—is heartless, if you like, and something worse. Now, the girl who gets herself proposed to regularly once a week in the season is far less contemptible; she is not contemptible at all, for how could she know that you meant so much more than she did? She only knows a little too much to take your word for this.

A sweetly pretty and highly accomplished young girl, little Miss Anstruther came to know too much to dream of taking any man's word on this point. She was reputed to have refused more offers than a good girl ought to get; for what in the very beginning conferred a certain distinction upon her made her notorious at a regrettably early stage of her career. The finger of feminine disapproval pointed at her, presently, in an unmistakable way; and this is said—by women—to be a very bad sign. Men may not think so. Intensely particular ladies, in the pride of their complete respectability, tried to impress upon very young men in whom they were interested that Miss Anstruther was not at all a nice girl. But this had a disappointing effect upon the boys. And Miss Anstruther by no means confined herself to rejecting mere boys.

The moths that singed themselves at this flame were of every variety. They would have made a rare collection under glass, with pins through them; Miss Anstruther herself would have inspected them thus with the liveliest interest. Her detractors also would have enjoyed themselves at such an exhibition. But the more generous spirits among them—those who had been young and attractive too long ago to pretend to be either still—might have found there some slight excuse for Miss Anstruther. Of course, it was no excuse at all, but it was notable that almost every moth had some salient good point—something to "account for it" on her side, to some extent—say a twentieth part of the extent to which she had gone. Nearly all the moths had something to be said for them—looks, intellect, a nice voice, an operatic mustache, or an aptitude for the informal recitation of engaging verses; their strong points, sorted out and fitted together, would have made a dazzling being—whom Miss Anstruther would have rejected as firmly and as finally as she has rejected his integral parts.

For there was no pleasing the girl. Apparently she did not mean to be pleased in that way. She had neither wishes nor intentions, it became evident, beyond immediate flirtation of the most willful description. Her depravity was shocking.

Her accomplishment was singing. She sang divinely. Also she had plenty of money; but the money alone was not at the bottom of many declarations; her voice was the more infatuating element of the two; and her "way" did more damage than either. She was not, indeed, aware what a "way" she had with her. It was a way of seeming desperately smitten, and a little unhappy about it; which is quite sufficient to make a man of tender years or acute conscientiousness "speak" on the spot. Thus many a proposal was unexpected on her part as it was unpremeditated on his. He made a sudden fool of himself—heard some surprisingly sensible things from her frivolous lips—decided, upon reflection and inquiry, that these were her formula—and got over the whole thing in the most masterly fashion. This is where Miss Anstruther was so much more wholesome than the flirt who doesn't think she flirts; Miss Antruther never rankled.



The moths that singed themselves at this flame were of every variety.

She had no mother to check her notorious propensity in its infancy, and no brother to bully her out of it in the end. Her father, an honorable, but a man of intrinsic distinction as well, was queer enough to see no fault in her; but he was a busy man. She had, however, a kinsman, Lord Nunthorp, who used to talk to her like a brother on the subject of her behavior, only a little less heavily than brothers do. Nunthorp knew what he was talking about. He had once played at being in love with her himself. But that was in the days when his mustache looked as though he had forgotten to wash it off, and before Miss Anstruther came out. There had been no nonsense between them for years. They were the best and most intimate friends.

"Another!" he would say, gazing gravely upon her as the most fascinating curiosity in the world, when she happened to be telling him about the very latest. "Let's see—how many's that?"

There came a day when she told Nunthorp she had lost count; and she really had. The day was at the fag-end of one season; he had been lunching at the Anstruthers', and Miss Anstruther had been singing to him.

"I'm afraid I can't assist you," said he, with amused concern. "I only remember the first 11, so to speak. First man in was your rector's son in the country, young Miller, who was sent out to Australia on the spot. He was the first, wasn't he? Yes, I thought that was the order; and, by Jove, Midge, how fond you were of that boy!"

"I was," said Miss Anstruther, glancing out of the window with a wistful look in her pretty eyes; but her kinsman said to himself that he remembered that wistful look—it went cheap.

"The next man in," said Nunthorp, who was an immense cricketer, "was me!"

"I like that!" said Miss Anstruther, taking her eyes from the window with rather a jerk, and smiling brightly. "You've left out Cousin Dick!"

"So I have; I beg Dick's pardon. It was very egotistical of me, but pardonable, for, of course, Dick never stood so high in the serene favor as I did. I came after Dick, then, first wicket down, and since then—well, you say yourself that you've lost tally, but you must have bowled out a pretty numerous team by this time. My dear Midge," said Nunthorp, with a sudden access of paternal gravity, "don't you think it about time that somebody came in and carried his bat?"

"Don't talk nonsense!" said Miss Anstruther briskly. She added, almost miserably: "I wish to goodness they wouldn't ask me! If only they wouldn't propose, I should be all right. Why do they want to go and propose? It spoils everything."

Her tone and look were quite injured. She was more indignant than Nunthorp had ever seen her—except once—for the girl was of a most serene disposition. He looked at her kindly, and as admiringly as ever, though rather with the eye of a connoisseur; and he found she had still the most lovely, imperfect, uncommon and fragrant little face he had ever seen in his life. He said candidly:

"I really don't blame them, and I don't see how you can. If you are to blame anybody, I'm afraid it must be yourself. You must give them some encouragement, Midge, or I don't believe they'd all come to the point as they do. I never saw such sportsmen as they are. They walk in and walk out again, one after the other, and they seem to like it"——

"The Notorious Miss Anstruther"

Is one of the stories in the series of short, original fiction by the most popular authors of today

TWO of the short stories are being printed each week in the Post-Dispatch, one starting on Sunday and being continued on Monday and Tuesday. The other starts on Wednesday and is continued through Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"The story that will follow "The Notorious Miss Anstruther" is "The Needle Tower Ghost," by Robert Welles Ritchie. It will begin in the Post-Dispatch next Wednesday.

The writers represented in this great series are George Barr McCutcheon, Ellis Parker Butler, Holman F. Day, Richard Washburn Child, Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, George A. Chamberlain, E. Phillips Oppenheim, John Fleming Wilson, Fanny Heaslip Lee, Frederich Orrin Bartlett, Henry C. Rowland, Lowell Otus Reese, Leonard Merrick, Elizabeth Jordan, Holworthy Hall, George Weston, Bruno Lessing, Maude Radford Warren, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, Vingie E. Roe, Arthur Train, Dana Gatlin, Lucian Carey, Mary Synon, Jeanette Lee, Bertha Ruck, Will Payne and Zona Gale.

"I wish they did!" said Miss Anstruther, devoutly. "I only wish they'd show me that they liked it; I should have a better time then. They wouldn't keep making me miserable with their idiotic farewell letters. That's what they all do. Either they write and call me everything—rudely, politely, sarcastically, all ways—or they say their hearts are broken, and they haven't the faintest intention of getting over it—in fact, they wouldn't get over it if they could. That's enough to make any person feel low, even if you know from experience what to expect. At one time I daren't look in the paper for fear of seeing their suicides; but I've only seen their weddings. They all seem to get over it pretty easily; and that doesn't make you think much better of yourself, you know. Of course, I'm inconsistent!"

"Of course you are," said Nunthorp cordially. "I approve of you for it. I'd rather see you an old maid, Midge, than going through life in a groove. Consistency's a narrow groove for narrow minds! I can do better than this about consistency, Midge; I'm hot and strong on the subject. But you're not listening."

"Ah!" cried Miss Anstruther, who had not listened to a word, "they're driving me crazy, between them! There's Mr. Willimott, you know, who writes. Of course, he had no business to speak to me. There were a hundred things against him at the time—even if I'd cared for him—though he's getting more successful now. Well, I do believe he's put me into very story he's written since it happened! I crop up in some magazine or other every month!"

"'Into work the poet kneads them,'" murmured Nunthorp, who was not a professional cricketer. "Well, you needn't bother yourself about him. You've made the fellow. He now draws a heroine better than most men. It's a pity you don't take to writing, Midge; you'd draw your heroes better than women do as a rule; for don't you see that you must know more about us than we know about ourselves?"

"They wouldn't be much of heroes!" laughed the girl. "But I heartily wish I did write. Wouldn't I show up some people, that's all! It would give me something to do, too; it would keep me out of mischief, and, really, I'm sick of men and their ridiculous nonsense. And they all say the same thing. If only they wouldn't say anything at all! Why do they? You might tell me!"

Nunthorp put on his thinking cap. "You see, you are quite pretty," said he.

"Thanks."

"Then you sing like an angel."

"Please don't. That's what they all say."

"Ah, the singing has a lot to do with it; you oughtn't to sing so well; you should cultivate less expression. And then—I'm afraid you like attention."

"Well, perhaps I do."

"And I'm sure it must be very hard not to be attentive to you," said Nunthorp, with a rather brutal impersonality, "for I should fancy you have a way—quite unconscious, mind—of giving your current admirer the idea that he's the only one who ever held the office."

"Thanks," she said, with perfect good humor; "that is a very pretty way of putting it."

"What, Midge?"

"That I'm a hopeless flirt—which is the root of the whole matter, I suppose!"

She burst out laughing and he joined her. But there had been a pinch of pathos in her words, and he was quick enough to make a show of contradicting them. She would not listen to him, she laughed at his insincerity. The conversation had been broken down, and, as soon as he decently could, he went.

Harding Charges Wilson Administration Has Been "Recklessly Inefficient"

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., Sept. 11.—In a double-barreled attack on the administration, Senator Harding charged today that Democratic officials had been guilty of "reckless inefficiency" in their conduct of the nation's business affairs and had sought through "duplicity or misunderstanding" to have the United States surrender its Monroe Doctrine in becoming a member of the League of Nations.

Nominee Tells Business Men's Delegation Affairs Have Been Twisted Out of Shape—Charges Democrats With Attempting to Surrender Monroe Doctrine.

The Senator's declarations on the Monroe Doctrine and on business issues were made in two front-porch speeches to delegations of business men from Chicago and several Michigan and Indiana cities. Through them, he said, he wanted to send a message of reassurance to all Americans interested in business.

His own policy toward the business world he declared would put an end to "ineffective meddling" by the Government, wipe out many wartime restraints, seek readjustment of tariff levies and taxation and establish a new co-operation between Government and private enterprise. Having restored a condition of "sober business" again, he added, he would summon the aid of the ablest administrators of the country to put the Government itself on an efficient basis.

"Conspiracy of Accord."

Assailing the "conspiracy of perfect accord" between the administration and the Democratic presidential nominee to perpetuate war powers of the executive, Senator Harding declared the Government had been so "twisted out of shape" that reorganization in many of its departments was necessary before it could again function properly.

Discussing the Monroe Doctrine, the Republican nominee asserted that the English and French texts of the league covenant apparently were in direct contradiction, the former bearing the intimation that the doctrine was not to be over-ridden by any provision of the covenant while the French phraseology clearly would make the doctrine subordinate to the covenant. In any case of dispute, he added, the league council undoubtedly would decide the French text was the official one.

"One wishes to be both charitable and considerate," he continued "but it is hard to believe that this very marked discrepancy was perpetrated without intention."

Deprecating the tendency to think of business only in terms of "big business," the nominee declared success in financial affairs should no longer be held a crime, but that the people should realize that sound financial conditions were for the common good. He advocated the establishment of a budget system in the Federal Government, declared the postal service must be put on a new basis, and continued:

"We must repeal and wipe out a mass of executive orders and laws which, failing to serve effectively that purpose, serve only to leave American business in anxiety, uncertainty and darkness.

"We must readjust our tariff, and this time with especial regard for the new economic menaces to our American agriculture as well as factory.

"We must readjust our internal taxation, especially the excess profits tax, to remove the burdens it imposes upon the will to create and produce, whether that will is the will of the big corporation, the small corporation, or of the individual.

"We must give Government co-operation to business, we must protect American business at home, and we must aid and protect it abroad by the upbuilding of our merchant marine, and a restoration of a self-respecting measure of American protection to her citizens wherever they may go upon righteous errands.

"We must build our economic life into new strength and we must do it so that our prosperity shall not be the prosperity of profiteers nor of special privilege.

"Ineffective Meddling."

"American business has suffered from staggering blows because of too much ineffective meddling by the Government. I refer not only to the conspiracy of 'perfect accord' by which it is hoped to perpetuate these powers. I am referring now to the fact that not only has the Government been twisted out of shape, been dictatorial and meddling and has been extending its activity to experiments beyond its powers, but also to the fact that it has blundered in every direction.

"It has engaged in prodigal waste. The American people pay. It has kept its overstuffed bureaus and departments, many of which are doing overlapping work in a prime condition of reckless inefficiency. The American people pay. It has a record in the appointment of campaign-contributor diplomats who have been without previous experience in foreign affairs. The American people pay.

"Here in America we have developed the most proficient and most efficient types of business organization and administration in the world; they have shown the greatest capacity for administrative vision. We mean to call that administrative quality and fitness into the service of the Government, and establish an advance in Government business, not merely talk about Government progress."

Turning to the Monroe Doctrine as affected by the league covenant, Senator Harding declared the nation above all things wanted to keep its contracts and therefore should make certain that they were not in ambiguous terms.

Covenant Tests Compared.

"The official copies of the covenant," he continued, "were printed in both English and French in parallel columns. In the English text the exact words of Article XXI read as follows:

"'Nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements, such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine, for securing the maintenance of peace.'

"This is the quotation from the English text as proclaimed to America, and alluded to as the one outstanding expression which safeguards the Monroe Doctrine. But it really does nothing of the sort, for it is a very flagrant misrepresentation of what the Monroe Doctrine really is.

"Translators say that the French is so simple and lucid that one can read it without being a master of the language and understand it perfectly. The literal translation reads as follows:

"'International engagements, such as treaties of arbitration and regional understandings, like the Monroe Doctrine, which assure the maintenance of peace, are not considered as incompatible with any of the provisions of the present pact.'

"Reversal of Other."

"Comparing the two versions of this solemn covenant, no one can fail to perceive that one text is the complete reversal of the other. The intimation in English is that, in the event of conflict concerning the two provisions, the league covenant must be made to coincide with the Monroe Doctrine, but the literal effect of the clause as originally drawn in the French, in case a controversy arises, is the subordination of the Monroe Doctrine to such a degree as virtually to involve its complete abandonment.

"It is not difficult to see what the result would have been if the Senate had been driven into unqualified ratification. Inevitably some question involving the integrity of the Monroe Doctrine would have arisen. The question which version is correct would, of course, have been raised incidentally, and, in the words of Lord Cecil, the council of the league, containing one vote from the United States, 'would have been called upon to settle it.' Can anyone doubt that the decision would have followed the original French text, which is by universal recognition the official language of diplomacy?

"One cannot help but wonder whether the whole thing was a trap. One wishes to be both charitable and considerate, but it is hard to believe that this very marked discrepancy was perpetrated without intention.

"Those who advocate America's acceptance of the league covenant ought, in all seriousness, bring forth the explanation of this shocking ambiguity of contract. We mean to lift the voice of America to outlaw war and settle controversies between nations as become the devotees of peace. In seeking this great advance, we do not mean to begin on a foundation which is of itself an encouragement to controversy, but we want to start with that clarity of understanding wherein we know America is right and which may hold us resolute and unafraid."

Fourth of Immigrants to America in Last 100 Years From British Possessions

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Thirty-four million immigrants have entered the United States in the last quarter century. In the same time the population of the country has increased 97,000,000.

Until the world war the effect of immigration on the population increase was very marked, amounting to more than 50 per cent in the decade ending in 1910. It exceeded 40 per cent in the 10 years ending with the present year and Immigration Bureau officials are of the opinion that had the war not intervened the percentage for this decade would have been greater than that of the last.

During the first 10 years of the century, or from 1820 to 1830, the number of immigrants arriving in the Unted States was less than 1 per cent of the increase in population, the figures being 143,439 immigrants and 3,227,567 population increase. In the next 10 years this 1 per cent had grown to 12, the census of 1840 showing a population of 17,069,453, with an increase of 4,203,433, while during the same period 599,125 immigrants entered the country.

In the next decade ended in 1850 the population increased 6,122,432, immigrants entering the country numbered 2,598,214, or more than 25 per cent of the population increase.

The next decade saw the population increase 7,115,050, and immigration totaled 2,314,824, or slightly more than 28 per cent. The percentage decreased during the 10 years ended with 1880 owing to the unusually large increase in population. This increase was 11,597,412, while the total of immigration was 2,812,191, or about 19 per cent. In the decade ended in 1890 the population increased 12,791,931, while 5,246,613 immigrants entered the country, making the percentage about 42 per cent.

In the succeeding decade ended in 1900 there was a sharp decrease in immigration, with the result that persons coming into the country represented only about 23 per cent of the population increase. This was 13,046,861, while the number of immigrants arriving was 3,844,420.

While the population increase remained at about the same ratio during the decade ending in 1910, there was a very decided increase in the number of immigrants, the former being 15,977,691 and the latter 8,795,386.

34,000,000 Persons Have Come to United States Since 1820—Population Has Increased 97,000,000.

The estimated increase for the 10 years ended this year (1920) is 14,000,000, while the total number of immigrants during this period was 6,100,000. The percentage ratio thus was only about 43 per cent, this being due to the falling off in immigration during the four years of the world war.

Most Are From England.

Of the 34,000,000 immigrants entering the country in the last 100 years, nearly one-fourth of them, or 8,205,675, came from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. Germany furnished the second largest number, 5,495,539, and Italy the third largest, 4,100,740. Austria-Hungary was next behind Italy with 4,068,448, while Russia was fifth with 3,311,406. The Scandinavian countries, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, have sent 2,134,414 of their citizens to the United States.

The total of immigration from France in the 100 years has been 523,806, the largest number from that country, 20,126, coming here in 1851. Switzerland has sent 256,707 persons to the United States, and the Netherlands 214,508. British North America, including Canada, has sent 834,450, and Mexico 217,256.

Belgium and Rumania have sent the smaller number of any of the European countries, the total for the former being 76,587, and for the latter 76,222. It was not until 1894 that the nationals of these two countries as well as those of Portugal, Greece and Turkey began coming across the Atlantic in any appreciable numbers.

The total for Portugal is given by the Immigration Bureau as 159,702; for Greece, 352,883, and for Turkey, 311,404.

Chinese immigrants have numbered 288,398, beginning in 1853 with 42, and virtually ending in 1883 with 8031. The peak was in 1882, when 39,579 Chinese arrived. Chinese exclusion laws became effective about that time.

Immigration from Japan was first taken note of in 1892, and reached its peak of 30,226, in the year 1907. In 1919, 10,064 Japanese entered the United States, while the total for the 27 years was 229,030.

From countries not specified, including parts of Poland, Serbia and many others have come a total of 2,100,000.

Biggest Total in 1851.

At the outset, England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales furnished the bulk of the immigrants, the largest total from the British Isles, 272,740, coming over in 1851. By that time there also was a large flow of immigrants from Germany, the total in 1853 being 215,009, or the largest in any one year except 1882, when the high mark of 250,630 was reached.

Immigration from the British Isles began to decrease in 1851, fluctuating between 32,000 and 160,000. In the 12 years preceding the world war the number of immigrants from those isles averaged about 80,000 annually.

The tide from Germany began to turn in 1887, and since that time the number of immigrants arriving here has steadily decreased, reaching to low mark of 35,734 in the year before the world war.

At about the same time that immigration from the British Isles and Germany began to decrease that from Italy passed the 50,000 mark. It averaged slightly better than that total for the succeeding 10 years and then increased almost every year, attaining a record of 285,731 in 1907. The year before the world war it was 283,734.

Austrian Record in 1907.

Immigration from Austria-Hungary exceeded 50,000 in 1901, went to 100,000 in 1902, reached the high mark of 338,452 in 1907 and was 278,152 the year before the war. Russia did not pass the 50,000 mark until 1899, and it was not until 1902 that immigration from that country exceeded 100,000. The high mark, 291,040, was made in 1913.

The peak of the movement from the Scandinavian countries was reached in 1882 with 105,326. It gradually decreased thereafter until it was only 26,851 in 1895. The total the year before the war was 29,391.

In only six years of the 100 has the total of immigrants entering the country exceeded 1,000,000. Twenty thousand more than that number entered in 1905, in 1906 the total was 1,100,000, and in 1907 it reached the record of 1,285,349. The million mark was not reached again until 1910 the total for that year being 1,041,570.

Two years again elapsed before the million mark was reached, the total for 1913 being 1,197,892. In the year that the world war began 1,218,480 aliens passed into American ports, but in the first year of the war this total had decreased to 326,700. In 1916 it was 298,826. In 1917, 295,403; in 1918, 110,618, and in 1919 it was 141,132.

SAYS PAY INCREASE APPLIES ONLY TO MAXIMUM WAGES

Movers' Union Secretary Declares Men Getting Minimum Salaries Received Only 10 Per Cent.

Thomas J. Coyne, secretary and business agent of the Furniture Movers' Union, has pointed out that the increases from $29.70 a week to $37 a week for chauffeurs and drivers and from $26.40 a week to $35 a week for helpers granted by the employers last Thursday did not apply to all of the employes, but those receiving the maximum wage, which, he said, represented the majority. The minimum increase, representing 10 per cent, brought the wages of men employed on small moving vans to $32.40 and $27.90 a week, Coyne said.

Coyne also said that while the employers had granted a half holiday on Saturday, after 1:30 p. m., they had added a half hour to each day's work the rest of the week by reducing the lunch period from one hour to a half hour, thus placing the men on a 9½ hour work day basis five days of the week.

The chauffeurs and drivers demanded a maximum wage of $40 a week and the helpers wanted a maximum of $38 a week. Coyne said that a majority of the men were satisfied with the terms of settlement.

Employes to Name Directors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The employes of Proctor and Gamble next Friday will elect three of their number to the board of directors of the company. Five employes will be nominated in primaries in each of the three plants at Ivorydale (Cincinnati), Kansas City and Staten Island. From these fifteen the three directors will be selected. A considerable number of employes are owners of stock.

PRINTERS' CONVENTION OPENS HERE TOMORROW

United Typothetae of America to Hold 34th Annual Session at Hotel Statler.

The United Typothetae of America, a national organization of employing printers, will open its thirty-fourth annual convention at Hotel Statler tomorrow morning. The convention will be in the first-floor dining room, and exhibits will be on the second floor. The convention will continue through Wednesday.

Labor conditions and the paper problem, in the branches of news print, book and printing paper, will be discussed. Because the business before the convention is considered unusually important, social and entertainment features have been eliminated from the program, except that a theater party will be given Tuesday night at the Orpheum.

At the opening session at 9 a. m. tomorrow, William Green of New York, president of the national organization, will respond to an address of welcome by Mayor Kiel. The order of business will then be taken up immediately.

Resolution to Be Offered.

A resolution will be offered by representatives of the Ben Franklin Club of St. Louis, proposing to amend the constitution and by-laws so as to take the United Typothetae, as a body, out of all labor matters, so far as concerns any tendency to obligate the entire body by contracts made by any one group.

Earl R. Britt, floor leader of the St. Louis delegation, said the United Typothetae had been known as an educational organization, and that many members feel that labor matters should not be referred to it, but should be handled by the Printers' League of America and the Employing Printers' Association of America.

Britt said the United Typothetae had its open shop and closed shop divisions, the latter containing a minority of the membership. The closed shop division, meeting in New York last year, passed a resolution favoring a 44-hour working week. The open shop division adopted a resolution opposing any shortening of the week, or "other action which will operate in decreasing production." The United Typothetae, as a whole, then passed a resolution similar to that of the open shop division. However, Britt said, the impression has gone out that the United Typothetae voted to favor a 44-hour week.

Printing to Be Exhibited.

One of the displays will be that of printing, owned by the American Institute of Graphic Arts, and composed of more than 1800 items from 108 forms located in all parts of the country. This is typically an American display, and shows the possibilities of the American printing industry.

Another display will be 50 pieces of movable metal type, bearing Chinese characters. A part of the first font of movable type ever made is one of the features of this display. It is loaned by the American Museum of Natural History, and is part of the historical section of the exhibit, which contains a collection of specimens assembled by the librarian of the American Type Foundry Co., tracing the evolution of the book from the earliest written records, through different forms, clay tablets, papyri, palm-leaf books, parchment rolls, block printed volumes, down to the highly finished products of the present day—modern books, magazines, catalogues, booklets, folders, typographical prints, display card, stationery, calenders, labels, wrappers, mats, advertisements, circulars, posters and color printing.

The United Typothetae is spending $400,000 in educational work, and has established three schools, the Indianapolis Technical School, maintained by the organization, and branches at Harvary University and Carnegie Institute.

A conference of field men will be conducted by Don V. Gerking, Assistant Secretary, in charge of the field force. Gerking was formerly editor of the Lebanon, (Ill.) Advertiser, and is well known in St. Louis.

MILK DRIVER KILLED WHEN WAGON OVERTURNS IN STREET

Man's Neck Broken When Wheels Go in Rut; Leaves Wife and Three Children.

Earl Hamilton, 45 years old, of 1434 Temple place, driver of a milk wagon for the St. Louis Dairy Co., was killed at 4:30 a. m. yesterday when his wagon was overturned at Valley avenue and Hanley road, University City.

It is supposed that as the wagon tipped, when the wheels on one side dropped into a depression, he leaped and was caught under the wagon. His neck was broken. The horses did not run.

Mrs. Nellie Small of 520 Valley avenue notified the Clayton authorities. The body was taken to the Clayton courthouse, where a Coroner's verdict of accident was returned. Hamilton is survived by his wife and three children.

MAN SEEKS TO CHANGE NAME

Rabenovitz Might Be Taken for Bolshevik, He Says; Wants to Be Raben.

A petition for change of name was filed yesterday by Ben Rabenovitz, who wants to be legally known as Ben Raben. He says that his present name subjects him to ridicule and causes people to class him as a believer in Bolshevism, which, he says, he is not.

He also objects to the name on the ground that it might hamper him in business in which he is about to engage.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong—According to Dr. Lewis

Guarantee to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Used at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription, and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes, which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long-distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician, to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time, in many instances, or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by the leading druggists, including the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson stores.

BAND OF 250 PIECES PLAYS THIS MORNING

Free Concert at Municipal Theater by Members of Musicians' Union.

A free concert by a band of 250 pieces will be given at 10:30 this morning at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park, in celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association.

The band will be composed of members of the organization, and its president, Frank Gecks, will serve as director. The morning hour was chosen because many of the musicians are engaged at theaters in the afternoon and evening. The program is announced as follows:

March, "Semper Fidelis".......Sousa
Overture to "Tannhauser"....Wagner
"Reverie" .... Schumann
Coronation March from "The Prophet" .... Meyerbeer
Selections for cornet and trumpets, "The Chapel" and "The Lord's Day"............ Kreutzer
Selections from "Carmen"......Bizet
Slavonic Rhapsody....... Friedeman
March, "Stars and Stripes".....Sousa
"The Star Spangled Banner."

Since its organization 35 years ago, the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association has grown to a membership of nearly 1300 men and women, and its headquarters, the Musicians' Club, at 3535 Pine street, has become one of the musical centers of the city.

MINISTERS ASKED TO AID SAFETY COUNCIL CRUSADE

Citizens to Be Urged to Cross Streets Only at Points on Corners.

Today opens a week's campaign of the St. Louis branch of the National Safety Council designed to eliminate the practice of pedestrians in crossing streets at points other than corner crossings. This practice is termed "jay walking."

Teachers in the city and parochial schools have been instructed to talk to pupils on the subject. Signs are being displayed on downtown electric poles, on automobiles, in street cars and in store windows. Ministers have been asked to give caution from their pulpits today. Many of the persons injured in the city by automobiles are hurt while "jay-walking."

CASH REGISTER, WOMAN CLERK ON EAST SIDE MOTOR GROCERY

A motor grocery is being operated in East St. Louis by labor organizations, which also operate two groceries and meat markets.

The motor grocery is a two-ton truck with a body whose interior is fitted up much like an ordinary grocery. Merchandise is displayed on shelves and in showcases. There is a cash register. The grocer is accompanied by a woman clerk, a member of the clerks' union, who goes from house to house inviting customers to visit the new type of grocery.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

BRAZIL MUST BE SPELLED "BRASIL" ON CURRENCY

Note Issued by First National Bank of Brazil, Ind., Causes Confusion.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 21.—The exhibition of a $10 United States bank note with the words "First National Bank of Brazil," showing prominently on it has just led to a discussion in the Chamber of Deputies here as to the wisdom of having Brazilian national currency printed in the United States, as is now done.

The note was issued by a national bank of Brazil, Ind., but some of the Deputies evidently were not aware that such a city existed.

Deputy Frontin remarked that as the word Brazil on the note was spelled with a "z," it was one more reason why the Brasilian people should write the name of their own country correctly by spelling it with an "s" to avoid confusion.

Some time ago the Minister of Finance issued an order that all national currency printed in this country should have the name spelled "Brasil," which he declared was correct.

GARBAGE SHIPMENTS HAMPERED

A complaint by Arthur Stoehr, president of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association, that garbage collection in South St. Louis has not been prompt lately will be investigated, Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert said yesterday.

Talbert added that he thought it would be found that any imperfect service was due to the tardiness of the railroads in supplying cars for the reception of garbage for shipment to the hog farm near Caseyville, Ill.

11,300 Attend "Y" Entertainments.

During the past month 11,300 persons attended the outdoor moving picture entertainments given by the industrial commission of the St. Louis Y. M. C. A. Entertainment centers have been established at Second and Victor streets, Shaw and Daggert avenues, Columbus Square and Kingdom House. The pictures deal with health problems, "safety first" and educational matters, as well as comedy. The home visiting secretary of the Y. M. C. A. visited the homes of 110 foreign born residents representing nine different nationalities.

Olive and Locust From Ninth to Tenth

Autumn Exhibition and Sale Begins Monday

—Featuring Correct Attire for the V. P. Ball

THE time has arrived when we can present a complete selection of the authoritative modes for Fall and Winter, 1920. Thousands of women have awaited this occasion. It is to be an occasion which was well worth waiting for—more interesting than ever before. We have planned a Fashion Exhibition with Living Models, to be held in the Music Hall as one of the feature attractions. Beautiful Gowns for the V. P. Ball will be shown—Wraps, Suits, Furs, Infants', Children's and Misses' Outer Apparel, Women's Undergarments; in fact, every article she will wear from the beautiful Millinery to the tips of her dainty Shoes will be on exhibition and sale, and most interestingly displayed. Furthermore, everything shown will possess that something which makes it doubly desirable—Vandervoort Quality.

Items of Interest

Mr. Harbison Says:

I have been about the store and have seen such a variety of exquisite materials, likewise such an artistic array of trimmings which have inspired me with many ideas for your Winter wardrobe and your V. P. Ball Gown. My shops are in full running order, prepared to fill all the demands you may have.

Mr. Harbison's Shops—Eighth Floor.

Miss Collins Says:

I have found such wonderful satins and woolen goods in the Vandervoort Shops, that I am ready to lay before you Dame Fashion's innermost secrets concerning the street frock, the dinner gown, the tailleur, or the ball gown, which I will fashion in such a manner from these materials as will please the most fastidious of women.

Miss Collins' Shops—Eighth Floor.

Soft, Lustrous Satins Unfold Their Shining Lengths

Bolts and bolts of soft, lustrous Satins are unfolding in their shining lengths the message that Fall is here and are begging to answer the plea of every young miss, debutante or matron who needs must add to her wardrobe a new dance or afternoon frock. They are lovelier, silkier and more wonderful than ever before, and the colorings are truly exquisite. Charmeuse, kitten's-ear crepe, imported metal novelties on satin and crepe foundations, plain and printed pussy willows, crepe de chines, duvetyn, chiffon velvet and chinchilla satin have passed before Dame Fashion's scrutinizing gaze and are yearning to be made into frocks, suits or coats.

Silk Shop—Second Floor.

For That Wool Frock—

That chic street Frock you know your seamstress can copy, that smart and trigly tailored suit you have set your heart upon or that soft, big, wrappy coat, must all be fashioned from the best of materials. Have you seen our wool crepe de chines, frams, serges, Poiret twill, tricotines, broadcloths, soft-surface velours, duvet-de-laines, tweeds, homespun plaids, checked and striped suitings, veldyne, cashmyrtines, Orlanda, Chatoyant, silk and cashmere duvetyne and embroidered patterns?

Wool Goods Shop—Second Floor.

Bags—for the Dance

"My dear, isn't that Vanity Bag attractive?" you whisper as she passes across the dance floor. It is made of satin and ostrich feathers, topped by little garlands of rosebuds. Around the top is a frill of silver lace and silver cord handle. As she swings it back and forth you can see a tiny mirror in the bottom, and when she opens it you see a soft silver cloth lining. And it matches her feather fan exactly. "Cunning," you whisper to your partner; but away back in your thoughts you know you will have one at once.

Bag Shop—First Floor.

Ostrich Feather Fans

Her face dimpled into a lovely smile—her eyes snapped fire and merriment as she coyly placed before her face the lovely feather fan which so charmingly offset her golden curly hair. What a beautiful figure she made!—how many admiring glances were directed toward her! The fan blended perfectly with her Alice-blue gown, and anyone would agree that it "just simply made" the costume. We have many other fans in all the evening shades in different sizes and styles—don't go to the formals this Winter without one.

Fan Shop—First Floor.

Her Jeweled Comb

—tightly held in its grasp, her coal black wavy locks, and added that extra touch to her bearing which so strongly demanded the admiration of all her friends. It emphasized the beauty of her hair and marked her as one of those women who knows how and when to add those extra touches which give a well dressed look. We have lovely jeweled and plain combs in odd and attractive shapes and all different sizes—which will be your crowning glory at the V. P. Ball!

Authentic Fall Modes

for Women and Misses

—present a delightful Fashion Pageant here and show the cleverness and art of both American and French designers. The apparel has been discriminately chosen and offers a noteworthy collection of street, afternoon and evening costumes.

New Frocks and Gowns

Cloth Trotteurs and Silk Street Frocks follow the vogue of slender lines and long trim bodices—but do not resist being lavish with embroidery, beading and all the other enlivening trimming devices known to clever designers. Bouffancy and graceful drapings are reserved for afternoon, dinner and evening gowns, which depict Autumn modes with charming individuality.

Costume Salon—Third Floor.

New Suits

The long, slim lines of Autumn Suits assembled here are those to which every woman aspires—and which Paris smiles upon. Twill tailleurs and soft-surfaced Suits for more dressy occasions proclaim this fact, showing Coats that are variable—Russian, straightline or slightly flaring. Gilets of embroidery and smart furs enhance their very evident charm of design. Draped skirts and three-piece models are interesting.

Suit Shop—Third Floor.

New Wraps

Luxurious fabrics form the very distinctive Coats of Autumn, which are characterized by their loose and wrappy lines, voluminous collars, bloused backs or waistline capes, rich embroidery and beautiful fur trimming. Stately Evening Wraps of Panne velvet show draped vogue modes, the new puffed shirring, chin-chin collars—and a delightful use of fur.

Coat Shop—Third Floor.

New Furs

Fur Wraps are quite royal personages in the fashion realm this year. With their huge cape-like collars, they luxuriously envelop one in beauty and warmth. Jaunty short Coats are favorites—and then there are the graceful stoles, smart scarfs and chic chokers that enrich immeasurably the Autumn suit or frock. All of these are most admirably represented in the Fur Shop—Third Floor.

New Blouses

Autumn Blouses create a treasure trove of loveliness here—with their endless variety of modes and lovely hues. Balkan, Russian tie-on and tucked-in models, fashioned of crepe Georgette, satin, duvetyn and crepe de chine, vie in smartness and gay embellishment, taking original ornamentations of suede, Chinese money and other metallic effects—colored and iridescent beads and embroidery.

Blouse Shop—Third Floor.

New Skirts

New plaids and new plaiting arrangements announce the Autumn Skirts. Plaids more somber than those of Spring—whose warm Autumnal tones are now and then given a dashing effect with a brighter color. Plaits form clever groups or gather in box or knife styles. Leather belts are chic. Faille and Crepe de Chine Skirts come in embroidered or plaited models.

Skirt Shop—Third Floor.

New Misses' Apparel

Each Frock, Suit and Coat in the Misses' Shop seems to have been individually designed for some charming youthful wearer. Modes are similar to matrons'—with an added dash, piquancy and youthfulness. Smart attire for school and college wear is a special feature.

Misses' Shop—Third Floor.

Her Gloves—

All femininity—attention! They are here—the French Kid Gloves for which you have been so impatiently waiting. All the lovely Fall shades are represented—there isn't a costume you have, for which you cannot buy Gloves. For instance—there are the two-clasp P. K. Kid Gloves, in white, black, brown, tan, mode and gray, in either self or contrasting embroidery. Then there are the two-clasp P. K. Suede Gloves in all the mode shades. And, sh-sh! They are only $4.85 a pair. You had better come early.

Glove Shop—First Floor.

Her Hosiery—

Oh, those silken bits below the new Fall suit or frock—you just can't neglect them. They must be sheer, well-fashioned and trim fitting if they would give the ankle slender, graceful lines. We have your size in any style you desire and will gladly show you just what you want for the V. P. Ball.

Hosiery Shop—First Floor.

Trimmings for the Gown

Much curiosity and anxiety is always expressed in planning THE GOWN—the creation in which you will make your debut—or in which you will attend the ball. Shop after shop is visited, in order to find just that becoming touch which will "make the gown" You are looking for something different—something distinctive. You have the cloth for the foundation—but what about the rest? Have you seen the exquisite bodices and panels of cut jet beads—or of opalescence or sequins which could so easily solve your problem? Ask to see them in the

EXPANSION PLANNED BY SOCIAL AGENCIES

Constructive Program Discussed by Central Council at C. of C. Offices.

The formulation of a constructive program, the raising of a budget large enough to carry out the program, and the securing of a secretary on full time, are the three items of endeavor outlined by the executive committee of the Central Council of Social Agencies at a meeting yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce offices.

For the past two years the Council's budget has been small, made up from $10 dues from agency members. The secretary of the Charities Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has served, during his spare time, as secretary of the Council, but the conviction has been growing that if the Council is to render a maximum service, it must have its own headquarters and its own executive staff of workers.

The aim of the Council in the future, according to the sentiment expressed at the meeting, will include not only work among the charities but will also look toward a larger work for the welfare of the entire community. It was pointed out that some of the Council's effort might be directed:

Along legislative lines, both city and State.

Toward the establishment of a centralized purchasing bureau, which will result in a saving to all of the charitable institutions in the city in the purchasing of their supplies.

Toward the establishment of the Confidential Exchange at the Council's headquarters.

Toward work pertaining to public health, including a careful watch of the milk supply, proper housing facilities, survey of the Health Department, mid-wife situation, cheap lodging houses, and many others.

Toward the developing of closer co-operative relations between agencies and the bringing of charitable institutions to a better understanding of what other agencies are doing.

Toward the establishing of uniform records and standards in institutions doing the same type of service.

Toward the maintenance of a publicity bureau so that contributions and the public at large will know what worthy agencies are doing.

A special committee was appointed to formulate a program. The members of the committee are Oscar Leonard, chairman; J. Lionberger Davis, Miss Florence Van Sickler, C. M. Hubbard, Mrs. Frank V. Hammar, Mrs. Theodore Benoist, Mrs. Sidney Schwab and Mrs. Henry Scott.

Mrs. Charles Scarritt was chosen chairman of the Committee on Municipal Social Service and Mrs. John Haskell, president of the Visiting Nurses' Association, chairman of the Committee on Health.

The new officers of the Central Council for the year 1920-21 are: Mrs. Harry January, chairman; Rev. George Wales King, first vice chairman; Rev. John W. Day, second vice chairman; Maurice Dubin, treasurer; Scott R. De Kins, secretary; C. M. Hubbard, Dr. George B. Mangold and Rev. J. J. Butler, delegates-at-large.

MUNICIPAL EXPERTS TO MEET

Four-Day Session at Planters Hotel Will Start Oct. 12.

Municipal engineers and Mayors from cities and towns throughout the United States will attend the twenty-fifth annual session of the American Society for Municipal Improvements at the Planters Hotel, Oct. 12-15.

The society's purpose is to improve municipal conditions. Some of the subjects of discussion include street lighting, sanitation, sewerage, paving, disposal of garbage and similar city problems. The St. Louis phases of these problems will be presented at each session by a St. Louis engineer.

Machinery and apparatus in common use among municipalities will be exhibited in the south dining room of the hotel. The St. Louis Engineers' Club will present a play, "Every Engineer." Delegates will be taken for an automobile ride over the city and a river trip to the Chain of Rocks to inspect the city waterworks.

DECORATION OF BUILDINGS ASKED FOR SPANISH-AMERICAN MEET

Encampment of Veterans Starts Tonight—Parade on Wednesday and Trip to Barracks.

A request that business houses be decorated for the twenty-second national encampment of Spanish-American war veterans, which will open at the Planters' Hotel tonight, and particularly along the route of the parade to be given Wednesday, is contained in a letter received yesterday by Mayor Kiel from James W. Castain, secretary of the National encampment.

The parade will be from Twelfth and Market streets to Washington, to Broadway, to Market, to Fourth and back to Washington. Veterans of the army and navy of past wars will march. After the parade they will go on a steamboat to Jefferson Barracks, where they will witness a dress parade and have supper.

Among the programmed speakers are Frank D'Olier, commander-in-chief of the American Legion; Daniel M. Paul, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.; Frank Galenne of the United Confederate Veterans, and Gov. Gardner.

The program for the convention includes visits to various places of interest in the city. The closing session will be Thursday morning, and the delegates will have a sightseeing trip in the afternoon.

Public Opinion

It makes and unmakes men and women—no man, no institution, no dynasty can stand against it.

When the Roman Empire ruled the world, public opinion said whether the fallen gladiator should live or die. Thumbs down, he died; thumbs up, he lived.

Public opinion made it possible for PIGGLY WIGGLY to grow from one store to 450 stores in less than three years.

Public opinion is making it possible for St. Louis PIGGLY WIGGLY stores to sell a million dollars this quarter.

8-HOUR DAY FOR FIREMEN FAVORED BY 20,000 VOTERS

Petition for Referendum Vote in November, Bearing That Number of Signatures, to Be Filed.

PAYROLL INCREASE ABOUT $1,000,000

Men Now on Duty 48 Hours, Followed by 24-Hour Lay-Off—Support of Charter Claimed.

A petition bearing the signatures of 20,000 voters, asking that a proposition to give city firemen an eight-hour working day be submitted to a referendum vote at the general election Nov. 2, will be filed this week with the Board of Election Commissioners. Firemen now work 48 hours and are off 24 hours. In addition to the "off time" they have three hours in the 48-hour period for lunch. Their pay is $140 a month.

Fire Captain John J. Manion, president of the City Firemen's Union, said that only 7500 signatures were necessary under the law requiring the names of 5 per cent of those who voted at the last mayoralty election. Less than 130,000 votes were cast at that election.

Capt. Manion said that he did not know how much of an additional appropriation would be needed to finance the new system if it is approved by the voters. Hhere are 816 firemen employed by the city, and Comptroller Nolte estimated that at least $1,000,000 annually in excess of the present Fire Department pay roll will be required. He said that more than 500 additional firemen would have to be employed.

The union, Capt. Manion said, had ogtainedr legal advice that firemen should be classified as skilled workmen; and he pointed out that the charter provides that, "except in emergencies," all mechanics and skilled laborers employed by the city shall work only eight hours a day.

Recently when members of the Firemen's Union threatened to strike unless their pay should be increased, Mayor Kiel assured them that he would do all in his power to arrange a working schedule which would enable the firemen to spend more of their time at home with their families. A 12-hour shift was suggested, but this was found to be impracticable because of added expense. An effort was then made to arrange a 24-hour shift, but this was met with the same objection.

The firemen recently received an increase of 10 per cent in their salaries. They had been holding out for a 16 per cent increase.

WARRANTS CHARGE TAKING STOLEN AUTO FROM STATE

One of East St. Louisans Arrested Had Sold Truck Load of Merchandise for $150.

Federal warrants under the Dyer act punishing as a felony transportation of stolen automobiles from one State to another were issued yesterday against Max Greenberg, 19, and his brother, Sam, 22, of 33 North Fourteenth street, East St. Louis.

An automobile found in the rear of a store which the Greenbergs conduct at the East St. Louis address has been identified as that of Ralph Sturgeon of Normandy, stolen July 1 from the vicinity of Broadway and Olive street.

The license number of the car was the same as that given to the police as the license number of a car which early Friday delivered 89 pairs of women's shoes and other merchandise to the store of Philip Silverstein at 4028 North Newstead avenue.

Silverstein has identified Max Greenberg as the man to whom he paid $150 for the merchandise, which is valued at $1500. A warrant charging receipt of goods stolen from interstate shipments has been issued against Silverstein. Chief of Police O'Brien and Chief of Detectives Hannegan visited the store just after the departure of the automobile upon alarm by a resident of their home neighborhood.

The regular monthly meetings of the Central W. C. T. U., which were discontinued during the summer, will be resumed tomorrow afternoon at St. John's M. E. Church, King's Highway and Washington avenue. Plans for a membership campaign to promote a bone dry enforcement law, each member secured being pledged to vote for a Missouri bone dry law, will be made. A state convention will be held in Kansas City October 5 to 7.

Man Reinstated After 13 Months.

Ewald Luettscher, who was discharged as check weighman at the Shiloh mine of the Southern Coal and Mining Co., for his connection with the insurgent miners' strike 13 months ago, has just been reinstated and will receive back pay for the time lost. Luettscher made an appeal to President Farrington of the Illinois United Mine Workers on the grounds that his discharge was an injustice and the miner's head finally secured his reinstatement.

LEADERS VEXED IN NORTH DAKOTA BY POLITICAL MIXUP

Republicans and Democrats in Independent Voters' Association Opposing Nonpartisan League.

FIGHT OVER STATE OFFICES IS BITTER

Gov. Frazier on the Republican Ticket and Democratic Candidate May Benefit; Contest for Funds.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1920.)

FARGO, N. D., Sept. 11.—Politically speaking, North Dakota is a paradox. Nothing like it will be found anywhere else in the Union. Here old-line Democrats and old-line Republicans, conservatives all, have formed a combination known as the Independent Voters' Association, the sole object of which is to break the Nonpartisan League's hold on North Dakota.

The fight over State offices is bitter. Neither side cares a whole lot about Harding or Cox. National politics is talked about only as it relates to the use of funds to boost State offices and therein lies the chance for blundering.

The Nonpartisan League doesn't have as many State offices as it used to have and the Independent Voters' Association is this time determined to wrest control from the Nonpartisan League even if it means electing a Democrat—J. F. T. O'Connor—Governor, to succeed Gov. Frazier, the Nonpartisan League candidate.

Names Means Little.

The names Republican and Democrat mean little hereabouts. The Independent Voters' Association pledged itself to support Democrats if in the Republican primaries nominations on the regular Republican were won by Nonpartisan Leaguers.

Thus, because Gov. Frazier's name appears on the ballot as the successful Republican nominee in the primaries doesn't mean that he will get the old-line Republican vote.

Then there are plenty of names in the Independent column, put there by the Nonpartisan League, men who lost the regular Republican nominations and by Independent Voters' Association men who were beaten for the regular Republican nominations.

Thus the voter in North Dakota will have to scratch his ballot considerably to express his preference.

All this affects Senator Harding indirectly, for the Nonpartisan League leaders say they are the legally elected Republican State Central Committee and as such are entitled to funds from the National Committee just like any other State committee.

Voters' Association.

On the other hand, the Independent Voters' Association claims to be the real offspring of Republicanism in this State, even though they constitute an insurgent movement. They want recognition by the National Republican Committee.

It is true that the regular Republican State Central Committee indorsed Harding and Coolidge, but this, it is argued, was merely making the record straight for political "deviltry" later if the Republican national organization dared to recognize any other organization as the branch of the Republican National Committee. For the Nonpartisan Leaguers don't want to see any money given to the Independent Voters' Association. The argument is that the latter would use it for State purposes and that among those purposes is the effort to elect a Democrat, J. F. T. O'Connor, Governor in opposition to Gov. Frazier.

For the moment the Nonpartisan League leaders and their newspapers are displaying Gov. Cox's speeches about Republican slush funds. Moreover, they are warmly praising the Ohio Governor's references to "big business" and the newspapers which are fighting the Nonpartisan League are, unintentionally, perhaps, helping Cox by insisting that his speeches are Nonpartisan League doctrine. Of course, there are two ways of looking at that, too, for the foes of the Nonpartisan League think they have the upper hand this year and that they are delivering a blow at Cox at the same time that they are fighting the radicals.

Democrats Pleased.

Still, the Democratic national leaders here are pleased both by the kind of denunciation given Cox and the praise bestowed by Nonpartisan League newspapers. The friends of Cox believe the Nonpartisan League is still the dominant political force in this State, and say that whoever gets the league's support will win the electorial vote of North Dakota.

Just now it looks as if the Nonpartisan League was leaning toward Cox, though whether the purpose is to compel the Republican National Committee to send funds here to the Nonpartisan League's membership on the Republican State Central Committee or whether, as so many Democrats think, it is the natural affiliation of radicals with Cox a closer friend of the Nonpartisan League doctrine than is Harding's philosophy of Government, is difficult to conjecture.

Even the natives profess inability to forecast just what the Nonpartisan League will do this year. The leaders of the Nonpartisan League told the writer the State would go for Harding unless the Republican National Committee "blundered," which is another way of saying that any funds sent to North Dakota must be dispensed by the regular Republican State Central Committee, which is controlled by the league, or there will be a resentment vote against Harding which, together with the Democratic strength, would shift the electorial vote to Cox.

Inside the Democratic organization are two wings, both united on the subject of Cox, but one less friendly than the other to the Nonpartisan League. It simply means that conservatives and radicals have bored within all organizations in North Dakota and managed to confuse the issues.

In a nutshell, the best information available from friends of Gov. Cox is that if the Non-Partisan League isn't offended by the Republican National Committee, the State will go for Harding.

GROCERY MANAGER HELD UP IN STORE, $133.52 TAKEN

Presumed Customer Produces Revolver and Takes Money From Register.

A young man entered a Kroger grocery at 4200 Ashland avenue, at 8:30 a. m. yesterday, laid two nickels on the counter, and asked the manager, Fred Zimmerman, to give him a loaf of bread. Zimmerman turned his back to get the bread, and on facing the customer again found himself covered with a revolver.

While the manager held his hands in the air the robber leaned over the counter and took $133.52 from the cash register. Then he backed out of the store, ran across a vacant lot and disappeared. Neighbors saw him throw something away in a yard at 3102 Ashland avenue, and policemen found a loaded revolver.

Zimmerman said the thief was about 25 years old; that he had "squinty" eyes and that he was coatless, with shirt sleeves rolled up and his shirt collar turned in at the neck.

LOCKS MAY RIVAL THOSE AT PANAMA

Structures 600 Feet Long and 110 Wide Planned for Illinois Waterway.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Locks to be constructed on the Illinois waterway will be of the same width as those on the Panama Canal, William L. Sackett, superintendent of Illinois waterways, announced here today. They are to be 600 feet long and 110 feet wide, he said.

The waterway is designed to connect the Great Lakes with the inland navigable waters of the Middle West. This is sought through improvement of the Des Plaines and Illinois Rivers from Lockport to Utica.

"Under the direction of M. G. Barnes, chief engineer, who made the preliminary designs of the locks of the Panama Canal and who has been identified with waterway construction for many years, designs for one lock have been completed and specifications are ready for contractors," said Superintendent Sackett. "Bids will be asked immediately on this work. Designs for additional structures at other points are being developed rapidly, and it may be possible to advertise for one or two more contracts within sixty days.

Fleets Can Be Utilized.

"These locks will meet demands for many years. They will permit of navigation in fleets of barges carrying freight that would require six to eight average trains. The water will permit of a freight rate at least one-half less than rail and, contrary to common belief, such shipments will make better time than on the railroads.

"Work will start in the lower portions of the rivers to be improved, so that navigation already on the Illinois River can push on inland toward Chicago.

"Negotiations have been in progress for right of way for several weeks. Some contracts for purchases have been made without resort to condemnation proceedings, and it is the belief of the officers directing the work that enough right of way can be obtained at reasonable figures for immediate requirements while condemnation of other tracts can be obtained by court action.

"Barge lines are already operating on the Illinois River and developing a large water traffic. One leading manufacturing plant at Peoria is now shipping cargoes of molasses from New Orleans, fleets carrying about 2,000,000-gallon cargoes. Other shipments of merchandise, grain, machinery and produce are being made regularly in connection with the Government barges on the Mississippi through to New Orleans.

Manufacturers Are Waiting.

"Chicago is losing the advantages of this opportunity, and the construction of the Illinois project is necessary to connect with the lake the 15,000 miles of inland navigable waters of the Middle West. In view of the high rail rates and inability of the railroads to handle business, manufacturers everywhere are urging the early completion of the waterway and with the first sign of dirt flying many of them announce they will order fleets of boats to go into service at the earliest date the waterway will be available.

"The State has a well-defined plan for terminal facilities in Chicago, the need of which is admitted, especially in view of the construction of the Illinois project and the opening of the St. Lawrence for inland navigation to Chicago, which is bound to come. To carry out its plans the State has adopted a policy to fight all encroachments hereafter attempted on the Chicago River or lakes within territory of Chicago that will be required in the future for handling of water traffic and terminals for boats that will use them."

Gas Company Wants Higher Rate.

The St. Clair County Gas and Electric Co. has made application to the Illinois Utilities Commission for an increased gas rate in Belleville. This was made known at a hearing in Belleville to hear complaints. Attorney Thomas Gillespie of the company announced that the company wants an increase to $1.35 per 1000 feet from $1.

LOSES WHISKY IN VACATION

Sigmund Baer Returns to Find Basement Plundered.

Sigmund Baer, 5314 Waterman avenue, secretary of a department store company, yesterday reported to the police that some time between June 10 and Friday, when the family returned from a vacation, 18 quarts of whisky were stolen from the basement of his home.

Baer said the whisky was covered by insurance. During the absence of the family, he said, interior decorators were at work in the house. Baer said he did not want any arrests made.

Sues Swift & Co. for $100,000.

A damage suit for $100,000 was brought in Federal Court yesterday against Swift & Co. by David Schumacher, formerly an employe of the company at its Papin street plant. Schumacher asks $50,000 for an injury suffered last Oct. 28, and $50,000 on a charge that company physicians mistreated his injury so that decay of the bone in his leg has developed.

vails about the woman vote. Women have never voted for presidential electors before. In the rural districts it is doubted whether the Germans and Russians and other foreigners will allow their wives to vote as they have always been more or less hostile to general suffrage. Also, many of the women in the country will not be able to travel to the polls if their husbands want to go away to vote.

The Democrats here feel that Cox will get the bulk of the rural vote and the majority of masculine votes in the State, but that the towns and cities will go for Harding and that the city women will be able to get to the polls and double the Republican vote. Here's one State where the Democrats would have preferred to see the suffrage amendment go unratified until after the election though some of their number insist that the campaign on the League of Nations will bring out the feminine vote. The inclination of the State is toward Harding.

Delegates from every county in the state are expected to attend the statewide convention of the Missouri Good Roads Federation to be held at the American Theater Thursday and Friday. Arrangements are being made by local committees to take care of 1200 visitors.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the proposed $60,000,000 good roads constitutional amendment and mature plans for a smashing drive in behalf of the improvement. The St. Louis campaign was inaugurated last week with a luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association but the boosters here will be well represented at the State gathering.

The delegates who are coming to St. Louis are members of Federation committees actively at work for the highway issue in each of the 16 congressional districts. To stimulate attendance at the convention an honor flag is to be given to the district sending the largest number of deelgates to St. Louis and another hoonr flag to the county having the biggest representation.

The first session will take place Thursday at 10 a. m. Following the invocation, Mayor Kiel will welcome the delegates and Gov. Gardner will respond in behalf of the State. Harry B. Hawes, president of the Road Federation, will outline the purposes of the campaign, following which the chairman of the larger committees will give a brief resume of the scope of each sub-division. Many Addresses Scheduled.

The program Friday calls for an address by M. V. Carroll of Sedalia, and brief talks by the following: Col. John A. Laird for the American Legion; Mrs. R. A. Scarborough, Warrensburg, State Commeorcial Clubs, and Walter S. Dickey, Missouri Manufacturers' Association. The rural mail carriers and county judges are also to be represented by speakers who will be selected later.

Plans for raising $75,000 in St. Louis for educational work in behalf of Amendment No. 6, are going rapidly forward. Thousands of medallions at $2 each have already been sold to automobile owners.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY FAIR OPENS AT CREVE COEUR PARK THURSDAY

Racing Program Will Be Held Each Day—Fair Closes Monday.

The twenty-first annual St. Louis County Fair will be held at Upper Creve Coeur Lake Park, opening next Thursday and closing the following Monday. The fair grounds will open at 7 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. each day.

Runaway Girl Still Sought.

A police search for Theresa Lasch, 16 years old, daughter of Mrs. Rose Lasch, 2019 Arsenal street, who left home Sept. 4 while her mother was out, has so far been unsuccessful. Theresa was seen watching the Labor day parade at Eighth street and Washington avenue Monday morning by a friend who did not know she had run away. She wore a brown hat, blue sweater and skirt, brown shoes and white stockings. She attempted to run away Aug. 28, but was caught on North Broadway by the Baden police.

Men of Third Division to Meet.

A meeting of former members of the Third Division will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Barr Branch Library, Lafayette and Jefferson avenues, to form a larger local branch of the National Third Division Society.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The calonite powder and the hot water have just dissolved them. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and soft they will not come out, while the simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get calonite powder at any drug store and if you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.

NEW GOLD TO TEST ACTUAL AUTUMN CREDIT POSITION

Banking Position Will Be Strengthened by Metal Europe Is to Send.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Wall street invariably expects some thorough-going change in the financial position when the business community gets to work after Labor day, and the expectation is almost invariably disappointed. So far as events have developed, it would seem to have been disappointed on this occasion also. The autumn season, it is true, has hardly begun. Tendencies which will govern the subsequent course of financial and industrial affairs may be at present merely in the formative stage, though destined to change the whole face of the situation later on. But the present week's market does not seem to have caught sight of them.

"The two predictions which were most frequently heard on Wall street at the end of August were that prices on the Stock Exchange would begin to recover the lost ground of midsummer—especially the railway shares—and that prices of commodities would respond to the new demands from consumers, after their long absence from the market. There has thus far been no sign of either movement. Railway shares, which last week gave some indication of a new and general upward movement, have this week practically ceased to move, and the occasional bidding-up of industrial stocks was evidently conducted under the same auspices, and with the same sensitiveness to a resultant stirring in the call-money market, as characterized the abortive movements of the same sort during the summer. Even the gradual recovery in railway bonds came to a dead halt.

Commodity Prices Fall.

"The present week's compilations of commodity prices show that in England the average had fallen 1¾ per cent during August, and 7 1-3 per cent since the high point of the spring, and that in this country it was down 4⅝ per cent for the month and nearly 14 per cent since February. But no signs of recovery have yet appeared; on the contrary, such commodities as cotton, corn, oats, sugar and coffee are lower now than at the end of August. The American Woolen Co. has made known the extent to which it is ready to meet changes which have occurred in conditions of trade since early spring, and it has done so by a cut of 15 to 25 per cent in prices. In Wall street the successful tender of the new French loan has excited natural interest, but the terms exacted were such as to emphasize the scarcity of capital and credit, and its prompt acceptance by the banking houses seemed not so much to inspire the market with hope for improvement in other bond issues, old and new, as to cause conjecture regarding the effect on other securities of the unexpected diversion of $100,000,000 investment money to that quarter.

"In due course there will undoubtedly be a return of activity and strength on the Stock Exchange and recovery in the price of many commodities. But the question when such a turn for the better can be anticipated is quite as dependent on the general position of capital and credit as it was three months ago. It is, therefore, reasonable to conclude that judgment of the immediate future must still be based on the visible indications of a change for better or worse as developments in the banking and money situation present them.

Await Effect of Gold.

"We shall have one test of the actual autumn position when the gold, now on the way from Europe or about to start from there, is delivered to our Federal Reserve. That this new reserve money will strengthen the banking position at a time when it needs strengthening, no one doubts; but it is carrying inference pretty far to assume that the resultant stronger position will be utilized promptly for relaxation of the precautions which were adopted through force of necessity last spring and for re-opening the facilities of credit to speculative borrowers.

BRITISH EXPORTS TO U. S. INCREASE; IMPORTS ARE LESS

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The terms of the French loan placed in New York, though high, are no worse than expected by those who perceived the risk France ran by leaving the negotiations until autumn. From the weakness of French exchange, which has now developed, it looks as though the rate has been supported pending the conclusion of the loan.

Interest in the impending Brussels economic conference increases as Europe's economic needs become widely appreciated. Opinions here as to your autumn outlook are more favorable by reason of your improved railway conditions, resulting from the recent Interstate Commerce Commission decision as to rates. The city is almost as apprehensive of the Governments making concessions to the coal miners as of the effects of a strike itself. The worst phase of all recent labor disputes has been the growing tendency towards diminished output following the award of higher wages. This inflicts a double economic loss. Latest figures show that the coal output for 33 weeks this year averages 4,566,000 tons against 5,520,000 tons in 1913, though more men are employed and wages are higher.

Getting Less From U. S.

The feature of the British trade returns for August is the decreased imports from the United States and increased exports to your country. Two import items alone, namely, bacon and cotton, show a reduction of about 14,000,000 pounds for the first eight months of the year. The total excess of imports over exports was 292,000,000 pounds, which some assert is balanced by "invisible exports" in the shape of freights. But this is probably over optimistic. We are still exporting considerable amounts to impecunious countries, but also, of late, more to affluent countries, including the East. In the former case long credits are granted, but in the latted cash payments are received. If only the threatened strike is settled, the feature of the markets here will be the great increase in capital issues.

New Inflation Started.

The weekly return of the public income and expenditure shows that to pay interest on its debt at the first of September, the Government increased its debt to the bank by £23,000,000, thus starting fresh inflation.

The Labor Committee on the cost of living, whose report was published the other day, accepts the orthodox opinion as to the quantity theory of money and prices. It realizes, however, that too rapid deflation is likely to cause unemployment and lower wages. The report has no constructive proposals, but suggests nationalization as a panacea, without defining the term.

Review of Week.

Rates to the leading European centers during the past week generally showed a heavy tone for various reasons. Italian exchange was directly influenced by the labor situation in that country, forcing the exchange rate on Italy to recede to the lowest range touched in several months. French exchange was also in supply at concessions, and it was insisted in some quarters that offerings were based on a belief that the loan placed on Thursday was smaller than had been expected and would cause purchase of dollars for French account. The weakness in German exchange, which was reflected in a decline in marks to 1.85 cents, indicated a falling off in speculative interest and there was liquidation of speculative holdings at times on a large scale. Sterling was quiet, but absence of inquiry was a factor in creating a heavy tone. There was a continued demand for sterling futures, end of December delivery being quoted at 7 cents premium over the spot price.

South American exchange was directed in its movements by cabled quotations. Brazil showed pronounced weakness, milreis declining in Rio Janeiro from around 20 cents to 17-10 cents. A new low record was made for exchange on Argentina, which declined to 120.20.

A feature of the market was the large dealings in exchange to countries of minor importance, a large volume of business being transacted, especially on Greece, Belgium and Austria. Spanish was under pressure yesterday, when pesetas sold at the new low of 14.65.

SELLING PRESSURE CAUSES DECLINES IN CURB ISSUES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Selling pressure against all the recent active issues was in evidence on the curb market today and declines ranging from fractions to more than a point were recorded. It was stated that there was a substantial increase in outside participation, selling orders being executed by many of the leading commission houses. Professional traders alos helped the downward tendency, offering various stocks where there were appearances of resistance, and as a result many inside supporting orders were withdrawn. Moderate recoveries were made at times, but the tone was heavy during the entire session.

General Asphalt was offered quite freely and broke more than a point, but rallied later on short covering. Indian Packing continued under pressure and sold down to a new low record. Allied Chemical and Dye, the new chemical merger, was offered freely following the publication of the details of the consolidation, and fell more than 2 points, but rallied slightly toward the end.

Oil shares generally were lower. Simms Petroleum was down a substantial fraction and small losses were established in many other independent issues. White Oil, after selling down nearly a point, rallied on covering by shorts. Skelly Oil and Merritt were exceptions to the general trend, being supported and holding steady to firm. Guffey-Gillespie was moderately active, but moved within narrow limits.

Some activity was shown in the low-priced mining shares, with price changes small. The higher-priced issues were comparatively quiet.

French 8s continue to be the prominent feature of the bond list, being in good demand and selling at another new high record.

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Very little happened in the abbreviated business week to affect the Wall street situation one way or the other. It has been a narrow trading market on the Stock Exchange with very irregular price changes, yet with operations for the rise in individual stocks turning out decidedly better than operations for the decline. From a professional viewpoint, it has been significant that where there has been any initiative at all it has been easier to get prices up than to get them down. This has seemed to indicate a change in the main tendency of things from what it was up to a month ago, the result of the prolonged and drastic liquidation culminating the middle of August and of the passing of stocks into stronger hands. Further proof has been afforded during the week that the money market is standing the strain of the crop-moving very well. The Government has been drawing down its balances as it always does on the approach of a tax-paying date, yet this demand along with the withdrawals by correspondents in the interior, has been met without any advance in rates. On the contrary, call money has renewed continuously at 7 per cent, and there has been a sufficient surplus from day to day to force the quotation on new loans down to 6 per cent. Time money is not coming out in quantity, still small amounts are constantly being placed at 8½ and 8¾ per cent, and this constitutes a distinct improvement over the situation as it stood up to a few weeks ago. We are in the midst of the crop-moving season and yet money conditions are more comfortable than they have been at any time this year. This is indicative of two things—first, that the restriction of credits in commercial lines has released enough slack to provide for a good part of the harvest requirements, and, second, that the remainder of these requirements is expected to be pretty well taken care of by the gold that has started flowing across the water. The effect of these gold receipts in connection mainly with the settlement of the Anglo-French loan, has not yet had time to be felt in the weekly bank statements. But by the close of next week some $20,000,000 more gold will have reached here from the other side, and then we shall begin to see additions to the gold reserve offsetting the expansion in currency issues and in discounts consequent upon the financing of the crop movement. In a word, credit curtailment plus gold imports has averted the autumn money crisis which so many were fearful of three months ago. The credit strain has not passed, but it is passing. There is no prospect in the immediate future of such an accession of funds for the Wall street market as to warrant much of an expansion in speculative enterprises. But the security market can very well feel satisfied with the assurance that it has gone through the worst of the credit tension, and that tight money and tight credit can no longer be used as arguments for liquidation of stocks.

Presidential Election.

From now on the presidential election will command more attention and be more of a factor in the market. The results of next Tuesday's voting in Maine are being awaited with special interest, as the Maine election is the first time-honored index of the outcome in November.

Labor Situation.

There is an ancient maxim which says that it does not do to sell stocks on strike news. In view of what happened a year ago, we may well believe that this applies quite as much to the modern day labor troubles as to those of long ago. The British coal strike, if it develops, will be a very serious test of the power or organized labor in that country to upset the existing industrial order. Yet, it is no more of a crisis than the great British railway strike of 1919, and this strike virtually failed because it antagonized the great mass of public sentiment. The English investment markets have been astonishingly calm all this week, and here undoubtedly is the safest guide to important opinion. The Italian labor disorders are perhaps more a matter of solicitude because they are less understood.

Industrial Readjustment.

The reaction and readjustment in industry generally has not yet run its course. It is simply a case of the security market doing what it always does and moving far ahead of outside changes, whether these are for the worse or for the better. Just as prices on the Stock Exchange began to fall last autumn six months before the downward turn began to show in general trade, so now it has begun to discount slowly, and cautiously and, perhaps, a like six months ahead, a period of business recovery.

In the meantime it is quite possible that there would be more weak spots in the commercial structure to be exposed. Always, moreover, a certain interval has to elapse before lowering of prices has its intended efect in stimulating the demand for goods. Such experiments as the American Woolen Co. is now trying in the way of price cutting will be watched eagerly. The rule is that customers are loathe to buy on a falling market. They are apt to hold off after the first reduction and see whether the decline will not go further. It is when evidence has been given that the bottom has been reached and prices have started on the up-grade that buying orders commence to pour in. The severe fall in commodity prices from the high of last spring is the first phase of the readjustment incident to credit deflation. The next phase is an interval of unsettlement and dullness, during which the new price levels are tried out and tested, and it is this second phase that the industries of the country are now entering. It must be gone through before improvement—that is to say, anything like a fresh advance—can be looked for.

$900,000,000 in Gold Bars Moved.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Nearly $900,000,000 in gold bars, said to be the largest amount of gold in any one place in the world today, was transferred from the subtreasury building to the new assay building, next door. Most of the gold was melted form English sovereigns and French 20 franc pieces.

GOVERNMENT REPORT ON CROPS RULES MARKET

Reduction in Spring Wheat Estimate Causes Buying—Record Corn Production.

Sharp reduction of the estimated volume of the Spring crop had much to do, during the past week, with bringing about higher prices in the wheat market.

Wheat buying on a large scale for the Eastern seaboard, both preceded and followed the Government's crop figures, and was generally assumed to be a reflection of heavy sales to Europe. The buying included future deliveries to a notable extent.

After prices, however, had reached the highest level for some time, a reaction took place, influenced more or less by weakness of sterling exchange. Breaking of the drought in Argentina counted also as a bearish factor, and so, too, did assertions that the Canadian crop would total 8,000,000 bu. more than last year. Farmers, nevertheless, were apparently continuing to adopt a holding atitude as a rule.

Corn sympathized with wheat strength, but advances were restrained by the bearish aspect of the Government crop report as to corn. Hedging sales weakened oats.

Provisions were lifted by export business and higher prices on hogs.

EXPORTERS BUY WHEAT FUTURES AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—There was a good demand for wheat futures most of the session and this resulted in the strong tone exhibited. Most of the buying was by cash interests and it was admitted that part of the buying was against sales of cash wheat made for export over night. Locals took the selling side in sympathy with the easy tone in corn and northwest interests were hedging cash wheat in the local pit. Cash wheat was weak at the close and 3c lower. Shipping sales of 15,000 bu. were reported. Receipts are light. Southwest reports good milling demand for wheat and that millers are overbidding exporters. Dec. wheat closed at $2.47, 1c up, and March $2.42¾, a 1c advance.

Corn Market Easy.

Corn was easy most of the session. There was scattered selling induced by the warm weather, and the good-sized receipts. Shorts covered freely on the break and a rally ensued, but the advance failed to hold. The Eastern demand for cash corn was slow and over-night shipping sales were only 15,000 bu. Cash corn was unchanged to ½c lower. Sept. closed at $1.37⅞@37¾, ⅜@½s down. Dec. $1.18⅞@1.18¾, ⅝@¾c lower, and May $1.16⅝@1.16½, ⅝c off.

Oats Irregular.

Oats were dull and easy at the start, but the market rallied during the late trade on the strength in Winnipeg. The advance in the Canadian market was due to the sale of 800,000 bu. of oats for export in that terminal. Cash oats premiums were ¼c lower. Shipping sales were 90,000 bu. Sept. closed at 63⅜@63½c, ¼@⅜c off; Dec. 65⅝@65¾c, unchanged, and May 68⅞c, ⅛@¼c up.

Provisions were strong on buying by cash houses. A good export demand for lard and meats was reported. Pork closed unchanged; lard 10c to 32½c higher and ribs 27½c to 35c higher.

Coffee Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The market for coffee futures last a few points of yesterday's advance today. It was the first Saturday season but business was quiet and the decline was attributed to liquidation or realizing over the week end, or some scattered selling on rather disappointed Brazilian cables and the decline in foreign exchange. The opening was 3 to 13 points lower and the active months sold 13 to 18 points below Friday's closing figures during the middle of the morning, but rallied slightly, with the close showing a net loss of 3 to 9 points. December sold off from 835 to 820 and closed at 830. September, 770; December, 830; January, 850; March, 890; March, 910; July 920. Spot coffee nominal; Rio 7s, 8¼; Santos 4s, 14@15.

Lead was unchanged today at 8.60c. Slab zinc was stronger at 7.80c.

WEEKLY REVIEWS OF GOODS TRADE SENDS COTTON OFF

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Favorable weather advices, unfavorable weekly reviews of the goods markets and the easier ruling of foreign exchange led to considerable selling in the cotton market at the opening today. Part of this came from the South. There was also reselling by recent buyers and, after opening weak at a decline of 18 to 49 points, active months sold 50 to 65 points below last night's closing with October touching 28.75c and December 26c.

Renewed covering by October shorts checked the decline at this level, however, and the market showed rallies of 15 to 20 points after the first rush of selling had been executed.

Weather in the South has cleared up after the recent prolonged period of rains or showers, and there is disappointment that the end of this week finds no improvement in prospects for the goods trade which had been expected to improve after Labor day. A little more inquiry for prints was reported in the Fall River market, but the price views of buyers were generally unacceptable and the actual business amounted to 30,000 pieces.

Offerings increased on the slight early bulges and the market was very weak later under continued Wall street and Southern selling. October sold off to 28.50c and January to 24.50c, and the close was at about the lowest of the day with the tone easy at a net decline of 35 to 98 points.

Cotton futures closed easy; October, 28.50; December, 25.80; January, 24.55; March, 23.75; May, 23.30.

Cattle receipts were only fair in volume at St. Louis the past week and trade scored a marked improvement on best corn-fed steers and yearlings. Receipts of this class of stock were comparatively few and the common and medium cattle, of which bulk of the arrivals consisted, sold little better than steady with the previous week.

Best beeves showing corn finish closed 25@50c higher, more in places. Grass steers with fair flesh, including bulk of the westerns, sold up 25c, some instances recording a 50c advance. Top on heavy steers, $16, though a good load of yearling steers brought $17 per cwt.

Good demand featured the trade for desirable fat yearlings and best kinds looked 50c up. The closing of the vacation season is causing a larger demand from the cities for the better yearling cuts and this, together with comparatively light receipts of such classes, has prompted the upturn.

While the better qualitied yearlings have sold strong and active, less desirable sorts proved extremely poor sellers and were no better than steady. There has been an overabundance of this common yearling and heifer stuff here the past few weeks and values are on a low level.

Butcher cows moved with more freedom than was the case a week ago and in some instances a higher market resulted. Bulk of the sales, however, showed no sharp advance. Desirable butcher cows are selling from $7@8, largely, better kinds up to $9. Canners are moving from $3.50@4 for the greater part.

Bulls were sluggish early in the week and another 25c decline was put into effect. There was some little better action later in the session, but values continue materially under those prevailing two weeks ago.

There was fair inquiry for the better kinds of stockers and feeders and such sold steady to a shade higher. Others were weak and hard to move.

Veal calves again advanced, market averaging 25c higher than best time the previous week and $4.25 over three weeks ago. Practical top for the week for choice lights was $17.75, though a few odd head sold up to $18, highest in months.

Hog Prices Up One Dollar.

The weeks' trading at the local hog house developed the highest spot reached since April 17, the top going to $17.35 in the final session of the market, bulk of the good hogs selling from $17@17.25. These prices reflect an advance of practically a dollar per cwt for the week, as last Saturday the top stood at $16.40. Light receipts and active demand from order buyers and city butchers were the stimulating factors. Packer demand was extremely indifferent at all times. Receipts for the period were light, totaling 34,698 head, as against 46,264 last week and 51,034 the corresponding week of last year. Strong weight and heavy hogs were scarce and sold at about the usual discount, as all of the buyers preferred offerings weighing 160 to around 200 pounds. Best weight pigs are quotable from $16.50@17 and rough packers from $13.75@14.50.

Lamb Receipts Off.

Lamb market was acted upon by sharply reduced receipts and during the forepart of the week made rapid improvement in a price way, reaching a $1.50 higher level on Thursday, that where the market left off last week. Top on that day was $13.26. Later prices fell off and the close was on a $12.50 basis, or about 75c higher for the period. Culls are about 50c higher, selling from $6.50@7. Fat sheep are also 50c higher, with best mutton ewes selling at $6.50 and breeders from $7@8, canners from $1.50@2 and choppers and bucks from $4@4.50. Receipts for the period were 10,963, comparing with 21,049 last week and 14,598 the corresponding week of last year.

On another light run, horse marked showed further improvement here the past week. Auction supply of natives was slightly over 500 head and all classes showed additional strength. Top Southerners are now [illegible] back to the high time four or five weeks ago.

While Southerners drew forth the [illegible] of activity, there was also some [illegible] trade, inquiry coming for a few good [illegible] and work horses weighing 1200 to 1500 lbs. It was essential, however, that they show good quality and harness marks. Values on the above, while not as high as during the past spring season, were nevertheless reasonably good for this time of the year.

Over 1500 Westerns came and these sold about steady with the previous sale. Quality of the arrivals was not especially good.

Mules More Active.

While values were not materially higher, there was, nevertheless, more activity displayed in the mule alleys last week. Receipts were not excessive and local dealers had some orders for good, well-shaped cotton mules, also miners and pitters.

CHAMP SPRING CO. USED STOCK SASH IN BUILDING

Specified Fenestra WindoWalls—When Rush Delivery of Windows Was Required.

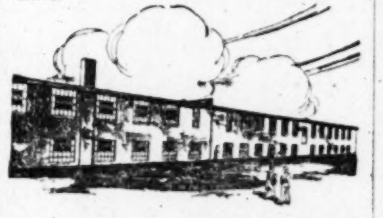
St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 12.—Quick delivery of windows on a rush building was one of the big advantages secured by the Champ Spring Co. of this city, when they specified Fenestra WindoWalls for their plant. These Fenestra units, used two to a bay, were delivered from St. Louis stock in record time.

The permanent advantages derived from the use of this up-to-date building material include plenty of light and fresh air, fire protection, and the ability to satisfy high-grade employes who demand work amid pleasant and healthful surroundings.

ENAMEL IRON RANGE CO. FIRE "SOLD" THEM ON FENESTRA

A. W. Bischoff Convinced That Fenestra Is the Best Insurance Obtainable.

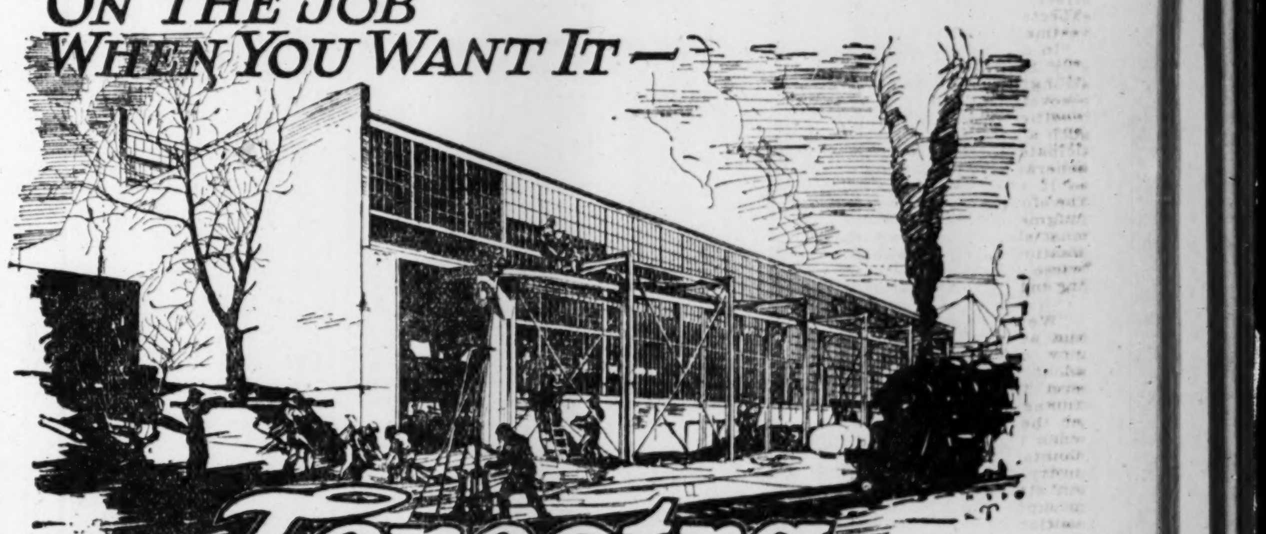
BELLEVILLE, Ill., Sept. 12.—It was the "fire next door" that convinced A. W. Bischoff of the Roesch Enamel Iron Range Co., of this city, that Fenestra Solid Steel WindoWalls are one of the best fire insurance policies he could have.



"When the washing machine plant located right next to us took fire one night, our plant was gutted," said Mr. Bischoff recently.

"We decided right then that what we wanted in the future was not only insurance, because we could collect after the fire, but a means of preventing future fires before they wiped us out at a time when we were 'way behind on orders. The few Fenestra sash that we had in the building stood up in such remarkable shape that we were able to straighten them out very quickly, and put them in our new walls.

"The fact that we were able to resume production so quickly is largely due to the fact that we were able to use this material again. Needless to say, when we decided to make an addition to our present plant, the only window material we thought of was Fenestra."



THERE'S a lot of satisfaction in being able to get your steel sash—when you want—and need it.

Fenestra comes direct from our St. Louis Warehouse to your job—on time.

Popular types of this economical wall material are kept constantly on hand in St. Louis Warehouse—and can be shipped a few hours after receipt of your order.

SOLOIST FOR EVERY SYMPHONY CONCERT

New Departure Promises 15 Assisting Artists for 15 Pairs of Programs.

Of much interest is a departure announced for the coming season of the Symphony Orchestra—namely, that there will be a soloist for each of the 15 pairs of Friday and Saturday concerts. Hitherto one or more of these concerts each year has been reserved to the orchestra alone.

It is well known that many symphony directors, if they could realize their ideals, would dispense with soloists altogether, or else reduce their number to a minimum. A soloist, particularly if a singer, is bent on personal triumph, and will go as far as possible towards converting the concert into a recital, with the orchestra in second place. In the view of orchestra leaders, soloists too often disrupt the unity of the program, and detract from the austere dignity of symphonic art.

Yet the announcement of a popular soloist is invariably echoed by a crescendo of clinking coins in the box office, with the result that directors mostly feel compelled to swallow their scruples. The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra is planning its budget this year upon an unprecedented scale of expense.

Gebhard Opens Season.

The initial pair of regular concerts will be given Nov. 12 and 13 at the Odeon, and the soloist will be Heinrich Gebhard, pianist, who appeared with the orchestra several years ago. The other artists engaged for the season are as follows: Fritz Kreisler, violinist; Mabel Garrison, soprano; Benno Moiseiwitsch, pianist; Sophie Braslau, contralto; Efrem Zimbalist, violinist; Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, pianiste; Arrigo Serato, violinist; Emilio de Gogorza, baritone; Rudolph Ganz, pianist; Arthur Hackett, tenor; Leo Sowerby, composer and pianist; Michel Gusikoff, violinist; H. Max Steindel, violoncellist; and Hulda Lashanska, soprano.

Of these Sowerby and Moisiewitsch are newcomers. The latter, a Russian, has been called "the Heifetz of the piano." Sowerby is to play his own concerto at his St. Louis appearance.

Orchestra of 81 Men.

The orchestra will make its first bow of the year at a popular concert, to be given at the Odeon Sunday afternoon, Nov. 7. The orchestra personnel has been completed, it is stated, and will consist of 81 musicians, as in last year's organization. There will be some changes, but many of the previous members of the orchestra will be seen in their old places.

Director Zach is expected to arrive about Oct. 20. His list of programs has not been announced, but he promises several compositions by the more important contemporaneous European composers. The scores of these works were unattainable under war conditions, but they have been ordered, and some are on the way to St. Louis.

D'ANNUNZIO TAKES OATH TO HOLD FIUME FOR ITALIANS

Regency of Quarnero Proclaimed by Soldier-Poet Who Says He Will Fight to Last.

By the Associated Press.

FIUME, Sept. 11.—The ceremony of proclaiming the "Italian regency of Quarnero" took place Thursday before the palace in the presence of D'Annunzio's legionaries and the townspeople. D'Annunzio, as head of the new State, took the following oath:

"I, Gabriele D'Annunzio, First Legionary of the Legion, proclaim the Italian Regency of Quarnero. I swear on this sacred banner of youth, on this relic of heroic blood, and on my soul, that I will continue to fight with every force and every arm until my last breath against everybody and everything that this Italian soil may forever be united to Italy.

"I proclaim this regency as the devoted and armed interpreter of free will, expressed by acclamation by a majority of the sovereign people in Fiume, in Parliament assembled, from this balcony, where was announced the liberation of the city on Sept. 12, 1919, and where many times was confirmed the eternal will of Fiume toward the Mother Country."

M'CORMACK CANCELS TOUR

Australians Object to His Omitting the National Anthem.

By the Associated Press.

ADELAIDE, South Australia, Sept. 11.—A concert given here Thursday evening by John McCormack, the tenor, was broken up by a demonstration, a part of the audience rising and singing the British national anthem and some of them shouting that McCormack was a Sinn Feiner. McCormack has canceled the other concerts he was to have given in Adelaide.

The audience, it appeared, resented the omission of the anthem from the program. In explanation, the tenor said he had understood the anthem was usually sung only when the Governor was present.

Anglican Bishops Appeal to Christian People for Union of World's Churches

Report of Conference at Lambeth Covers League of Nations, Missionary Work and General Church Development.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—A summary of the work and conclusions of the recent Anglican conference has just been published at the order of the church under the title, "Conference of Bishops of the Anglican Communion, holden at Lambeth Palace, July 5 to Aug. 7, 1920; Encyclical Letter from the Bishops with the Resolutions and Reports."

The Rev. Frederick F. Johnson of St. Louis, Coadjutor Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Missouri, was a delegate to this conference.

The most important question before the conference was the reunion of Christendom and the "Appeal to all Christian People," for fellowship. Other major questions on which the conference framed resolutions are: The League of Nations, missionary work, the development of provinces within the Anglican Communion, the position of women in the councils and ministration of the church, modern movements in spiritualism, Christian Science and theosophy, marriage and sexual morality, and social and industrial questions.

In their Encyclical letter the Bishops declare that the one idea of fellowship runs through all their work. The weakness of the church in the world today is not surprising when we consider how the bands of its own fellowship are loosened and broken. This truth had been slowly working into the consciousness of Christians before the war. But the conflict between so-called Christian nations drove home the truth with the shock of a sudden awakening. Proposals and counter-proposals were made. But terms of reunion must no longer be judged by the success with which they meet the claims and preserve the positions of two or more uniting communions, but by their correspondence to the common ideal of the church as God would have it to be.

It is not by reducing the different groups of Christians to uniformity, but by rightly using their diversity, that the church can become all things to all men. So long as there is vital connection with the head, there is positive value in the differtiation of the members. But this ideal cannot be fulfilled if these groups are content to remain in separation from one another or to be joined together only in some vague federation. The bishops call upon each church in their communion to develop its constitutional self-government and to give more and better opportunities for service to all its members.

"Because our church has spread over the world, and still more because we desire to enter into a world-wide fellowship of a reunited universal church, we must begin now to clear ourselves of local, sectional and temporary prepossessions, and cultivate a sense of what is universal and genuinely Catholic in truth and life."

Prospects of Unity.

In the resolutions following the appeal the bishops recommend the authorities of their church to invite formally the authorities of other churches to confer with them on the restoration of the unity of the churches and to form in all suitable areas councils representing every Christian community as centers of united effort to promote the welfare of the people and the extension of the rule of Christ.

In view of the prospects and projects for reunion, the Conference approves the following counsel to the Bishops, clergy, and other members of the Anglican Communion:

(i.) A Bishop is justified in giving occasional authorization to ministers, not episcopally ordained, who in his judgment are working towards the ideal of union, to preach in churches within his diocese, and to clergy of the diocese to preach in the churches of such ministers:

(ii.) The Bishops will not question the action of any Bishop who, in the few years between the initiation and the completion of a definite scheme of union, shall countenance the irregularity of admitting to Communion the baptized but unconfirmed Communicants of the non-episcopal congregations concerned in the scheme:

But the Conference cannot approve of general schemes of intercommunion or exchange of pulpits, or of the celebration in Anglican churches of the Holy Communion for members of the Anglican Church by ministers who have not been episcopally ordained.

Women in the Pulpit.

On the position of women in the councils and ministrations of the church the conference agreed that

EDITORIAL

YOU DON'T KNOW HOW IT PLEASES ME TO HAVE APPRECIATIVE PATRONS.

One man said to me: "We bought our furniture from your house when we were married twelve years ago and I am now furnishing a large and beautiful home and am here to select the furniture—do not even care to look elsewhere before buying."

Another lady came in with her daughter, who was soon to be married; she said, "I bought a suite of upholstered furniture twenty-five years ago from your Father, which he made in his factory. It is as good as new, and I came here with my daughter because I want her to buy Prufrock-made furniture."

We are selling this week our floor samples of Upholstered Living-Room Suites at practically wholesale or factory prices. It is an opportunity to buy a fine suite at a very reasonable price.

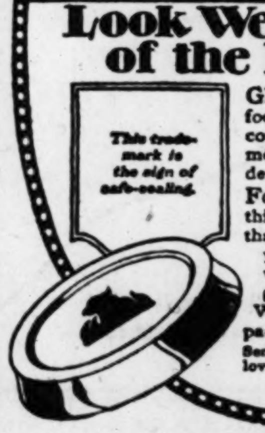
Look Well to the Sealing of the Foods You Buy



This trade-mark is the sign of safe-sealing.

Glass is always the best container for foods—in fact it is a perfect container. But of course it needs to be properly sealed. Think a moment and you will see that upon the seal depends the condition of glass-packed foods.

For twenty-five years we have studied this vital problem. We have made the Caps that seal the best known products. Now, for your protection, and to assist those packers who surround their product with every safeguard and every advantage, we trade-mark them. Watch for this trade-mark and accept no glass-packed foods unles you find it on the Cap.

UNION OF WORLD'S CHURCHES URGED BY ANGLICAN BISHOPS

the order of deaconesses should be restored, and laid down the functions that may be entrusted to them. These include instruction and exhortation of the congregation, under license from the Bishop, and the right to speak in consecrated as well as unconsecrated buildings. The main resolutions are as under:

Women should be admitted to those councils of the church to which laymen are admitted, and on equal terms.

The Diaconate of Women should be restored formally and canonically, and should be recognized throughout the Anglican Communion. The order of deaconesses is for women the one and only order of the ministry which has the stamp of apostolic approval. The office is primarily a ministry of succor, bodily and spiritual, especially to women, and should follow the lines of the primitive rather than of the modern diaconate of men. It should be understood that the deaconess dedicates herself to a life-long service, but that no vow or implied promise of celibacy should be required as necessary for admission to the order.

In every branch of the Anglican Communion there should be adopted a form and manner of making of deaconesses such as might fitly find a place in the Book of Common prayer, containing in all cases provision for: (a) Prayer by the Bishop and the laying on of his hands; (b) a formula giving authority to execute the office of a deaconess in the Church of God; (c) the delivery of the New Testament by the Bishop to each candidate.

The following functions may be entrusted to the deaconess, in addition to the ordinary duties which would naturally fall to her:

(a) To prepare candidates for baptism and confirmation; (b) to assist at the administration of holy baptism, and to be the administrant in case of necessity in virtue of her office; (c) to pray with and to give counsel to such women as desire help in difficulties and perplexities; (d) with the approval of the Bishop and of the parish priest, and under such conditions as shall from time to time be laid down by the Bishop—(1) in church to read morning and evening prayer and the litany, except such portions as are assigned to the priest only; (2) in church also to lead in prayer and, under license of the Bishop, to instruct and exhort the congregation.

Opportunity should be given to women as to men (duly qualified and approved by the Bishop) to speak in consecrated or unconsecrated buildings, and to lead in prayer, at other than the regular and appointed services of the church. Such diocesan arrangements, both for men and for women, should, wherever possible, be subject to provincial control and co-ordination.

Marriage and the Family.

On problems of marriage and sexual morality the conference affirms as our Lord's principle and standard of marriage a lifelong and indissoluble union, for better for worse, of one man with one woman, to the exclusion of all others on either side, and calls on all Christian people to maintain and bear witness to this standard. While fully recognizing the extreme difficulty of Governments in framing marriage laws for citizens, many of whom do not accept the Christian standard, it expresses its firm belief that in every country the church should be free to bear witness to that standard through its powers of administration and discipline exercised in relation to its own members. An emphatic warning is given against the use of unnatural means for the avoidance of conception, together with the grave dangers—physical, moral and religious—thereby incurred, and against the evils with which the extension of such use threatens the race. The governing considerations of Christian marriage are its primary purpose—the continuation of the race through the gift and heritage of children; and the paramount importance in married life of deliberate and thoughtful self-control.

The conference, moved by responsible statements from many nations as to the prevalence of venereal diseases, bringing suffering, paralysis, insanity, or death to many thousands of innocent as well as the guilty, supports all efforts which are consistent with high moral standards to check the causes of the diseases and to treat and, if possible, cure the victims. It impresses upon the clergy and members of the church the duty of joining with physicians and public authorities in meeting this courge. The conference condemns the distribution or use, before exposure to infection, of so-called prophylactics, since these cannot but be regarded as an invitation to vice. If necessary, pressure must be brought to bear upon authorities, both national and local, for removing such incentives to vice as indecent literature, suggestive plays and films, the open or secret sale of contraconceptives, and the continued existence of brothels.

With regard to the education of the young in the matter of sex, the conference presses on parents that the duty of giving right teaching on these subjects rests primarily with them, and that it is the duty of all persons giving such instruction to prepare themselves for this responsible task.

New Philosophies Discussed.

The resolution on modern movements will be of special interest to the layman. While recognizing that those connected with Spiritualism, Christan Science and Theosophy are at one with the church in protesting against a materialistic view of the universe, and at some points emphasize partly neglected aspects of truth, the conference finds them all incompatible with fundamental church doctrines. The Bishops feel bound to call attention to the fact that both in the underlying philosophy, and in cults and practices which have arisen out of these movements

May Peterson, Famous soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company using the Graduola while playing one of her own records on—

The AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The Phonograph of Supreme Musical Attainment

THE Graduola, the exclusive tone-controlling feature of the Aeolian-Vocalion, supplies the last thing needed to make the phonograph a truly great musical instrument.

We are accustomed to the phonograph. The wonder of it is gone. The modest cabinet, standing in the corner of our living-room, and bringing to us all the music of all the world, has taken its place as one of the accepted things that make our homes and our lives brighter and happier.

And now the phonograph can do something more for us. It can supply us with an outlet for our own musical emotions. It can let us participate in music's making. It can give us the same thrill that the violinist, or pianist, or singer feels as his tones now loudly, now softly and sweetly, voice the message that the music has for him.

This is a great, an inestimable privilege. And a privilege conferred only by the Aeolian-Vocalion.

Read what May Peterson, one of the many famous artists who are making records exclusively for the Vocalion, says of the Graduola:—

"One fascinating reason for the difference between the Vocalion and all other phonographs is the Graduola which, in its ability to shade the tone, supplies an artistic touch that is unequalled."

And remember, that the Graduola is a feature added to those that other phonographs possess. That the Vocalion plays just as other phonographs, when desired, without the Graduola. Also, that no musical knowledge is necessary to use it.

In tone, in appearance, in perfection of mechanical features, the Aeolian-Vocalion is unequalled in the phonograph world. In its possession of this wonderful tone-controlling feature, it belongs in a different and higher classification entirely.

The manifest influence the Graduola is exerting throughout the entire phonograph industry proves the necessity for the purchaser's learning the facts about this feature before selecting any instrument.

No corns exist
with nurses—for they know

Nurses don't have corns. Nor do doctors or their wives.

They know Blue-jay and employ it. So do millions of others now.

It is time that everybody knew this simple, scientific way to end a corn.

Do this tonight

Apply liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster. Either requires but a jiffy.

The pain will stop. Soon the entire corn will loosen and come out.

What that corn does, every corn will do. So this way means a life-long respite from the aches of corns.

Corns merely pared or padded rarely disappear. Harsh treatments often cause a soreness.

Blue-jay is gentle, scientific, sure. It is a creation of this world-famed laboratory.

It is the right way. It will be the universal way when all folks know it.

the teaching given or implied either ignores or explains away or contradicts the unique and central fact of human history, namely, the incarnation of Jesus Christ. They recognize that new phenomena of consciousness have been presented, which claim, and at the hands of competent psychologists have received, careful investigation, and, as far as possible, the application of scientific method. But such scientific researches have confessedly not reached an advanced stage, and they claim to be supported by the best psychologists in warning their people against accepting as final theories which further knowledge may disprove, and still more against the indiscriminate and undisciplined exercise of psychic powers, and the habit of recourse to seances, "seers" and mediums.

The resolutions state that the conference, while prepared to expect and welcome new light from psychical research upon the powers and processes of the spirit of man, urges strongly that a larger place should be given in the teaching of the Church to the explanation of the true grounds of Christian belief in eternal life and in immortality. While recognizing that the results of investigation have encouraged many people to find a spiritual meaning and purpose in human life and led them to believe in survival after death, grave dangers are seen in the tendency to make a religion of spiritualism. The practice of spiritualism as a cult involves the subordination of the intelligence and the will to unknown forces or personalities and, to that extent, an abdication of self-control.

Christian Science and Theosophy.

The Conference finds that while Christian Science fixes attention or the supremacy of Spirit, yet in the teaching given there is a direct tendency (a) to pantheistic doctrine, and at the same time (b) to a false antithesis between spirit and matter, and (c) to the denial of the reality of sin, and (d) a denial of the reality of disease and suffering. Such teaching, therefore, cannot be reconciled with the fundamental truths of the Christian faith and the teaching of Scripture on atonement, penitence, forgiveness, and fellowship in the sufferings of Christ.

It declares its thankfulness for the devoted labors of those engaged in scientific research and for the progress made in medicine, surgery, nursing, hygiene, and sanitation.

The conference, while recognizing that the three publicly stated objects of the Theosophical Society do not in themselves appear to be inconsistent with loyal membership of the church, expresses its conviction that there are cardinal elements in the positive teaching current in theosophical circles and literature which are irreconcilable with the Christian faith, and warns Christian people who may be induced to make a study of theosophy by the seemingly Christian elements contained in it to be on their guard against the ultimate bearing of theosophical teaching, and to examine strictly the character and credentials of the teachers upon whose authority they are encouraged or compelled to rely.

The conference, believing that the attraction of theosophy for some Christian people lies largely in its presentation of Christian faith as a quest for knowledge, recommends that in the current teaching of the church due regard should be given to the mystical elements of faith and life which underlie the historic belief of Christendom.

New Spirit in Industry.

The Conference regards it as an outstanding and pressing duty of the Church to convince its members of the necessity of a fundamental change in the spirit and working of our economic life. This can only be effected by accepting as the basis of industrial relations the principle of co-operation in service for the common good in the place of unrestricted competition for private or sectional advantage. All Christian people ought to take an active part in bringing about this change.

The Conference calls upon all members of the Church to maintain the superiority of the claims of human life to those of property, and emphasizes the duty which is laid upon all Christians of setting human values above dividends and profits in their conduct of business, of avoiding extravagance and waste, of upholding a high standard of honor and thoroughness in work

Members of the Church should work for reform, and particularly for such measures as will secure the better care of children, including real opportunity for an adequate education; protection of the workers against unemployment; and the provision of healthy homes. The Church is bound to use its influence to remove inhuman or oppressive conditions of labor in all parts of the world, especially among the weaker races, and to give its full support of those clauses in the League of Nations Covenant which aim at raising by international agreement the status of industrial workers in all countries.

The conference notes with deep interest the prohibition by the will of the people of the sale and manufacture of intoxicating drinks in the United States, and of their sale in most of the provinces of Canada, and commends this action to the earnest and sympathetic attention of the Christian Church throughout the world. The conference urges members of the church in other countries to support such legislation as will lead to a speedy reduction in the use of intoxicants.

The first eight resolutions of the conference deal with Christianity and international relations, and they indorse the essentially Christian basis of the League of Nations. The Bishops hold that the peace of the world, no less than Christian principle, demands the early admission of Germany and other nations into the league, and they plead for justice and fair treatment for native races, and protest against the color prejudice among the different races.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Radiant Health and Strong Nerves Make Successful Movie Stars

Says Beautiful Marjorie Daw

Screen Star Explains How She Used Nuxated Iron to Rebuild Her Wasted Forces When Long Hours and Overwork Had Sapped Her Strength and Energy.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital, says that the accompanying article should be read by every one who desires to reach a fullness of health and power such as is possessed by the leading stars of the movies. Dr. Sullivan says: "If the men and women of the stage and screen whose living depends largely upon keeping physically fit consider it advisable to take Nuxated Iron to maintain at all times an abundance of energy and vitality, then the average person might well follow their example in building up health and strength."

Night after night there are thousands who sit in the many moving picture theaters and admire the energy and power of the men and women who play the leading parts on the screen, yet little do they realize how these movie stars must constantly strive to keep health and strength to the highest degree.

In the words of Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "These people might not achieve such great success were it not for the fact that flowing through their veins is pure, red, blood, rich in iron." Dr. Sullivan continued: "I have been especially interested in the statement of Miss Marjorie Daw, whose notable screen triumphs have, within a very short time, given her widespread popularity. In the roles which Miss Daw has played great courage and daring have been required and were it not for the possession of unusual strength and endurance I feel sure that she would never have been able to give evidence of the abundant vitality which has helped to make her such a success. That she turned to Nuxated Iron as a means for building herself up at a time when she became weak and run-down is in itself convincing evidence of how highly this preparation is regarded as a means for creating red blood, strength and endurance. I am convinced that if the average woman would use the same means as Miss Daw for keeping her blood rich in strength-giving iron, there would be a far less number who would find themselves tired out and nervous when they should be strong, energetic and filled with vitality."

Miss Marjorie Daw

When Beautiful Marjorie Daw became tired and careworn from the effects of long hours and hard work for the screen it was to Nuxated Iron she turned to rebuild her wasted strength and forces and give her renewed energy and power.

In Miss Daw's statement to which Dr. Sullivan referred above, she says: "To win and retain public favor, the men and women engaged in motion picture work must at all times keep themselves physically fit and able to undertake the most difficult roles that are demanded of them. Radiant health and strong nerves make successful movie stars and I believe that if more people in any walk of life realized the important part health plays in making them successes or failures, more people would take steps to build themselves up. Few of the people who watch us in our pictures know of the hard work, the long hours and the great strain upon the nerves that the taking of even a single picture involves. When I feel myself getting tired out, nervous and with no reserve strength to draw upon, I turn to Nuxated Iron for relief and would gladly recommend it to anyone." Miss Daw's opinion is strongly supported by the statement of Miss Dorothy Dalton, brilliant star of the New York production "Aphrodite" and considered one of the most beautiful women of the screen, who says: "In my picture work and on the stage, which at times is very strenuous, I have found Nuxated Iron a great help. It has wonderful building powers and makes rich blood."

It is surprising how many women who are weak, tired-out and nervous, suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists in tablet form only.

Ruth Roland Tells How to Instantly Have a Beautiful Rosy-White Complexion

MISS RUTH ROLAND

New York—The beautiful young actress, Miss Ruth Roland, now successfully starring in that splendid serial, "The Adventures of Ruth," is famous for her beautiful complexion. When her friends inquired about it she said: "It's all due to a toilet preparation called derwillo which I use twice daily. The experience I have had prompts me to make my secret public. This wonderful derwillo instantly beautified my skin and its continued use has made the result permanent." When Mae Edna Wilder, the well known beauty specialist, was interviewed in reference to Miss Roland's remarkable complexion, she stated, "Anyone can have a beautiful complexion when they know how. It's a very simple process. I use the same article in my work, and until you try it you have no idea of the marvelous results. The very first application will astonish you. Go to the toilet counter of any drug or department store and get a bottle of derwillo, then make the following test: Examine your skin critically before your mirror, note carefully its appearance, then cleanse your skin with a good cold cream (Liska Cold Cream I have found to be the best), then apply derwillo as directed. After you have made the first application look in your mirror again and note the surprising change. A peach-like color mounts the cheeks; a baby softness comes to the skin; it makes the skin rosy-white, velvety and radiantly beautiful. It is wonderful for a dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, oily skin, coarse pores, pimples, blackheads, chapped, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and many other facial blemishes. Now that short sleeves are in vogue you will want beautiful hands and arms. There is nothing like derwillo for this purpose. Derwillo method is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulates a growth of hair. It is superior to face powder, as perspiration does not effect it, therefore it stays on better. Over five hundred thousand who have used it have had the same results as Miss Roland, and I am sure if you will give it a fair trial you will become just as enthusiastic as she is and always use it in preference to any other powder or Beautifier."

Note—When asked about derwillo one of our leading druggists said, "It is truly a wonderful beautifier, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to anyone who is dissatisfied. This guarantee would not be possible unless the product possessed unusual merit." It is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all department stores and up-to-date druggists including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.

ARMY CHIEFS GREET MEN ON ST. MIHIEL DAY

Members of Eight Divisions Who Took Part in First American Drive Congratulated.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Tomorrow is the second anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel when an American army commanded by Americans fought for the first time on European soil and by clearing the Germans from the famous salient, won a glorious victory.

In commemoration of that anniversary, the commanding Generals of the eight combat divisions of the American Expeditionary Force which took part in that battle have sent messages of greeting through the American Legion to the men who fought under their command.

At dawn Sept. 12, 1918, began the first all-American major offensive battle of the war which reduced in 48 hours the wedge held by the Germans since 1914.

Took 16,000 Prisoners.

In the operation the Americans took 16,000 prisoners, 443 guns and vast quantities of material, and established the allied line in a position to threaten Metz. The assaulting troops suffered 7000 casualties.

The divisions participating were the First, regulars, from all states; Second, regulars and marines, all states; Fourth, regulars, all states; Fifth, regulars, all states; Twenty-sixth, New England National Guard; Forty-second, or Rainbow, National Guard from 27 states; Eighty-second, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee National Army troops; Eighty-ninth, Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota and Nebraska National Army troops; Ninetieth, Texas and Oklahoma National Army troops.

Messages of Commanders.

The messages of the division commanders, which appear in the current issue of the American Legion Weekly, the official publication of the Legion, follows:

FIRST DIVISION—On the anniversary of the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient I desire to extend the greetings of the First Division and of myself to all our members, wherever they may be, in rememberance of the momentous events of that day and of the superb spirit, the high morale and the fine courage that animated the entire command.

C. P. SUMMERALL,
Major-General, U. S. A.

SECOND DIVISION—To the men who served in the Second Division during the World War: Sept. 12 will be the second anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel. In that battle, for the first time in history an American army, under American command, fought on European soil. It was a great victory. The Second Division played a glorious part in that victory. It broke through the enemy's fortified lines, and leading the advance, it seized the crossings of the Rupt de Mad, captured Thiaucourt and occupied the heights beyond. In this battle it captured 3300 prisoners, 120 cannon and an enormous quantity of other material.

JOHN A. LE JEUNE,
Major-General, U. S. M. C.

FOURTH DIVISION—To my comrades of the Fourth Division: Now that the second anniversary of the St. Mihiel drive is approaching, my mind naturally reverts to the stirring scenes of that great event in American history. The courage, energy and devotion to our great cause which you displayed in that attack shall always remain fresh in my memory. I desire to express to you my appreciation of your gallant conduct and wish for you every happiness and prosperity. Your comrade in arms,

J. H. HINES,
Major-General, U. S. A.

FIFTH DIVISION—Greetings to the Fifth Division. Owing to the death of Major-General McMahon, who commanded the Division of St. Mihiel, the undersigned, who succeeded him in command, sends greetings to the old members of the division who so gloriously participated in the St. Mihiel drive. They may all be proud of having participated in the St. Mihiel action, which will be an epoch in American history as the first purely American action of the world war. May success attend all your efforts and may you always retain that patriotism and devotion to your country that distinguished you at St. Mihiel.

H. E. ELY,
Brigadier-General, U. S. A.

TWENTY-SIXTH DIVISION — To the veterans of the YD, or Yankee Division, this anniversary recalls the fact that in 1915, 15 French divisions with 30,000 casualties failed to penetrate the Les Eparges sector, which was yours to reduce on the twelfth of September, and that you didn't stop but made a night march down on the Grande Tranchee Calonne and reached Vigneulles at 2 o'clock on the morning of the thirteenth My greetings and congratulations

C. R. EDWARDS,
Brigadier-General, U. S. A.

FORTY-SECOND DIVISION — The most vivid recollection that we of the Rainbow Division have on St. Mihiel day is of those who went two years ago to their last charge. We cannot forget. Blue-lipped, smudged with sludge, chilled by the wind and rain of the foxhole, forming grimly and without emotion in the murk which the ground was throwing up, as heavy as that which the skies were letting down, they drove through to their objective—and to the judgment seat of God. We will not say that they have died. They have but passed beyond the mists that blind us here—and come to the end of the rainbow.

DOUGLAS MACARTHUR,
Brigadier-General, U. S. A.

EIGHTY-SECOND DIVISION — Good luck to the soldiers of the Eighty-second (All American) Divi-

To Keep Hair Curly, Wavy and Beautiful

Here is how your hair can be curled nicely, easily and harmlessly: Before doing it up, apply a little liquid silmerine with a clean toothbrush. In three hours you will have just the prettiest curls and waves—and they will look and feel so natural you'll never think of doing without silmerine thereafter. You won't be troubled any more with hair stringing around your face—with burnt, uneven ends, nor with that dull, dead appearance. The hair will remain in curl ever so long.

Any druggist can, of course, supply you with liquid silmerine, and a few ounces will last you a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy, and is really a delightful thing to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beneficial dressing for the hair.

ENGLISH IS FAVORED FOR FUTURE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

Esperanto Congress Which Sought Views of European Experts Found Only One Friend.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 21.—Before the International Esperanto Convention met in August at The Hague, the Swedish Peace Society sent out circular letters asking experts of all European countries — philologists, presidents of merchants' organizations, parliamentarians, etc. — for their opinions as to the future universal language.

Most of the answers favored English for a variety of reasons, the one given oftenest being that English is spoken in a very large part of the civilized world. Seven men, from Southern and Eastern Europe and from Denmark, proposed French. One vote, that of Unno Stadius, president of the Finnish Peace Society, was for German. One professor each of the Genoa, Amsterdam and Granada Universities and a representative of the Venice Chamber of Commerce came out for Latin.

Only five answers favored a new language. Of these writers four thought that Ido is best adapted to become the universal language while one pleaded for Esperanto.

The views expressed in the answers may be safely considered representative of popular opinion. Out of similar considerations the League of Nations adopted English and French as official languages. How long French will maintain its present position remains to be seen.

EIGHTY-NINTH DIVISION—To the members of the Eighty-ninth Division: My affectionate greetings. RETURN VISITS ARE PAID BY TWO PLAYS

"Civilian Clothes" and "Little Women" Open Tonight at Jefferson and American.

Two plays of previous showing here will hold the boards this week, both opening tonight. To the Shubert-Jefferson returns Thompson Buchanan's after-the-war comedy, "Civilian Clothes," which proved one of the most popular offerings of last season. To the American comes Marion de Forest's dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's famous novel, "Little Women," which enjoyed a run of several weeks at the Garrick Theater, five years ago.

William Courtney, in "Civilian Clothes," will be seen again as the returned war hero who, when dressed in mufti, does not measure up to the social standards of the wealthy young Red Cross worker who married him in France. With the exception of Isabel Irving, who had the part of the young bride's mother, the cast will be the same as that seen in the play last February at the Shubert-Jefferson.

"Little Women" Back.

"Little Women" takes the spectator back to the quaint and old-fashioned days of the Civil War, and to the locality of a Massachusetts village. Then it was, according to Mrs. Alcott, that a young lady was overjoyed to receive a copy of "Pilgrim's Progress" as a Christmas present, that genteel families achieved the height of hilarity through reading "The Vicar of Wakefield" aloud, and that certain members of the body were to be mentioned only as "lower limbs."

Both the novel and the play abound in charm, humor and vivacity; and the March family—Meg, Jo, Beth, Amy, Marmee, Hannah and the others—are favorites of all who have met them in Mrs. Alcott's pages or in the theater. It is well known that the author drew the characters from her own family. She herself was the tomboy, Jo, with a mania for scribbling; Amy was her sister, May Alcott, a well-known artist; and their father is represented in composite in the characters of the Rev. Mr. March and Prof. Bhaer. The cost of the present production is not announced.

"The Little Blue Devil," a musical comedy, featuring Mabel McCane, is promised next week at the Shubert-Jefferson, while "Listen, Lester," a diverting musical comedy seen here last season, will return to the American.

Other Programs.

Mme. Doree's "Operalogue," introducing airs from "Tales of Hoffman," "I Pagliacci," "Faust," "Carmen," "La Traviata" and other operas, leads the week's bill at the Orpheum. Other acts are Johnny Burke in "Drafted;" Gene Greene, in "A Little Bit of Everything;" Eddie Nelson and Dell Chain, in "Use Your Own Judgment;" Murray Kissen, in "A Hungarian Rhapsody;" Mari Loe, in "Art Studies;" Sam Berk and Juanita Sawn, dancers, and Mahoney and Auburn, in a novelty specialty.

Eva Shirley, who figured on the Orpheum program last week, in a musical act, will head this week's bill at the Rialto. Others on the bill are Johnny Black and Miss Dardanella, dancers; Hall and Coburn, comedy entertainers; Mullen and Corelli, gymnasts; Levan and Miller in "Treat 'Em Rough; and Mlle. Valmont and Jacques Reyen, Belgian artists, in "The Angelus."

The Grand announces a double headline feature—"The Cameo Girls" and "The Broken Mirror." The vaudeville bill at the Columbia for the first half of the week is headed by Gilroy, Dolan and Corlel, in "The Stowaway," a nautical travesty. The Gayety's offering is "Victory Belles," and the Standard's, "Tiddledy-Winks."

A musical playlet called "Frozen Out," featuring Frankie Hall and Billy O'Brien, leads the vaudeville program of five acts at Loew's Garrick for the first half of the week.

NATIONAL RETAIL DRUGGISTS TO MEET HERE SEPT. 20 TO 24

Kidney Remedy for 40 Years A Pronounced Success

When kidney diseases have been successfully treated for a period of more than forty years, it is reasonable to assume that the remedy therefore must possess unusual merit. Such is the remarkable record of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy. Without its ability to give relief and benefit its users so that they would continue its use, it could not have existed 40 months, much less 40 years of its enviable record. Many letters have come to us to prove that it has been a household remedy for years and years. Here is what one grateful woman has recently written:

"I wish to say that your remedies have been used in our family for fifteen years. We are never without a bottle of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy in our home, and it has saved many a doctor's bill. It is a wonderful medicine for all diseases of the kidneys and liver."—(Signed) Florence E. Schmidt, R. F. D. No. 1, Dunkirk, Ohio.

For the elimination of poisons due to impaired kidney action, Warner's Safe Remedy was famous for 25 years before this woman so judiciously began its effective use. There are thousands of people who realize that their general health depends upon their kidneys and have found Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy a reliable family medicine. Forty years ago it was named "Safe" because it is SAFE absolutely; equalizing the work of both the kidneys and liver. Satisfactory results are obtained in the most severe cases, and it is sold by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all leading druggists. A sample sent on receipt of ten cents. To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Wrinkles

It is said that creams containing animal grease cause hair to grow. You run no risk of acquiring superfluous hair from using ordinary mercolized wax. There is nothing better for a discolored skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimpled skin. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist and apply nightly like cold cream, erasing in the morning with soap and water. Soon you will observe a most remarkable transformation.

The ideal wrinkle remover is made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost immediate results.

Beauty's Ambition

To Rid the Face of Pimples and Such Blemishes Is a Step Toward Life's Chief Accomplishment.

One of the most aggravating conditions to any woman is the presence of pimples and such blemishes. Her ambitions are first a home, then children and then her appearance.

One of the greatest blessings she can have is a fine, fair skin on face, neck and arms. The use of Stuart's Calcium Wafers now and then for the blood condition makes this possible. Women are great sufferers from skin disorders and hence their complexions are marred because of this fact.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers give you a complexion that rivals the ideals of an artist to produce. By acting upon the skin and blood they thus contribute to a more beautiful complexion.

Get a 60-cent box of these wonderful wafers from any druggist anywhere.

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

Truss Causes Man's Death

A man was admitted to Bellevue Hospital in a very serious condition, caused by wearing a truss which had penetrated the tissues, anteriorly, making a deep, clean-cut wound—the patient died the day after admission. Do you realize that rupture kills seven thousand persons annually? Are you courting death? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

Science has found a way, and all truss sufferers are invited to make a FREE test in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO-PAD, when adhering closely to the body, cannot slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet, easy to apply, inexpensive. It works while you work and while you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached. Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down.

HAYS INSULTED CITIZENS, CHARGE OF F. D. ROOSEVELT

Democratic Candidate for Vice-President Condemns "Under Two Flags" Address of Republican Chairman.

WAS POOR POLITICAL JUDGMENT, HE ASSERTS

Declares Opponents Are Seeking to Make It Appear That Democrats Are Not Good Americans.

By the Associated Press.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 11.—Charging that the Republicans were trying to make it appear that Democrats were not good Americans and preferred an international flag to the Stars and Stripes, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for Vice President, replied here tonight to assertions of Will H. Hays, Republican national chairman, in his Augusta (Me.) speech last month.

Referring to the text of Hays' address, which was entitled "Under Which Flag?" Roosevelt said the Republican chairman had "offered a deliberate insult to many millions, probably the majority of our citizens, and he was guilty not only of bad taste, but of poor political judgment."

The overwhelming majority of voters, he said, are in every way loyal and will resent any attempt by one group of leaders to take out an "exclusive patent" on our flag.

"To claim that one party doctrine is the only American one is to infer that those who belong to another party faith are un-American. That sort of campaigning ought not to be excused, even in the heat of an election."

Roosevelt declared he would "be the first to insist that Republicans, rank and file, are just as sincerely proud of our country and our flag as Democrats are." Hays and his party differed, however, he said, "in the big conception of the great purpose for which our flag is the symbol."

"The same gentleman has used with inaccurate, but deliberate, carelessness, the word "internationalism,' With evident design he has sought to convey the impression that people who believe in the League of Nations are 'internationalists' in the sense used by certain radical groups who do not believe in nations at all, or who seek a super-government in place of true national governments. For political purposes, he would reason that one who seeks international peace and international agreements and international justice is thereby an international 'Red.'

"League Long Favored."

"The whole falsity of this position is shown by asking the simple question of whether the 37 nations who have already joined the League of Nations have given up their own sovereignty, their own constitutional rights, their own flags? Even Switzerland, most jealous of independence and wary of alliances, has voted by popular referendum to join the league.

"Long before 1914 American statesmen advocated a League of Nations. Some, like President Taft, favored one that frankly called itself a League to Enforce Peace. Yet he was not called a traitor or follower of internationalism.

"We had seen the failure of The Hague tribunal to prevent wars. We had seen, indeed, an increase in wars and in the preparations for wars. The other nations were well aware that the American flag carried a new message of hope, that it represented a great people opposed to aggression and willing to change the existing conditions of mistrust and competitive armament.

"The great war came, and America at last became a party to the struggle. But we did not join for the mere sake of crushing the Kaiser on the field of battle. It was not alone Kaiserism or the Central Powers themselves that we were fighting. We fought for something constructive, in addition to the fight against something destructive. Men and women of all parties united in demanding in 1917 that the evil in the previous relationship between nations should be in the future removed. Mere good will would not remove the danger, mere international courts had been proved a failure. A definite, business-like, concrete association was demanded, something that would prevent the causes of trouble and not wait until trouble itself had come to a head.

Promise of American Flag.

"In all of this the nation was united. With this spirit and purpose our flag was carried across the seas by the splendid men of our Army and Navy. The peoples of Europe, too, understood the message. They welcomed the accession of military strength; they knew that the Allies would win in the end, but they saw in the American flag the first sign of hope for their children and grandchildren.

"When the war ended, the promise of the American flag seemed to have come true. International law, the relationship between nations, was to be put on a new basis. Even the peoples of the Central Empires took hope. Kaiserism was ended, the new relationship was promised in the very terms of the armistice.

"Through all this period our people at home held to the ideal. It was constantly before their eyes.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

J. E. CANNADAY, M. D., 1273 Court Bk., Sedalia, Mo.

Reference: Third National Bank, Sedalia, or ask your banker to find out about me.

Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.

TWO GIRLS MAKE 200-MILE TRIP ON LAKE IN ROWBOAT

One in Search of Fossils and Other as "Companion" See Only One Human in Month.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

WINNIPEG, Canada, Sept. 11.—A 200-mile voyage by rowboat down the desolate east shore of Lake Winnipeg has just been completed by Miss Alice E. Wilson of Ottawa and Miss M. A. Fritz of Montreal. The young women, the first of their sex to make such a journey, rowed the entire distance themselves and were "on their own" all the time, pitching their tent every night and preparing all their meals. Along the shore they skirted there is not one settlement or even a farm.

The purpose of the trip was the collection of fossils for the Dominion Geological Department, in which Miss Wilson has been employed for several years. Miss Fritz, who is a school teacher, went with Miss Wilson as "company" and for the novelty of the experience.

They took a month to make the journey. With their rowboat and their supplies they were conveyed by the steamer Selkirk to Berens River, where they disembarked and began their long row down the east shore of the lake. During the month they saw only one other human being, an Indian, who was fishing.

The flag they knew and loved was still spreading through the world the American spirit of service and unselfishness. No voice was heard in opposition to America's proposal that a new order should supersede the old. We were proud that we could have the opportunity to point the way to world peace, not mere cessation of conflict, but the peace of permanence.

"An organization to that end was drawn up by the assembled nations, and through it all America's part was the clearest, the cleanest, and the highest-minded of all. In every nation men and women rejoiced that the spirit of America's flag was being translated into actual accomplishment, and in that rejoicing we shared. Today the accomplishment of the League of Nations has been made. We, the nation whose ideals made it possible, remain without. The flag which carried the hope and the promise is beginning to be viewed with different eyes abroad.

"Not only in France, not only in Europe, but in all the peoples of all the world lies that hope in our flag. They ask us to go in. They ask not for a new peace commission, not for a new theory, not for a new conference to draw up a new set of rules. They ask a fair trial for what we have undertaken. They ask that America help in the name of humanity. They ask that they be given again the inspiration of our flag.

"Shall we refuse? Shall we for partisanship stand alone? Shall we forget our history and the history of our flag?

"America will not fail in the crisis. America will not turn back. America will not forget."

Wonderful Anniversary Values in New Fall Shoes

WONDERFUL is not too strong a word. With fine shoes priced as they are today these Anniversary Special values are wonderful.

If bought in the regular way by stores of average buying power they would naturally be retailed up to $12.50. That's how good these shoes are.

The specially low Anniversary pricing throughout our fall lines is the result of three factors: (1) Our large buying power, (2) the close co-operation of the manufacturers, and (3) keeping our profit margin on every pair down to a minimum.

Every pair genuine calf or kid. Every pair made to our specifications. We've never offered a greater value.

REMEMBER, this Anniversary celebration means extreme values in every grade we handle. It's the biggest event in our 20 years of fitting men's shoes.

CHILDREN URGED TO JOIN "SAVE YOUR PENNIES" MOVE

Thrift Appeal Issued by St. Louis Director of Treasury's Savings Division.

A thrift appeal to school children was made yesterday by R. R. Smith, Government Director of the Savings Division of the Treasury Department for the Eighth Federal Reserve District, who urged that they become partners in Uncle Sam's "Save your pennies" plan. Children are asked to invest in the 25-cent thrift stamps, and when 16 are accumulated to change them with the addition of a few cents for the $5 savings stamps.

Teachers are asked to encourage the thrift habit in their pupils, and to teach thrift principles. "Any teacher who does this," said Smith, "is doing much for the economic strength and practical patriotism of the child. Every child who buys a thrift stamp feels a partnership in the Government, he learns the wisdom of investing his savings in securities that are absolutely safe, and as he sticks stamp after stamp upon his card, he has a visual demonstration of how savings accrue."

A statement from Washington shows that 130,000 New England school children invested a million and a half dollars in thrift stamps during the school year 1919-1920. Children in Texas invested enough in thrift stamps to pay for the State Capitol at Austin, six times over, and the sum of two million dollars in pennies was saved by the children of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

POLITICIANS IN TUG OF WAR

Maplewood and Benton Officials to Contend at Community Meet.

An attempt to determine which has the more "pull," the politicians of Maplewood of those of Benton, will be made at the community meet to be held on the Maplewood High School grounds, next Saturday, when they will contend in a tug of war.

The meet, which is to be under the auspices of the Benton-Maplewood Community Y. M. C. A., will probably have more than 1000 boys and men entered, according to Harry W. Gibson, who is in charge. The Boy Scouts of Clayton will give an exhibition drill in the afternoon.

SOME REASONS WHY WE SHOULD HAVE YOUR BATTERY BUSINESS

1. Experienced, qualified men.
2. Sufficient mechanical equipment.
3. A Policy of Fair, Square Dealing.

Perhaps to those we should add a fourth:

4. We are Distributors and Service Station for the

PHILADELPHIA DIAMOND GRID BATTERY

With Philco Retainers Guaranteed for Two Years

Nor do we wish to slight this fourth reason. It is no easy matter to secure the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. franchise. And it can only be retained when the service to car owners is such as would be expected between a merchant of the highest type and his most exacting customers.

Aside from this we feel a personal pride in representing this battery, knowing as we do that whenever one is sold a friend is created.

REO

Just Think—330,000 Miles!

Do you know—have you ever heard of—any other motor truck that has to its credit an authenticated record of 50,000 miles in actual, every-day service carrying its capacity load?

Now consider this record.

One Reo "Speed-Wagon" now has to its credit more than 330,000 miles—and still adding to that mileage daily—that's thirteen times around the world.

It is one of a fleet of passenger busses running between Los Angeles and Anaheim on a daily schedule as regularly as any railway train.

In the same city—Los Angeles—is a fleet of ten Reo "Speed-Wagons" each of which now has an average of over 150,000 miles!

These latter are engaged in picking up and delivering laundry.

Do you know of any other Motor truck that has, or can, equal those records made by Reo "Speed-Wagons" in every-day service?

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

THE NEW INDUSTRIAL UNREST; REASONS AND REMEDIES. By Ray Stannard Baker. Discusses recent developments and the problem as it exists at the present time. The author testified before the Industrial Commission and gives in this book the viewpoint of a trained observer of labor problems.

THE STORY OF OUR NATIONAL BALLADS. By A. C. Browne. Gives facts and origin of twelve songs which gained prominence in the Revolutionary and Civil wars, as well as those inspired by the Spanish-American and the recent war. Well illustrated.

VAGABONDING THROUGH CHANGING GERMANY. By Harry A. Franck. This author of popular books of travel has given comprehensive information of a country whose recent internal affairs are little known. The many photographic illustrations are of equal interest.

CENTURY READINGS FOR A COURSE IN AMERICAN LITERATURE. By Fred Lewis Pattee. Contains selections and excerpts from the lesser known writers, novelists and poets as well as from those of prominence, beginning with Benjamin Franklin and concluding with O. Henry. A short biography is given of each.

COLLOQUIAL SPANISH. By William Roberts Patterson. A simple and useful arrangement for those desiring a working knowledge of Spanish. The material and examples are selected with this end in view.

PLAYS AND PAGEANTS OF DEMOCRACY. By Ursula Payne. Contains four pageants and two plays written in verse and based on patriotism. Costuming is fully described and occasions upon which the selections may be most suitably given are mentioned.

THE HOLOCAUST; ITALY'S STRUGGLE WITH THE HAPSBURG. By Amilda A. Pons. The authoress endeavors to show the true character of the oppressors of Italy during the last hundred years. The events are described in anecdotal and biographical forms.

THE PHOTOPLAY SYNOPSIS. By A. Van Buren Powell. Useful for motion picture writers in showing how to develop the bare idea to a complete synopsis. An example concludes the book which contains many clever chapters.

WINSTON SIMPLIFIED DICTIONARY. Edited by William D. Lewis and Edgar A. Singer. New words brought into use by the war and current events are given as well as those of common use. It includes an interesting chapter on "How our language has grown," the book being well illustrated.

HOUSEBOAT DAYS IN CHINA, by J. P. Bland.—A charming book by an Englishman long resident in China, which tells of shooting trips on remote rivers and in untraveled places. The leisurely narrative is packed with acute and sympathetic comment on Chinese manners and morals, politics and philosophy.

EVOLUTION OF SINN FEIN, by R. M. Henry.—A comprehensive account of the development of Irish nationalism since the death of Parnell. The author has a sympathetic but quite dispassionate attitude in his study of the Irish struggle.

SWINBURNE AS I KNEW HIM, by Coulson Kernahan. — Anecdotal and humorous sketches of Swinburne and his devoted friend Watts-Dutton which leave rather vivid impressions of the two celebrities in one's mind.

LECTURES ON INDUSTRIAL PSYCHOLOGY, by Bernard Muscio.—The five lectures by Prof. Muscio of Cambridge, investigator to the Industrial Fatigue Board of Great Britain, are on the immediate aim of industrial psychology, mental factors relevant to industry, selection of workers on the basis of natural fitness, the best method of work, the desirability of applying psychology to industry. Simply and clearly presented.

ST. GEORGE AND THE DRAGONS, by Eden Phillpotts.—Light and clever comedy, in which an Anglican bishop is the St. George who rescues two high-born maidens from the tragedy of marrying out of their class.

J. WILLIAM WHITE, M. D., by Agnes Repplier.—The life of a brilliant and whimsical Philadelphia physician, written by his lifelong friend. The combination of a subject of such distinction and Miss Repplier's vivacious style results in a biography of unusual interest.

THE WHOLE ARMOUR OF MAN, by C. W. Saleeby.—Speeches and papers urging a Ministry of Health as a vitally necessary department of government in peace as well as in war. Its duties would be to learn and to teach, to guard and to help. Fearless in its analysis of social ills and optimistic as to results that could be obtained by State action, the book contains valuable material for social and public health workers.

EUROPE AND THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, by Charles Sarolea.—The author, professor in the University of Edinburgh and Belgian Consul at Edinburgh, holds that the peace treaty is the imperfect and tentative achievement of the congress at Versailles, and that the League of Nations was "the real business, the only solid piece of work that has been done * * and that we ought to be eternally grateful to America for compelling them to do."

THE RECREATIONS OF AN HISTORIAN, by G. M. Trevelyan.—Eight essays by the well-known English historian. Chiefly historical, but some are on literary themes, and the best one of all is on walking. Well written and interesting.

IDLE MEN CAUSE BIG EXODUS OF DETROIT WORKERS

Employers' Association Says 28,000 Fewer Men Are Working in Factories There Than on April 1.

HOUSING SITUATION IS MUCH EASIER

Union Heads and Employers Agree That Cause Is Due to Fact That Automobile Trade Has Slackened.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 11.—According to the figures of the Employers' Association, 28,000 less men are employed in the factories of Detroit than were employed April 1. Many other thousands, the number of which in unestimated, are working on part time. Consequently for the first time in a long period, rooms are easier to get than in New York, the housing tension has slackened to the point where a canvass by the Board of Commerce shows a considerable number of vacancies, and wages for unskilled and semi-skilled tend lower, with manufacturers "adjusting" piecework.

Normally, according to the Board of Commerce, Detroit has a floating population of idle men of about 15,000. How many are idle now no official estimate says. Unofficially the guesses range from 50,000, made by an industrial expert, to 75,000, by F. X. Martell, president of the Central Labor Union. How many thousands have left the city is indicated by the large number of empty rooms, the comparative ease with which furnished or unfurnished houses may be had, a drop in the price of flats, and the assertion of a railroad official who sought to check up the situation that no fewer than 400 families a week have been leaving Detroit the last few weeks.

Real Check Impossible.

The value of these latter figures is, however, said to be doubtful by other railroad officials, who say that this number is largely offset by families coming in and that the loss on balance is probably not in excess of 150 families a week. They further say that as thousands of families have been living in one or two furnished rooms and have nothing to move but a dress suitcase or two, a real check of the situation is impossible.

The cause for all this, employers and union heads agree, is the slackening down of the motor industry, on which Detroit's increase in population from 465,766 in 1910 to 993,739 in 1920 was based. This in turn is charged to the action of the Federal Reserve banks in tightening credits to automobile dealers and others in the trade with minor contributing factors, such as a cold, wet spring and the high price of gasoline.

"There is no doubt that the automobile trade has slowed down," says Harry V. Warner, secretary of the Board of Commerce, "but we are by no means in as bad condition as reports which have reached some parts of the outer world would seem to indicate. For example, I received a letter recently asking if some of our abandoned motor factories could not be used for other purposes. Well, there are none such in Detroit, and none are likely, for this condition is but temporary. Late fall or early spring will show improvement.

Housing Situation Easier.

"There is unemployment here, and unquestionably there has been a large exodus, but how many have left it is impossible to say. The housing situation is easier—a canvass we now have under way shows that there are houses and apartments to let and the 'To Let' sign has reappeared, but this does not tell a great deal.

"It may mean that families which have been using a five-room flat by itself has doubled up with another small family to save money. This is being done, I am sure.

"Not all of the plants here are are running below capacity. The Ford and Dodge plants are increasing production. Other plants, notably the Cadillac of the General Motors, haven't factory capacity enough. There are men at the Ford plant every day looking for work—always men at the gates. The largest decreases have been in the accessories and parts plants. Orders to these from the makers have slowed down in anticipation of perhaps less business later.

"The cause? Well, the tightening up of bank credits is the real cause. When the dealer could not finance himself, he had to slow down with his orders, and persons who otherwise would have bought have not done so. The result is a general slowing down in the industry. However, it is but temporary, and in the end will work for the benefit of all."

7 to 8 Per Cent Decrease.

"The slowing down here," said C. M. Culver, manager of the Employers' Association, "is mainly on the part of those making engines and other parts and accessories. The builders are not ordering. Our figures show that 78 firms, corporations and individuals who April 1 were employing 198,000 hands, are now employing but 183,000. These are approximate figures and show a decrease of 7 to 8 per cent. On the basis of a total working population of 350,000 this means perhaps 28,000 hands laid off. Of those not laid off a very great many are working part time—five days a week, perhaps. This may be true of 10 per cent; it may run higher.

"Some plants have taken advantage of the slacking down to take inventories and readjust their wage schedules. The base hour rates have not been cut, but I would not be surprised to find that piece rates have been reduced where they have been found to be excessive."

W. A. Longan, international president of the United Automobile and Vehicle Workers' Union, estimates the number of idle in Detroit at 50,000 and the number who have left town because of unemployment at another 50,000.

"The best proof that tens of thousands have left town is that the rooming houses are largely empty. You can get all the rooms you want at reasonable prices now. A while back

A GAS LIGHT Company operated an Acme truck for three years—total mileage 35,000 miles. The repair cost for this period was less than $5.00.

When the time came to add another truck, their business was solicited by many truck manufacturers. They answered the argument of every salesman with the definite fact of Acme performance. The Acme won out on a purely business basis.

Acme's new friends always become old friends. Acme proved construction demonstrates its merits so conclusively that owners are invariably satisfied.

The 1921 Haynes Touring Car at $2935 actually impresses people as a $5000 car

TWENTY-nine hundred and thirty-five dollars never before bought such a beautiful car, such a remarkably perfect mechanical system as the new 1921 Haynes Seven Passenger Touring Car. It is really $1000 underpriced—compared with other cars of the same value.

Owners of these cars report to us that hardly a day passes without someone expressing surprise when told the actual cost of the car. The average person thinks it must be at least $5000.

This is natural, for the 1921 Haynes Touring Car is one of the finest automobiles ever made, through and through.

Its high hood, superb lines, splendid finish, deep upholstery, refined fittings and general air of luxury leave nothing to be desired.

And it is more than ninety per cent. Haynes-made—the famous Haynes engine is especially built by our own experts, and every essential feature of the car, from its first design to its final approval, is under the eyes and in the hands of the men who have made the reputation of the Haynes through all the years since Elwood Haynes created and built America's first car.

The four factors of car-character—Beauty, Strength, Power and Comfort—are scientifically combined in the Haynes.

Our policy is to give our patrons the benefit of our own economies, and in this instance the difference between what you think the car can be bought for and its actual price is a genuine surprise, which you will appreciate all the more when you look at the car.

Come and see the new 1921 Haynes—or telephone Bomont or Central 1439 for a demonstration.

it was take what you could get and pay what you had to. It is the same with houses. Three months ago one of our office men and I were looking for flats. The best we could do was $75 to $125 for five ordinary rooms. Now we can get five good rooms for $50 if you want to look around a bit. I doubt if you can get a lease at that figure, for the owners think rents are going back and make the low rates now only to fill the places for the winter.

Men Not Kept Busy.

"Wages for skilled men are holding up, but there is not so much for them to do. Wages for unskilled depend on how badly they may be wanted. They may run as low as $3.25 a day for beginners at Fords—one may have to work six months before he qualifies for the $6.40 that all are supposed to get there—to 65 cents an hour in the foundries."

"What's become of the men leaving town?" he was asked.

"They've gone back to the farms, for the most part," he replied. "At least a whole lot of them have. That's where they came from in the first place. There is not so much skilled work in the auto trades; it's mostly work that calls for strength and endurance, and it does not take that kind long to qualify. The supposed big money brought them in. Now they go back where they came from."

ILLINOIS BUILT 54 MILES OF HARD ROADS IN 26 DAYS

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 11.—Approximately 54 miles of hard-surfaced roads were completed in Illinois during the period from Aug. 1 to Aug. 26, bringing the total construction for this year to 154 miles and exceeding that accomplished in any other State, according to S. E. Bradt, Superintendent of Highways. General rains over the State forced a suspension of work for one or two days during that period and prevented a larger total.

Mileage completed this year up to the time of this report is distributed as follows:: Lincoln Highway, 31 miles; Dixie Highway, 24 miles; National Old Trails, 38 miles; Chicago-St. Louis road, 54 miles; State aid work, 7 miles.

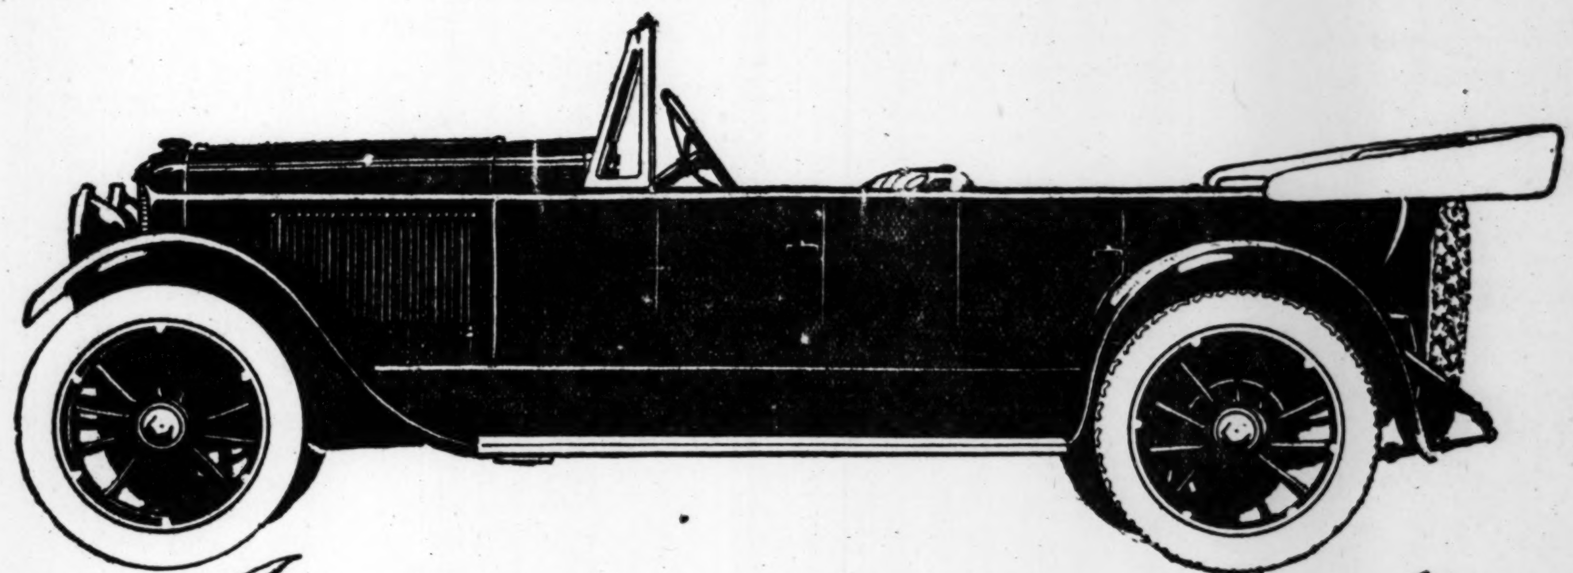
Uncompleted contracts on these roads total approximately 303 miles, distributed as follows: Lincoln Highway, 32 miles; Dixie Highway, 42 miles; National Old Trails, 79 miles; Chicago-St. Louis road, 130 miles; Chicago-Waukegan road, 20 miles.

Comparison with highway construction work in progress in other states show that Pennsylvania is a close second with 109 miles of hard-surface roads completed to Aug. 13, and is laying at a rate of 20 to 25 miles per week, according to Superintendent Bradt. Aug. 13 Illinois had completed 132 miles.

"The significance of this improvement is realized by few," declared Bradt. "It will mean a continuous road from Clinton, Ia., to Chicago, from Chicago through Joliet, La Salle, Peoria, Springfield to East St. Louis, thence east to Marshall, Clark County, north through Danville to Chicago and on through Waukegan to the Wisconsin State line.

"Over 3,200,000 of the 6,000,000 people of the State live along this system, which passes through some of the best farming districts of the State. Probably over 75 per cent of the manufacturing interests of the State are on this system of highways. These facts go to show that this is not a system of roads built for pleasure traffic, but for business traffic, carrying the products of our farms and factories as well."

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA



Announcing a New

PAIGE

TO the general motoring public we extend a very cordial invitation to visit our show rooms and inspect a motor car that represents the supreme achievement of the Paige engineering and designing staff.

Today and for the coming week, we shall hold "Open House" in recognition of a most important event in Paige history. For, today, we introduce a six-cylinder car that establishes a new standard of automobile value, and creates for itself an altogether unique position in Motordom.

This new Paige Model is unique and distinctive because it is a car without a legitimate competitor. From every standpoint of luxurious motoring it is only comparable with the very finest and most expensive motor carriages of this country and Europe. Yet—by virtue of its cost alone—it is a member of the popular priced field.

These are indeed strong statements, but we make them with absolute confidence.

If you are inclined to be skeptical, please remember that you have yet to see the most beautiful body design that has ever been produced—a power plant that is capable of seventy-five miles per hour—and a chassis that expresses the last word in strictly modern engineering.

The newest and greatest of all Paiges is here and ready for your inspection. We shall gladly arrange for demonstration upon request.

Record of New Chilean Destroyer.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Aug. 17.—The destroyer Broke, which the Chilean Government has purchased from Great Britain, together with the battleship La Torre and the destroyer Faulkner, figured in a notable episode during the war. In 1917 the Broke, commanded by Capt. Evans, the Antarctic explorer, with the destroyer Swift, engaged six German destroyers. The Broke sank two, torpedoed another and rammed one in which hand-to-hand fighting ensued. The new acquisitions to the navy are expected in Chilean waters before the end of the war.

TANK THAT WILL RUN UNDER WATER DEVISED

U. S. Officers Predict Amphibious Machine That Will Cross Ocean Like Submarine.

Special to the Post Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Amphibious tanks such as predicted by Gen. Estinne of the French Army in press dispatches from Paris, as part of the mechanical elements replacing man power in future wars, are not considered visionary by American Army officers who have studied closely the lessons taught by the World War.

These officers declare that not only these tanks, but cannon carrying airplanes, armored cars with the speed of express trains and huge steel defying heavy gun-carrying land battleships are in the realms of immediate possibility.

Proof of the concreteness of the prediction of amphibious tanks is given in a recent successful tryout of a tank invented by an Englishman which reepatedly crossed a river in the south of England. While the depth of the river is not stated, what little information that seeped through the censorship on war inventions still in force in England, asserts that the tank crawled through water deeper than its height.

Information gathered recently by American Army observers in France and in England, and now in the hands of the General Staff, shows that both countries are constantly trying out inventions and developing ideas formed as the result of tank wars in France.

England has retained her full corps and has concentrated it in huge camps where the machines that proved so successful in the drives against the Germans are being perfected and new tanks are being built.

In addition to the amphibious tank that is only slightly different in design from the so-called "whippet" that proved so deadly in open warfare, the British have evolved a light tank that will exceed thirty miles an hour on level ground, a medium weight tank that will run at the rate of twenty miles an hour over rough ground and a heavy tank that will drive along at more than twelve miles an hour.

The amphibious light and medium tanks now being perfected by the British mount only machine guns and one small cannon, but the heavy tanks, which average in weight around fifty tons, are armed with six pounders and machine guns.

The French Tank Corps, according to information gleaned by observers, not only has greatly improved their light fast tanks, but has also evolved what is known as a super-tank, mounting a heavy gun and armored to turn a six-inch shell. This tank weighs sixty tons and can be driven at twelve miles an hour over the roughest ground.

Army officers believe the British amphibious tank is but a step toward an eventual tank that not only will operate on land but will be of a submersible type that can travel from coast to coast as does a submarine at present.

Thousands Know That No Other Light Car Gives So Much In Real Satisfaction

The Cleveland Six has won its place of favor among thousands of discriminating buyers by its splendid performance in daily service. There has been no appeal of weird claims, no stunt records. Those who sell the Cleveland sell it for what it really is, a distinctly better car. And those who buy it, buy it with the understanding and conviction that it is a better car, that it will serve them honestly.

The Cleveland has made its friends by its character. It is of sturdy construction, dignified in line, handsomely finished and alive with power. The exclusive Cleveland motor, quiet, pliant and powerful, the most highly refined of the enclosed overhead valve type, is foremost among light six motors. Its rapid acceleration, its pulling power which takes it flying over the hills and its economy of fuel, mark it as an unusual motor. Drivers who know motors by experience say there is no other like it.

You will be interested in the ease of handling your Cleveland, how lightly it steers, how easily it shifts and at the instantly positive action of its brakes. And for comfort, the long underslung springs smooth out the roughest roads and add pleasure to country driving.

A real ride in the Cleveland will show you, better than we can tell you, what a good car the Cleveland is. A real ride will show you qualities that do not come with many other cars.

Beautiful body lines place the Cleveland above the usual plane in appearance. The open-car upholstery is of genuine hand-buffed leather. The sedan and coupe are upholstered in rich velour.

FUND INQUIRY GOES OVER; EVIDENCE OF LEVY ON GIRLS BY DEMOCRATS GIVEN

Kenyon Committee Will Meet Again Sept. 22 in East—Gov. Cox Not to Be Subpenaed, Chairman Decides After Receiving Demands for Such Action.

$120 REVENUE CLERKS IN DAKOTA GAVE $40

One Testifies Contribution Was Voluntary—Reed and Kenyon Condemn Assessment of Girl Employes as Absolutely Inexcusable.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—The Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures today wound up a two-weeks' inquiry into charges of Gov. Cox that the Republican party is seeking a $15,000,000 fund. The sessions here also developed testimony bearing on charges that the Democratic party solicited campaign contributions from Federal office holders and accepted unlimited amounts from other contributors.

The committee will meet again Sept. 22 in either Washington or New York, Chairman Kenyon being empowered to choose the city. Senator Kenyon said that if Washington was selected, the witnesses who were to have been heard at Pittsburg would be called to the capital. The committee had planned a meeting in Pittsburg to investigate reports that Pennsylvania liquor interests were taking an active part in financing the Democratic campaign.

The last day's hearings were conducted by Chairman Kenyon and Senators Reed and Pomerene. Senators Spencer and Edge were absent, the latter having left Chicago last night after issuing a statement deriding the Cox charges. This attitude drew criticisms from the Democratic members of the committee, Senator Reed having characterized the Edge statement as "indecent."

Chicago Campaign Gone Into.

Republican plans for a seven-day drive for funds in Chicago and testimony that the Democrats had assessed girl employes of the Internal Revenue Office at Aberdeen, S. D., $40 each to help finance the Democratic campaign were the topics of today's inquiry.

Frederick C. Barber of New York, a professional money raiser, in charge of the Chicago Republican drive, told the committee he had prepared a card index of about 25,000 prospective contributors, including a preferred list of some 700 to 800, each of whom was believed to be able to give $1000. Upwards of 2000 workers will be engaged in the one week's drive, he said, with $500,000 as the goal.

Testimony by Caleb Enix, a Chicago newspaper man, that the Republican National Committee had sent out publicity matter giving the Chicago quota as $700,000, led Barber to say that he had heard others make the same statement, but he "let them rave." His goal, he emphasized, was $500,000, and if he raised that amount, he said, he said, he would consider the drive a 100 per cent success.

"Who talked about large amounts that you allowed them to 'rave' over?" Senator Reed asked. "Various men, some team captains," replied Barber.

"Did you ever discuss the amount with Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the Republican National Committee?" "Yes, sir; that is, there was not an awful lot of discussion about it. Mr. Upham would say something and I would listen and not contradict him, all the time with my own plans in mind."

"While you kept in your own mind what you were going to raise, what did Mr. Upham say about what you should raise?"

"Mr. Upham is not an easy man to contradict, and I usually found that the easiest way with him was to let him express his own opinion and then go ahead with my own plans. Mr. Upham in some talk with me mentioned $700,000, but I could not be sure whether he mentioned it for all of Illinois or only for Cook County."

Girl Tells of Contributing.

Miss Eunice Coyne, a newspaper reporter in Aberdeen, S. D., and Miss Jesse Burchard of Minneapolis, a clerk in the Aberdeen Internal Revenue Collector's office, told of the Democratic effort to raise money from girl clerks. Miss Burchard said she had willingly donated $40 from her salary of $120 a month

Speaking Trips to Both Coasts Planned by Harding

St. Louis One of Cities in Tentative Itinerary Which Is Being Arranged for Republican Nominee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, O., Sept. 11.—Tentative plans for speaking trips by Senator Harding to both coasts have reached the stage, it became known today, where an itinerary is under discussion. Present plans would carry the Senator into many states and would keep him away from Marion most of the time from late September to election day

Headquarters officials said a definite decision probably would not be reached for several days, but it was indicated that both the nominee and his managers were inclining toward the coast-to-coast proposal. The Senator himself has taken the position that should he go into the West at all he must visit every Western state in which there is a Senatorial contest, and it is understood that his wish in that regard is to prevail.

St. Louis in Tentative List.

The tentative list of cities to be visited is understood to include New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Indianapolis, Louisville, Milwaukee or Madison, Omaha, St. Louis, Sioux City, Sioux Falls or Pierre, Bismarck or Fargo, Butte, Boise City, Salt Lake City, Denver, Reno, Tucson, Oklahoma City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Spokane. The Western swing would come first, beginning probably about Sept. 27, and the visit to Eastern cities would follow in late October.

The number of business men from Illinois, Indiana and Michigan who heard the Senator's two speeches today marked the high peak of front porch crowds.

The Senator made two speeches today to the business men. The first he delivered during the morning to a delegation from Chicago, and the second late in the day to those from Michigan and Indiana.

The Michigan crowd announced their arrival by firing a presidential salute of 21 bombs from a trench mortar set up at the railway station. After the speech they set off another series of bombs and a display of red fire while a mixed sextette serenaded the nominee.

"Jazz" on the Program

A saxaphone quartette from South Bend also helped "jazz up" the program and a part of the ceremonies was presentation of a cornet made in South Bend to the candidate.

"One has to blow his own horn in the world," said the Senator in a speech of thanks, "but I don't like the man who blows his horn too blatently. In the campaign I want to stick to the tune, and I want that tune to be the one that was so beautifully rendered just now—America First."

(A full report of Senator Harding's speeches will be found on Page 1 of the General News Section of the Post-Dispatch.)

VOLUME I OF 'JOURNAL' OF LEAGUE SENT TO PRINTER

Ten Treaties in First Series to Be Recorded Under Covenant.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The first series of treaties received for registration in accordance with the covenant of the League of Nations was sent to the printer today for publication as Volume 1 of the league's official journal. Ten agreements are included, relating to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Great Britain, Japan, The Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland, France, Greece, Italy and Bulgaria, together with a general treaty on the preservation of the re-establishment of the rights of industrial properties affected by the world war.

Acknowledging receipt of the league's memorandum concerning registration and publication of treaties, Herr St. Hamer, German Charge in London, has written the league saying that Germany is fully prepared to inform the Secretary-General of all such agreements entered upon since the peace treaty came into force, and would act similarly regarding future agreements.

PRIZES FOR CONDITION OF TEETH

Children Examined at County Fair in New York.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—One of the interesting features of the Dutchess County Fair, held at Rhinebeck this week, was an examination of children's teeth, with awards for hygienic mouth conditions.

Money prizes were furnished by Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Tracy Dows and Mrs. Frances G. Landon, residents of New York and Rhinebeck.

It was no unusual sight to see a child who had won a dollar or a doll, the second prize, dragging 12 or 15 children to the tent, with "Come on, fellers. If you've got good teeth you'll sure get a dollar."

Few really good teeth were found, however, and during the entire week little more than $100 was given out. [illegible] children's teeth were

FIRST MAIL PLANE IS 16 HOURS LATE AT SAN FRANCISCO

West Is Moved 24 Hours Nearer the East When Machine Arrives From New York.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—The West was moved 24 hours nearer the East today when the first transcontinental mail plane landed here 16 hours late. When the service settles down to schedule the planes will deliver mail two days sooner than trains do now.

Vieing with the pony express and the first fast mail trains as a maker of national history, the plane swept over San Francisco Bay a few minutes after 2 o'clock and at 2:25 came to rest on the Marina here, overlooking the Golden Gate. The mail it bore was transferred to a waiting motor truck and rushed to the general Postoffice. Tonight persons read letters that started their westward trip last Wednesday morning at 6:41 a. m. from Mineola, N. Y.

E. E. Mouton, a Reno aviator, climbed out of the fuselage and shook hands with Charles W. Fay, Postmaster, smiling after a trip that had taken him but a few minutes more than two hours, though it occupies the larger part of a day when made by train.

While winging its way from Mineola Field, the pilot passed two eastbound transcontinental mailplanes which cleared from here yesterday and today, the first to leave San Francisco in this service. Seven sacks of mail, four destined for San Francisco, one for Washington, one for Oregon and one for California points outside this city, were brought by the plane.

DIAMOND RINGS STOLEN AT HOTEL RETURNED BY MAIL

Three Rings, Valued by Woman at $1100, Wrapped in Cigarette Package.

Three diamond rings, valued at $1100, stolen from Mrs. Virginia Thomas, living at the Hamilton Hotel, on Sept. 1, were received at the hotel yesterday by mail.

The rings were wrapped in common tablet writing paper and the whole pushed into a cigarette package and that enclosed in a cardboard box with Mrs. Thomas' address written on it.

Manager Weaver of the hotel, on receiving the package, turned it over to Chief of Detectives Hannegan, who, in turn, sent for Mrs. Thomas. The box with the writing on it was retained by detectives.

Mrs. Thomas missed the rings when she left them on a washroom stand and forgot them temporarily. When she returned, 30 minutes later, they were gone.

FORMER KAISER SAID TO BE WRITING BOOK ON BOLSHEVISM

Daily Output About Three Pages of Manuscript—No Arrangement for Publication Made.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—"I learn that the former Kaiser is devoting his evenings to the writing of a book on Bolshevism," says the Doorn correspondent of the Daily Mail. "His daily output is about three pages of manuscript, and these are typed by his secretary.

No arrangements have been made for the publication of his work.

ALL VOTERS MUST REGISTER WITHIN NEXT FOUR DAYS

Work Will Begin Tomorrow and Last Through Thursday—Places Provided in Every Voting Precinct.

HEAVY REGISTRATION OF WOMEN SOUGHT

League of Women Voters to Parade Through Downtown Section Tomorrow in Effort to Stir Up Interest.

Registration for the November election, at which Missourians will vote on a President, United States Senator, Congressmen, State and County officials, will begin tomorrow in St. Louis and continue through Thursday. All persons who vote in the election, men and women, will have to register on one of these four days. Registration places are located in every voting precinct, and voters must register in the precinct in which they live.

Special interest is attached to registration this year because it is the first registration of women, and vigorous efforts are being exerted by the organizations of both major political parties, by the St. Louis League of Women Voters and many independent organizations, to obtain a heavy registration of women.

Automobile Parade Tomorrow.

To focus attention of women upon this act, without which they will be unable to avail themselves of suffrage, the League has arranged a big automobile parade to be given tomorrow. The parade is to form on Lindell boulevard at Grand avenue and move east at 11 a. m. to and through the downtown section. All political and other organizations of women, as well as individuals are invited to participate. Many of the cars will be decorated. A parade of this sort in Kansas City recently contained nearly 800 machines.

The procession will disband at the Federal building, Ninth and Olive streets, where a registration demonstration will be given, with speeches, probably from the Olive street steps, by Mayor Kiel and a number of candidates.

Information Booths to Be Opened.

The League also has brought about the plan for four information booths, at which women may learn how, when and where to register, which will be opened tomorrow morning in four department stores, as follows: Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., Sixth street and Washington avenue; Famous & Barr Co., Sixth and Locust streets; Nugent's, Broadway and Washington avenue; Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney Dry Goods Co., Ninth and Olive streets.

These booths will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily.

Thousands of cards and circulars reminding both men an women to register were delivered to voters by mail yesterday, and yellow handbills with the same message were delivered to many homes.

The American Woman's Council of Justice, through its local president, Miss Emilie M. Sweeney has sent letters to its members, urging them to register, that they may "exercise the right of suffrage, which is now a duty we owe to God and Country."

"POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL" WHO RAN AWAY, FOUND ON FARM

Cut Her Hair, Donned Overalls and Rowed Out to Ship, but Captain Told Her She Was Too Young.

By the Associated Press.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 11.—Miss Louisa Fletcher, of Indianapolis, who fled from the family summer home at Gloucester on Thursday was found today at a farm house near Ipswich.

Miss Fletcher told the police she fled from home because she felt she had been subjected to too much discipline and was tired of being a "poor little rich girl."

She said she decided to make her own way in the world. She cut her hair short, put on overalls and rowed in a dory to a fishing vessel outside Gloucester harbor and asked the captain if he wanted an extra hand. The captain told her she was too young.

After that Miss Fletcher rowed across Annisquam Bay and landed on the Essex shore. This morning a farmer near Ipswich engaged her as a laborer. She began work at once but her appearance caused her employer to notify the police that he believed his hired man was a girl in disguise.

Mrs. Fletcher tonight took her daughter from the detention room at the Gloucester Police Station to the family summer cottage at East Gloucester.

DETECTIVES SAY BONDSMEN HINDER CRIME ROUNDUP

Chief O'Brien Reminds Police They Can Reject Common Law Bonds in Cases of Emergency.

GANGSTERS FREED IN RECORD TIME

Releasing of Prisoners Is Said to Prevent Identification by Witnesses Who Do Not Come Back.

Following complaint by city detectives that they are severely handicapped in their efforts to check payroll robberies, whisky thefts, safecracking and other predominating forms of crime by the pernicious activity of professional bondsmen, Chief of Police O'Brien yesterday, for the second time, directed the attention of the Secret Service Bureau and the captains of the various districts to an order issued six months ago by the Judges of the Court of Criminal Correction permitting the police to reject common-law bonds in cases of emergency.

The detectives deplored the fact that whenever they rounded up gangs of known crooks following outbreaks of crime they were prevented from having the suspects viewed by victims for purposes of identification because the prisoners invariably were released on common-law bonds furnished by professional bondsmen in an amazingly short time after the arrests.

Seven Gangs Are Known.

It was pointed out by the detectives that there are seven groups of police characters in St. Louis, the members of which are arrested on suspicion after each outbreak of crime. These gangs and their respective meeting places, according to the detectives, are as follows: "The Cuckoos," Tenth and Rutger streets; "The Forty Thieves," Vandeventer and Fairfax avenues; "Egan's Rats," Fourteenth street and Franklin avenue; "Jelly-Roll Gang," Jefferson and Cass avenues; "Miller's Automobile Club," Blair and Cass avenues; "Matt's Gang," Twenty-second and Madison streets, and a nameless crowd that spends its leisure time in the saloon at 2745 Cass avenue.

The gangsters, the detectives say, are regular clients of a coterie of professional bondsmen who can be reached by telephone at any time of the day or night at certain established locations. If the bondsman leaves his stand he arranges to have a telephone call forwarded to him so that no time is lost in getting the prisoner out of the police station. The leaders of this class of bondsmen and their telephone locations are: Charles Nash, Thirteenth and Market streets; Charles (Cap) Troll, Twelfth and Pine streets; Beverly Brown and G. J. "Cully" Owens, Fourteenth and Chestnut streets, and John Kelly, Grand and Lucas avenues.

May Carry Blank Bonds.

The fact that in numerous cases bondsmen with common laws bonds, covering any charge that might be preferred, from petty larceny to highway robbery, or from assault and battery to suspected of murder, appeared at the police station within 15 minutes after the prisoners were booked, caused the detectives to suspect that the bondsmen were carrying blank bonds in their pockets and filling them out as soon as they learned that arrests had been made.

The custom is for the bondsman to telephone to the police station where the prisoners are held and inquire as to the charge on which they are booked. Within an exceptionally short time after the information is obtained, the bondsman appears at the station with bonds covering the charge. In many instances the arresting detectives are out seeking witnesses in the case, and when they return they find that their prisoners have been released. Frequently the witnesses cannot spare the time to make a second trip to the station, and, as a result, the investigation is dropped before the expiration of the common law bond.

Most of the common law bonds, the detectives said, were approved by Judge Chauncey Krueger, and, since his vacation, which began Aug. 14, by Provisional Judge Rozier G. Meigs, who has been acting in Krueger's place, having been appointed for that purpose by Circuit Judge Hartmann.

Judge Available at Night.

In denying that blank bonds had been furnished to bondsmen, "Gully" Owens said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that Provisional Judge Meigs remained at his private office in the Times Building every night until 11 o'clock, and that bondsmen had been reaching him there, which, he said, accounted for the promptness with which many bonds recently have been presented at police stations.

The reporter found Meigs in his

GROCERY COLLECTOR CARRYING $1000 IS ROBBED ON STREET

This Might Mean That Robbers Got $1000; Then Again, It Might Not.

About once a week one of the collectors of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co. is held up and robbed. Last evening Carl Wolff of 6821 Bleeck avenue, a Kroger collector, was stopped on Goodfellow avenue, near Romaine place, by three men who suddenly got out of a rusty Ford car.

"Stick 'em up, Jack," one of the men directed Wolff, and he lifted his hands. As he did so, a small bundle fell to the sidewalk.

"Give us your money, now," said the spokesman of the hold-up trio. "There it is on the sidewalk," the collector replied. The men picked up the packet, got back into their car, and rode away, turning east on Page boulevard.

"How much did they get?" a policeman was asking Wolff a few minutes later.

"They got a bundle of old receipts," Wolff said. "I expected to be held up sometime, after the experience of our other collectors, and I had the bundle ready for them, under my arm. The money I had collected was in my pocket."

"How much?" was the policeman's next question.

"About $1000."

TURKISH CROWN PRINCE ARRESTED IN ATTEMPT TO FLEE

Heir to Throne Said to Have Stirred Up Dissatisfaction With Present Rule.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 9.—The Turkish Crown Prince has made an unsuccessful attempt to flee from this city to Anatolia. He has been arrested and placed under rigorous control.

The action of the Crown Prince, who has not concealed the fact that his sympathies are with the Nationalists, is said to have provoked great dissatisfaction among adherents of the existing regime.

The heir apparent to the Turkish throne is Prince Abdul Medjid Effendi, uncle of the present Sultan. 9 Constantinople dispatch July 29, said he had sent the Sultan a letter renouncing his right to the Sultanate and transferring the succession to Prince Selim Effendi. It would appear, however, that the foregoing message refers to Prince Abdul, who has been reputed to have nationalistic sympathies.

20,000 IMMIGRANTS REACH ELLIS ISLAND IN WEEK

Disruption of Steamship Passenger Schedules Threatened by Influx of Foreigners.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Disruption of passenger schedules was said by steamship men to be threatened by the flood of immigrants flowing into New York so swiftly that Ellis Island cannot accommodate them. More than 20,000 aliens were brought in this week, but 10,000 of them have not yet been inspected because of inadequate facilities.

Operators of steamships are puzzled with the question of getting rid of foreign-born who have been forced to remain in the steerage since the ships docked. There was no room for them at Ellis Island.

Commissioner Wallis at Ellis Island is determined not to speed up by making superficial examinations. Too little caution in such matters has been the root of Bolshevism in America, he said today.

LEVIATHAN 'EATING ITS HEAD OFF'

Big Ship Has Cost U. S. $1,000,000 in Year It Has Been Idle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—While denying statements to the effect that the gigantic liner Leviathan has sunk or is on the verge of becoming a pile of junk, Shipping Board officials today admitted that the big vessel is deteriorating and, like a horse that is not working, is "eating its head off." Eliminating the enormous cost of normal depreciation in a vessel tied to a dock, which is much greater than when operating, the Leviathan already has cost the Government more than $1,000,000 since it was berthed in New York a year ago, and has not yielded one cent of revenue.

A conservative estimate of the cost of upkeep of the Leviathan, while lying idle, obtained by John Parton Payne, chairman of the Shipping Board, at the time William R. Hearst got an injunction preventing the sale of the ship, was $3000 a day, or a total of $1,095,000 a year. When the vessel last was offered for sale the Shipping Board received an offer of $3,500,000 for it, contingent, however, upon the bidders being loaned $6,500,000 to put the ship in condition to enter the passenger trade.

200 Employes Accept Wage Cut.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Two hundred employes of the Herbert hosiery mills at Conshohocken, Pa., have agreed to accept a 10 per cent reduction in wages so that the mill will not close, according to an announcement today by L. S. Herbert, head of the concern. All the employes are girls, some of whom received as much as $[illegible] a week.

COX'S FIRST REFERENCE TO WET ISSUE SAYS IT IS 'PART OF YESTERDAY'

AUTOPSY ON BODY OF OLIVE THOMAS TO BE PERFORMED

Investigators in Death of Actress by Poison Have Reported Findings to Prosecutors.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—An autopsy will be performed Monday on the body of Olive Thomas, the American motion picture actress who died Friday from poison said to have been taken by mistake in the American Hospital at Neuilly. It was announced tonight. The autopsy will be under the direction of the police.

The police commissary, who made the preliminary investigation into the mystery surrounding the death of the actress, has transmitted his findings to the public prosecutor. An investigating magistrate, M. Pamart, has been appointed to determine the cause of death, and future inquiries will be held under his direction.

FIRE STARTING IN COAL IN BASEMENT DAMAGES RESIDENCE

Fuel Was Stored Yesterday at Home of Howard Benoist, 4931 Pershing Avenue.

A two-alarm fire at the three-story residence of Howard Benoist, 4931 Pershing avenue at 12:30 a. m. today, resulted in considerable damage to the building from smoke and water. Members of the family are away, but a caretaker is in charge, and supervised the storing of eight or 10 tons of coal yesterday in the basement, where the fire originated.

Neighbors smelled smoke for about three hours before they discovered whence it came. No one was in the house when firemen arrived. They soon obtained control of the fire.

780 RUSSIAN REFUGEE CHILDREN BEGIN LAST SEA LEG OF RETURN

Wards of Red Cross Since 1918 Sail From New York to End Round-the-World Trip.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Beaming with smiles, 780 Russian refugee children begain tonight the last sea leg of a round-the-world trip to their homes in Petrograd, sailing from New York aboard the steamship Yomei Maru, chartered by the American Red Cross. The refugees have been in New York since Aug. 20. They were sent out of Petrograd during the war day so f1918, and were taken in charge by the Red Cross at Vladivostok.

Each of the refugee youngsters carried a new valise filled with clothes, all presented to them by local Russian societies. They reached the pier with shining faces, and their chaperones contrasted their appearance with that of two years ago, when 2000 jars of soap were used on them the first day they were placed in charge of the Red Cross.

The refugees will go to some Baltic port by way of Brest, and eventually will be turned over to their parents in Petrograd.

SHOT REMONSTRATING WITH MEN WHO BUMP AGAINST WIFE

Printer Says One of Pair Turned and Fired After Walking Away.

Stephen G. Hoffner, 21 years old, of 4530 Davidson avenue, a printer, was shot through the left forearm and stomach at 11 o'clock last night by two unidentified men at Alcott and Lillian avenues.

Hoffner, accompanied by his wife, was on his way home when the men, both strangers, bumped against Mrs. Hoffner. When Hoffner remonstrated with them they became abusive and walked away. Hoffner pursued them and one of the men turned and fired a shot. Hoffner threw up his arm to ward off the bullet and it passed through his arm and entered his stomach. He was taken to the city hospital in a serious condition. The assailants escaped.

Nominee in Seattle Declares "As a Progressive I Know When an Event Has Passed By."

RECEIVED DEMANDS FOR A STATEMENT

G. C. Cotterill, Introducing Him, Says Candidate Is Not "Wet," Charges Harding Had Brewery Stock.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 11.—Prohibition, the great silent topic of the campaign, came openly into the presidential campaign here tonight at a meeting addressed by Gov. Cox of Ohio, Democratic presidenital candidate.

The Governor, after an introruction to a large audience in which his sponsor, George C. Cotterill, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, denounced assertions that the candidate fas a "wet," made the following declaration:

"As a progressive in government, I know when an event has passed by and become a part of yesterday. The reactionary rarely does. The friends of world peace and the friends of progress will win this election, and any attempt to divide them on any question not an issue will be unavailing."

Charges Against Harding.

In introducing Gov. Cox, Cotterill charged that Senator Harding, the Republican nominee, had for 30 years been a brewer, owning stock in the local brewery at Marion, Ohio, and also had voted 30 times on the wet side. Cotterill also declared that Gov. Cox's record in Ohio included a "Sunday saloon closing law and general moral 'leadership.'" The charges against the Governor, he said, were partisan politics.

The brief statement in tonight's speech of the Governor, who has been charged frequently with being a "wet" or "damp" candidate was determined upon during conferences with Cotterill and others on his train today after a bombardment upon him in newspapers, telegrams and letters demanding a statement on the subject.

The way was paved for Gov. Cox's declaration by Cotterill in introducing the Ohioan. Cotterill referred specifically to an attack made upon Gov. Cox today by the Seattle Post Intelligencer, a Republican newspaper, which branded Gov. Cox as a "wet," and demanded that he declare himself and not "dodge" the question. The paper printed the alleged letter of George F. Carroll, president of the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association, dated July 22, stating that Gov. Cox was a pronounced "wet," and his nomination "a big victory for our interests." The Carroll letter also called for aid and funds from the liquor dealers in behalf of Gov. Cox.

Cotterill praised the record of Gov. Cox on prohibition and other moral issues in Ohio, declaring that he secured in advance of national prohibition the saloon Sunday closing law.

That the Seattle newspaper had in the past "thrown its influence in behalf of the liquor interests" and now made its attack upon the Governor to further partisan ends was asserted by Cotterill.

Newspaper Asks Questions.

Besides the Seattle newspaper's attack, the Herald of Bellingham, where the Governor made his first speech today, sent a telegram asking for a statement on prohibition, and whether he favored Article 10 of the league covenant, whether he approved the "blanket indorsement of President Wilson's administration, in the San Francisco platform," and other questions. No reply was made by the Governor.

The Governor's Seattle speech was the climax of the Washington campaign. Starting at Bellingham early this morning, upon arrival from Walla Walla, the Governor made three other speeches today at Mount Vernon, Everett and Tacoma.

The League of Nations, the "Senatorial Oligarchy" and further attacks on Republican finances and leaders were the principal subjects of all his addresses. At Everett he spoke to a large outdoor crowd at the baseball park and to another late this afternoon at Tacoma.

Gov. Cox left Seattle at midnight for Portland, Ore., to spend a quiet Sunday. All Sunday engagements at Portland were barred.

The Governor will leave Portland

MACSWINEY STILL CONSCIOUS; DEATH EXPECTED HOURLY

Cork Mayor Said to Be Suffering Severely; Police Guards About London Prison Doubled.

MASSES TO BE SAID IN IRISH CHURCHES

Hunger Striker's Mind Grows Dull for First Time, Though Body "Has Been Dead Several Days."

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—"The Lord Mayor of Cork is in a very exhausted condition. He is still suffering severely in his head and his body. He is still conscious," said a bulletin issued at 10 o'clock tonight, and the general impression from official and unofficial reports is that Terence MacSwiney's death is expected at any hour. He has been on a hunger strike since Aug. 12. The officials apparently take this view because the police guard about the prison was doubled tonight.

While a fortnight ago crowds of Irish people hung about the prison all day, the numbers have gradually dwindled, and tonight no more than a dozen persons congregated outside of reporters.

Masses will be said in many Irish churches tomorrow if Mayor MacSwiney is alive. Thus far there have been no masses for him in the English Catholic churches.

The Irish Self-Determination League said today that MacSwiney appeared to have completely collapsed, and for the first time his mind seemed dull, although his body has been "virtually dead for several days," one of the league officials remarked.

Despite the fact that this is the thirtieth day of his hunger strike, the Mayor's mind heretofore has been remarkably clear, although at numerous times he has sunk so low physically that he could not speak.

On leaving the prison this afternoon Annie MacSwiney said her brother was very much weaker.

"He has reached his worst point," she declared. "Today for the first time he was so weak I could not read to him and when I asked him a question he had to think a while before he could answer. His face has assumed the gray color of death."

Lord Mayor MacSwiney's wife, when she left the prison late this afternoon, said the prison doctor had told her she might be expected to be called to her husband's bedside at any moment, as the end was very near. Mrs. MacSwiney said her husband was delirious by spells, but occasionally recognized her. Otherwise his mind did not appear to be working.

Mass for MacSwiney Ties Up Car Service in Dublin.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Sept. 11.—This city was without tram car service between 10 o'clock this morning and noon. All traffic on the lines was suspended to enable the employes to attend a mass for Mayor MacSwiney of Cork.

There was no special celebration of mass, but tramway employes gathered in the depots and attended celebrations at the nearest churches. At the same time, a large number of men engaged in road repairs dropped their tools for two hours and went to church with the tram men. This was the first organized action taken on a big scale.

In the neighboring town of Dalkey all business and work was suspended this morning to enable people to attend a mass for the hunger striking Lord Mayor. The Protestant shopkeepers closed their places as a mark of sympathy.

Hunger Striker in Cork Jail Claims to Be American.

By the Associated Press.

CORK, Sept. 11.—Further information relative to the claim of Joseph Murphy, one of the hunger strikers in Cork jail, to American citizenship was obtained today from his father, Timothy Murphy, a shoe maker residing at Pouladuff, a suburb of Cork.

Timothy Murphy said he had 15 children, only six of whom are now living. He emigrated to America in 1891; settling in Lynn, Mass., where three of his children were born, including Joseph, who was born in 1896. Timothy took out first citizenship papers in 1895, but left before naturalization was completed.

At the beginning of the war, Murphy declared, one son born in Lynn registered at the American consulate in Queenstown as an American. This son was now living in New York. Joseph, however, failed to register.

Near the Murphy residence is an old quarry in which it is said Joseph Murphy found a German shell casing thrown there by a soldier on his return from France, and took it home as a souvenir. This is given as Joseph's defense of the Government's accusation that he had a bomb in his possession. Another version has it that Joseph was given the shell casing by an American aviator while the latter was training at the Aghada Airdrome in County Cork.

Timothy Murphy is constantly in attendance at his son's bedside in the jail. He said Joseph's condition today was very bad.

The condition of the other hunger strikers is reported to be unchanged. Sean Hennessy, the 19-year-old hunger striker, regained consciousness during the night but quickly relapsed into a state of coma.

Hennessy's father today told Harold Barry, former high sheriff of Cork, who has been making efforts to save Hennessy's life, that he had altered his decision to permit the nuns attending young Hennessy under doctors' instruction to administer restoratives and that nothing is now being done to prolong his son's life. Barry has not received a reply to messages he sent to Premier Lloyd George in which he told the Premier that he could furnish proof of Hennessy's innocence.

Coffin of Irishman Bears Words "Murdered by English."

By the Associated Press.

CORK, Sept. 11.—The funeral of Seumas Quirke, a young volunteer killed during Thursday's disturbances in Galway, will be held here tomorrow afternoon. Volunteers and representatives of trade unions, civic bodies and Sinn Fein organizations are expected to turn out in large numbers.

The body of Quirke was brought to Cork last night and was removed this morning to the church, where mass was celebrated. The coffin inscription says he was "Murdered by England's Police Spies."

Debs Says British Labor Should Compel MacSwiney's Release.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Sept. 11.—Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein, has received a cablegram from Eugene V. Debs, the American Socialist leader, who is serving a 10-year term in the Atlanta prison for violating the espionage act, condemning the treatment of Lord Mayor MacSwiney. Debs says in his message that "British labor should not halt at mere protest, but should compel the Mayor's release."

COX'S FIRST REFERENCE TO WET ISSUE SAYS IT IS 'PART OF YESTERDAY'

Sunday night to make a morning address at Salem, the State Capital, returning to Portland by motor for a noon meeting at the Auditorium. He will speak to a meeting of women and teachers at 3 o'clock and leave Portland Monday afternoon to make evening addresses at Hood River and other points en route to Boise, Idaho, where he speaks Tuesday. During the coming week, the Governor will speak through Idaho, Utah, Nevada and California, reaching San Francisco next Friday.

Offers More Fund Data.

Further information on Republican contributions in this State was presented at Bellingham when Gov. Cox, in an early morning address on his arrival from Walla Walla, read a copy of a letter, purporting to have been written by H. F. Alexander, as "Chairman, Finance Committee of the Republican party," reporting under-subscriptions of subscription allotments, and requesting contributions. The letter, Gov. Cox said, was additional evidence in support of his charges of a Republican "corruption fund."

"Each day," said the Governor, "new evidence is forthcoming at the Senate investigation at Chicago, evidence from Republican sources, bearing out the charges I have made of the creation of a huge corruption fund to buy the presidency. At Spokane, upon my entrance in the State of Washington, I was met with a question which I answered with the evidence from immediate Republican sources in Spokane of the assessment and quota which I had charged. I now read to you another letter from Republican sources showing the amount which has been raised at other places in this State. The letter follows:

"'I am making a last appeal for funds for the election of a Republican President and Congress. If you, as a business man, do not appreciate personally the necessity of a return to the Constitution I am not going to offer any argument. Seattle has raised $60,000 of its $65,000 allotment. Practically every county has come through, several having oversubscribed. In Pierce County we have raised only a third of our quota of $20,000. A number of Seattle business men contributed $1000 each. In Tacoma we are asking for a very moderate contribution. Will you not mail me your check for $500 that we may complete our quota and start an educational campaign?

"'A. F. ALEXANDER,
"'Chairman Finance Committee of Republican Party.'"

Radicals Are Attacked.

Besides the Republican contributions and leaders whom he again criticized, Gov. Cox at Bellingham discussed the League of Nations, radicalism and progressivism.

In his discussion of radicalism, the Governor said:

"I hold that in the United States there is no call for an extreme radicalism. Government must never be at the mercy of a lower or upper mob, but Government must always be kept responsible to the will of the people. If Government is fair, then there will be no special privilege and certainly no unfair advantage nor injustice to the employer.

"Just as surely as the pendulum swings to the extreme right in favoritism and unfair privilege there is certain to result a swing to the extreme left of radicalism with a smash. It is the purpose of Government in a democracy to hold the scales of justice true, to give every person of every class and kind equal opportunity to achieve and to acquire happiness. In this way only will the orderly process of government command the respect and obedience of all and in this way only will the country be safeguarded from destruction on the one hand or exploitation on the other. I hold to the ideal of Lincoln—Government of the people, for the people and by the people shall not perish from the earth.

"Those who have taken command in the name of the Senatorial oligarchy of the leadership of the opposition party seem to have forgotten this idealism and remember only that phase thereof which deals with 'buy' the people."

The candidate spoke in a husky voice at Tacoma and did not attempt more than a brief speech as he stood unsheltered in a heavy rain. His few telling points were applauded by those who had waited an hour after the scheduled time of his appearance, in spite of the drenching downpour.

"I am preaching from coast to coast the gospel of peace to the world and progress," he said.

Washington Man Says Cox "Misled His Audience."

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 11.—H. F. Alexander, when shown press dispatches from Bellingham quoting statements by Gov. Cox concerning an appeal for funds made by Alexander, as Republican finance chairman, said the Governor had quoted only part of his letter and thereby "misled his audience."

WORKERS IN ITALY REPORTED SEIZING EMPLOYERS' HOMES

Forty Factory Owners Go to Premier and Tell of 50 Instances in Which Dwellers Were Ousted.

SAY GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN NEGLIGENT

Troops' Fire Puts Down Socialistic Outbreak in Trieste —200 Chemical Plants Seized in Milan.

By the Associated Press.

TURIN, Italy, Sept. 11.—Forty leading employers motored today to see Premier Giolitti at Bardo-Necochiao, where he is spending his vacation. They described the situation created "by the violence and ever-increasing greedy pretences of the workmen, encouraged by the attitude of the Government, which is reluctant to uphold law and order, openly violated."

The employers told not only of the invasion of their works, but declared that about 50 private homes were entered. Their wives and families, they said, were obliged to leave as the workmen threw furniture from windows and settled themselves in the homes.

It is interesting to recall a statement made by the Premier in the Chamber of Deputies recently, in connection with the present situation. His words were to the effect that disorders in Italy were fomented by "billionaires who hoped in this way to prevent approval of bills already passed by the chamber allowing the State to take possession of war profits."

Those who know the prudence and measured language of Signor Giolitti realize he would not have made such a statement without adequate evidence.

Troops' Fire Puts Down Socialists' Outbreak in Trieste.

By the Associated Press.

TRIESTE, Friday, Sept. 10.—A Socialist revolt in which barricades were erected in the streets, and artillery, rifles, machine guns and bombs were freely employed in a struggle between the rioters and the military, broke out here this afternoon. Italian troops and naval forces, however, had succeeded by 8 o'clock tonight in completely restoring order. At that hour the troops were patrolling the streets, and a destroyer anchored in the harbor commanded the public square.

The fighting was sharp while it lasted. The Socialists, who were well armed and amply supplied with ammunition, challenged the troops to advance upon their barricades. Both sides then opened fire and sharp volleys were exchanged. Several of the soldiers were wounded by bullets from the rifles of the entrenched Sosialists, while numerous casualties occurred in the Socialistic ranks.

Ultimatum to Socialists.

As evening approached the military drew artillery into position and prepared for a concerted attack. Before this was delivered, however, Civil Governor Mosconi sent an ultimatum to the Socialist leaders, ordering them to withdraw from the streets.

The leaders of the revolt ultimately decided to bow before the Governor's threat of more drastic measures, and the rioters tore down their entrenchments, indicating they had abandoned the fight, and fell back from the streets. The Carabineers and the Royal Guards, who had been stationed in the vicinity of the hill in the heart of the populous section which the Socialists had held, thereupon were withdrawn from their barracks through the streets.

The destroyer which played a part in the action to put down the revolt arrived in the harbor during the afternoon and anchored immediately facing the public square.

200 Chemical Works in Milan Occupied by Workmen.

MILAN, Italy, Friday, Sept. 10.—More than 200 chemical works here were occupied by workmen at a given signal late today, and red flags were hoisted above them on orders issued by the Chamber of Labor.

The chemical plants were occupied simultaneously, the movement being carried out following a signal of three blasts on a large siren. Immediately afterward red flags and banners bearing the Bolshevik emblems of the Hammer and Scythe were hoisted. The workers obeyed the order received from the Chamber of Labor in spite of the fact that they were recently granted wage increases of from 60 to 70 cents per day.

The Chamber of Labor, in explaining the seizure of the chemical works, declared that the move was not in the nature of a real occupation of the plants, but was simply a measure which was necessary to guarantee metal workers the materials they need to carry on their industry.

Employers Concede Increase; Men Demand Factory Control.

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, Sept. 11.—Negotiations between the employers and the metal workers appeared to be at a standstill today. The meetings of the Socialist deputies, representatives of the metal workers and officials of the General Confederation of Labor, were continuing on the one side, while the masters met on the other. The latter have gone os far as to concede an increase in wages of from 60 to 80 cents daily on the condition that the works be immediately evacuated. The men, however, are insisting that they be given the management of the works through factory councils.

Italian Troops Make Workers Give Up 60,000 Bombs

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 11.

THREE companies of Italian infantry have seized a factory at Lucca, which had been occupied by workmen, and have forced the men to surrender 60,000 bombs, according to dispatches received here. Another report states that workers, using armored trucks, invaded a French-owned factory at Turin. They are said to have distributed arms to workers there and to have searched all the employes not joining in the movement.

INVESTIGATORS RECESS; HEAR OF DEMOCRATIC LEVY ON GIRL CLERKS

after receiving a letter from a Democratic campaign fund raiser requesting her to call at his hotel and "arrange this matter." About a dozen of the girl clerks went to the hotel, she testified, and subscribed $40 each at that time. Some of the girls who did not have that much cash gave post-dated checks, she added.

A copy of the letter said to have been received by the girls was presented by Miss Coyne, who said she received it from Miss Marian Armentrout, a stenographer. The letter was from E. M. Waterbury, who, Miss Coyne said, told the girls he was acting for Clarence H. Mee, South Dakota chairman for the Democratic Committee, and father of J. Walter Mee, Internal Revenue Collector at Aberdeen. The letter said:

"The Democratic National Committee is raising in this State a fund for campaign expenses and those who are partaking in the benefits of office are asked to assist. You are cordially requested to arrange this matter by calling at the Sherman Hotel, Room 213, during the next three days."

Miss Coyne said some of the letters were delayed because they bore insufficient postage, and that the girls had to pay one cent on them when they were delivered.

Miss Coyne said she understood the girls who were asked to contribute were all dependent upon their $120 a month salaries, that most of them were living away from home, and, because rent and living costs were high in Aberdeen, she "did not believe they could afford it."

Kenyon Condemns Episode.

A newspaper story written by Miss Coyne referred to the money-raising among the girls as "black-jacking" and Senator Reed requested an explanation of the term. Miss Coyne said it was a newspaper word synonymous with blackmail.

"You would have used a stronger word if you had thought of it," Senator Kenyon commented. "If there is any word too strong to be used for this episode, I do not think the English language contains it."

Miss Burchard did not agree with Miss Coyne's conclusion that the girls were unwilling contributors and denied that they were afraid of losing their jobs, if they did not contribute.

"You think then," Senator Kenyon asked, "that the girls all contributed out of their enthusiasm for the Democratic cause?" "I do."

"The girls talked it over and decided to give $40 each," Miss Burchard said.

"Did Mr. Waterbury fix that as the amount?" Senator Kenyon asked. "He mentioned it."

"Is that the way you all happened to give $40?" "I suppose it was because one girl gave $40 first."

Senator Kenyon characterized the solicitation of funds from girl employes of the Government as "worse in its infamy" than the raising of thousands of dollars from men outside of governmental circles.

"I agree with you, Senator," Senator Reed said, "that to levy in any way a political assessment upon a girl working for the Government is absolutely inexcusable."

Cox Not to Be Called.

Chairman Kenyon announced in giving out a telegram from Frank A. Munsey, Eastern publisher, demanding that Gov. Cox be subpenaed, that the Democratic presidential candidate would not be summoned.

Senator Kenyon said the telegram from Munsey was typical of hundreds received by him and other members of the committee, and indicated that the public announcement of the Munsey message was made in the hope that it might serve as an answer to other telegrams and letters which might be in prospect.

Four witnesses who failed to appear today will be heard in the East. They are William Wrigley Jr., Charles Piez, both of Chicago; W. A. Woodford, Cleveland, and George T. Carroll, Elizabeth, N. J.

Barber in his testimony referred to Piez as "generalissimo" of the Chicago drive. He objected to being called an employe of the Republican committee, saying:

"I make contracts with my clients to raise a given amount in a certain time for a definite fee. In this instance I have taken the very reduced compensation of $600 a week and expenses."

He said he had been in Chicago since July 5, and that his next engagement would be to raise $3,000,000 for a "commercial proposition" at a retainer of $10,000 and a "minimum of $2000 a week and expenses."

"How much do you think a United States Senator ought to get?" queried Senator Reed.

"I think a Senator has perquisites which cannot be measured in money," responded Barber.

"I think that is true, if he conducts himself uprightly and with the proper dignity," said the Senator.

Wilson's IdeasLike Those of Third Napoleon, Lodge Says

Senator in Speech Says President's Autocratic Administration Has Affected Every Department.

By the Associated Press.

NAHANT, Mass., Sept. 11.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge today attacked what he said was the effort of President Wilson to make a one-man Government. The President's conception of government, he said, is that of the third Napoleon. He charged that the President had established "such a reign of terror over many Representatives and Senators of his own party that the legislative powers of the Constitution granted to Congress alone were impaired and distorted."

Senator Lodge, addressing an outing of the Lynn Republican Club, said that President Wilson's autocratic administration "affected every department of the Government."

"One of the leading demands of the Republican platform and one of the issues which Senator Harding has most strongly emphasized, is, that we should bring the Government back to the system and the forms of the Constitution which we have followed throughout our history," said Senator Lodge.

"Mr. Wilson throughout his administration has undertaken to ignore the great principles laid down in the Constitution of Massachusetts that this is to be a Government of laws and not of men. He had tried to make it a Government by one man."

"By his acts also is his conception shown to be that of the third Napoleon," the Senator said.

"Mr. Wilson endeavored to evade the rightful power of the Senate by attaching to the treaty of peace with Germany, which everybody desired, the covenant of the League of Nations, which ought to have been separately considered. He aimed to compel the Senate to ratify the covenant by forcing on them the alternative of holding up the treaty of peace. Col. House has stated that if we had followed the course advocated in the Senate before negotiations began and made peace with Germany immediately after the armistice, it would have been ready for ratification of Christmas.

"Mr. Wilson has also adopted the autocratic method in another direction. He has carried on his relations with foreign nations largely through personal agents who did not hold an office confirmed by the Senate, which would make them officials of the United States.

Senator Lodge mentioned Bayard Hale and E. M. House. This abuse of the undefined power to employ a personal agent is a direct method of the autocrat and not of the constitutional magistrate.

"It is not the right of the President to undertake to legislate. Mr. Wilson has never hesitated to settle details of legislation and to tell Congress just what the form of bills should be. He has passed upon amendments and succeeded in establishing such a reign of terror over many Representatives and Senators of his party that the legislative powers of the Constitution granted to Congress alone were impaired and distorted."

15 MEN LOCKED IN SALOON ICEBOX BY THREE HIGHWAYMEN

Robbers Take $41.80 From Cash Register and $22 From Customers in Clayton Avenue Place.

Fifteen men were locked in an icebox by three highwaymen in the saloon of David Morgan, 6337 Clayton avenue, at 11 o'clock last night. The robbers took $41.80 and a check for $18 from the cash register, $12 from Patrick Phelan, 1542 Graham avenue; $7 from John Hogan, 1104 Louisiana avenue, and $3 from Philip Rost, 6510 Nashville avenue.

After searching three of the other customers and finding nothing, the leader of the trio directed his companions to "put the bums on ice." Morgan and the customers were marched into the refrigerator.

About 15 minutes after the robbers had departed Edward Gallagher, 1329 Graham avenue, stopped in at the saloon to get a package of cigarettes and, hearing the prisoners pounding the walls of the icebox, liberated them.

CHAIRMAN WHITE CONGRATULATES COX ON INQUIRY RESULT

Says Hays Has Paved Way for Gifts From Those Who Know What They Want.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Senator Edge of New Jersey has "abandoned the thin pretense of being a judge of evidence and has become an advocate," declared George White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, here today in commenting on Senator Edge's attitude as a member of the Senate committee investigating campaign funds.

"It is not surprising that in this role he has so readily cleared his party of the charge of a huge campaign fund," his statement continued. "This is not only in line with the attitude of many of his party in the Senate, constituting the oligarchy of which Gov. Cox has spoken, but it is typical also of the party which whitewashed a Senator from Michigan whose vote was necessary to control the Senate.

"I think the people have fully made up their minds about the merits of the slush-fund charges and proof. Even Mr. Hays at Philadelphia yesterday took off the mask of the 'thousand-dollar contributions' and, on the insulting premise that the Democratic party proposes to surrender the independence of the United States, he paved the way for great contributions from men and groups of men who know what they want and know how to get it from the Republican administration.

"Gov. Cox has every reason to congratulate himself and the American people upon the successful outcome of the hearings at Chicago, the precipitate retreat of Senator Edge being not the least conclusive evidence of success.

"With this established as a basis of the Republican campaign, we shall go-ahead presenting our great issues on the League of Nations and progressive administration of taxation and other pressing Democratic problems.

"It is true that we are as poor as the Republicans are rich. But honest poverty is a more creditable state before the American people than the heavy obligation of a rich campaign fund."

FATHER OF MILES TWICE RUSTLES UP BAIL FOR RELEASE

Son of Fourth Ward Democratic Leader, Accused of Highway Robbery, Out on Common Law Bonds.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY'S AID ORDERS IT

Six Policemen Near Scene of Alleged Saloon Holdup by Five Men and One Woman.

Justice of the Peace "Jimmy" Miles, whose word is law in the Fourth Ward, where he is Democratic Committeeman and reputed political boss, spent several busy hours yesterday morning getting his son, James P. Miles Jr., 30 years old, of 1518 North Jefferson avenue, away from the police after Miles Jr. had been arrested on a charge of highway robbery.

Young Miles and five others, including a woman, were arrested at 2 a. m., following a holdup in the saloon of Walter Niehaus, 1325 North Grand avenue, in which a woman acted as "lookout."

The woman said she was Mrs. Florence Harris, 26 years old, of 3825 Easton avenue, a waitress. The other men arrested were George Harris, 29, of 1432 North Fifteenth street, teamster; John Steffen, 29, of 1837 O'Fallon street, who said he was a broker; John Cuddy, 25, of 419 Wash street, saloon manager, and John McGuckin, 22, of 3121 Brantner place, chauffeur.

The prisoners were taken to the Laclede Avenue Police Station, and as detectives were still investigating the case of James W. Huff, 1529 Carr street, who was robbed of $39 by a woman and two men, Thursday night at Cora place and St. Louis avenue, Detective Chief Hannegan directed the police to turn the prisoners over to him when they had submitted the Niehaus holdup to the Circuit Attorney.

Hide-and-Seek Game Begins.

Justice Miles visited his son at the police station at 7 a. m. and, after a brief conversation, informed him that he would get him out on a common-law bond. Two hours later, Charles Nash, of Thirteenth and Market streets, a professional bondsman, appeared at the station with six common-law bonds approved by Provisional Judge Meigs of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Capt. Tierney of the Laclede District, telephoned to Chief Hannegan that the prisoners were about to be released, and Hannegan ordered them re-arrested as soon as they stepped from the station and escorted to Police Headquarters. This was done, and shortly after the arrival of the prisoners at headquarters Justice Miles called on Hannegan and wanted to know why his son had been re-arrested.

"We are holding him for another robbery," said Hannegan. "A man was held up by a woman and two men Thursday night and we have asked him to look at the prisoners to see if he can identify any of them."

"All right," said Miles, and departed.

He was back in a half hour with six new common-law bonds signed by Nash and approved by Judge Meigs.

"These are to cover the second charge of robbery," he said, showing the bonds to Hannegan.

Hannegan conferred with Chief O'Brien, and the latter refused to surrender the prisoners to Miles. He said that as the Niehaus case had been presented to the Circuit Attorney's office and as the issuance of informations had been promised, he would not release the prisoners unless they furnished specific bonds covering first degree robbery and returnable in the Circuit Court.

"All right," said Miles, and he again departed.

Second Release Ordered.

A few minutes later Assistant Circuit Attorney William S. Connor telephoned to Chief O'Brien to accept the common-law bonds.

"I thought you had issued informations against the prisoners," said O'Brien, who had been informed by a Sergeant that the informations would be issued.

"Not yet," replied Connor. "The police brought only one witness to my office, and as they reported that two men had been held up I instructed them to produce the other witness and told them I would take the application under advisement. Assistant Circuit Attorney Thomas O'Brien and I decided to hold up the informations, as the case had only partly been presented."

Chief O'Brien then informed Hannegan that, as Huff had failed to identify the prisoners, there was nothing for the police to do but accept the common-law bonds. Miles had returned to police headquarters in the meantime, and when he again tendered the bonds the prisoners were turned over to him.

Six Policemen on the Scene.

The arrests were made as Miles Jr. and his companions were about to drive away from Niehaus' saloon in an automobile. A man ran from the saloon yelling "Holdup," and Sergt. Kelly and five patrolmen, who were across the street, drew their revolvers and surrounded the car, commanding the chauffeur to wait. The woman was slow in leaving the saloon and the chauffeur tried to drive off without her, but in his haste to start the engine he put it out of commission. Three loaded revolvers, a woman's turban and three handbags were found in the car.

Charles Garrison, 1102 North Taylor avenue, manager of the saloon; Henry Brinkman, 2208 College avenue, the bartender; Walter Kuhlman, 1115 John avenue, and Charles Ruegg, 3249 North Twentieth street, identified the prisoners as the robbers, and said Mrs. Harris remained at a side door of the saloon while the robbery was being committed.

Two checks taken from the cash register were found in Harris' pocket. Garrison said that $150 in cash also had been taken from the register and that he had been robbed of $29. Kuhlman said that $16 was taken from him.

Miles, Harris, Steffen and Cuddy have police records. McGuckin was ordered held because he tried to start the car after being ordered by the police to halt.

law office at 8:30 o'clock last Wednesday night. Meigs said that he usually had appointments with clients which kept him at his office at night, on account of his having to devote most of his time in the day to the court docket. He said that he had approved bonds at his law office, but said he did not recall having remained downtown as late as 11 o'clock. He said that bondsmen had appeared at his home as late as 3:30 in the morning, and that he had approved bonds for them. He remarked that he was making lots of friends while acting as Judge, and added that he was cautious to do nothing that he or Judge Krueger would ever be ashamed of. He remarked that Judge Krueger and Judge Miller, who presides over another branch of the Court of Criminal Correction, had informed Chief of Police O'Brien that they could reject a common-law bond any time they desired to hold a prisoner for investigation.

11 P. M. Limit, Says Judge.

"Cap" Troll was in Judge Miller's office in the Municipal Courts Building when the reporter called there, and took part in the conversation about common-law bonds. Judge Miller said that very few bondsmen bothered him at night, and that he had notified them that he would not approve a bond at his home after 11 p. m. He said that he had had very few applications for common-law bonds, and added that he and Judge Krueger informed Chief O'Brien six months ago that the Chief was at liberty to ignore their common-law bonds any time that such a bond interfered with police investigations.

"That's what they did," Troll joined in. "There is not a Judge in the city who would have nerve enough to bawl out the police for turning down a common-law bond."

"Troll spoke the truth," said Judge Miller.

Chief O'Brien corroborated the statement that the two Judges had told him that the police would be permitted to reject common-law bonds at their own discretion, and said that he had issued an order to that effect to Chief of Detectives Hannegan and the captains of the various districts.

"That's right," said Hannegan, when the reporter asked him about the Chief's statement. "I had forgotten about it."

Chief O'Brien then instructed his secretary to again call attention of Chief Hannegan and the captains to the order issued six months ago.

BICYCLE RIDER RUN DOWN BY MOTOR TRUCK

Driver of Machine of Kinloch Telephone Company Flees After Accident.

A motor truck driver, making a "short turn" from Grand avenue east into Chouteau avenue, struck and seriously injured a man on a bicycle last evening, then drove away without stopping.

The man, who was unconscious, was taken to Barnes Hospital. Papers in his pocket indicated that he was George Carr of 4327 Oakwood avenue, Pine Lawn. He is believed to have suffered a skull fracture, and internal injuries.

The truck, witnesses of the accident said, was one of the Kinloch Telephone Co. One man got the license tag number, and this number was found to be that of a tag issued to the Kinloch. A search for the truck and its driver was begun. Flight from the scene of an accident in which a person is injured, is a felony.

Charles Bryon, 16 years old, of 4587 Lucky street, suffered cuts and bruises and sprains of the knees yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Bachmeyer, 62 years old, of 5518 Wren avenue as Bryon alighted from a street car at Nineteenth and Branch streets. After the accident Bachmeyer lost control of the machine and swerved, colliding with a lamppost at that corner, and wrecking the automobile. Bachmeyer was arrested for careless driving and for failing to stop in the rear of a car discharging and taking on passengers.

Mrs. Esther Wehmeier, 25, of 2222 Dodier street, was struck by an automobile truck at 9:30 last night as she crossed Twenty-fifth street at Palm street. The accident occurred at the crossing, and was not a case of "jay walking." She was taken home, suffering from a fracture of the right hip and internal injuries. The driver of the truck, Thomas Brennan, 18, a grocery employe, was arrested.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY HURT AND ROBBED OF $60 BY A NEGRO

Mrs. Dora Schinstock Knocked Down Near Home on Return From Grocery.

Mrs. Dora Schinstock, 39 years old, of 4541 North Second street, wife of Henry Schinstock, was attacked by a negro, who hit her on the head with a rock and robbed her of a pocketbook containing $50 and a check for $10, as she returned to her home from a grocery near Broadway and Grand avenue about 10 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Schinstock, as was her custom, took a short cut through an alley to the rear of her home, and was in the rear of 4531 North Second when the negro, who apparently had followed her into the alley, knocked her down. After getting her pocketbook he fled.

Mrs. Schinstock made her way to a nearby street corner, where she found a policeman, who caused her to be taken to the city hospital. It was learned there that she had a laceration of the scalp, bruises on her throat and a laceration on her cheek. Her condition was said to be serious. The only description she could give of the negro was that he was tall and "slim."

SAM OF THE ZOO A CAPABLE CLUBMONKEY

Orang-Outang Carries to City Club Invitation to Attend Animal Party Tomorrow Night.

No process of evolution will ever make a clubman out of Sam, orang-outang of the Forest Park Zoo. But Sam showed at the City Club at luncheon yesterday that he has the qualifications of an acceptable clubmonkey.

Sam and other members of the Darwin Club, the Park Primates, and other organizations of alien animal life at the Zoo, are going to have a party tomorrow night. The grounds and buildings are to be lighted up like a Christmas tree, and there will be dancing, to give the animals a chance to see a few of the steps which have been named after them. Sam was commissioned to take the City Club members an invitation to be there.

Sam's hirsute paw lay in his keeper's hand as they went up the elevator to the City Club quarters, and Sam checked his hat, which he later recovered without any attempt to break the rules by bestowing a tip. He was escorted to the speakers' table where a napkin was pinned about his neck and a bowl of soup was placed before him.

Not a sound of inhalation was heard as Sam partook of the consomme, for Sam is not a soup instrumentalist. His brown coat was free from grease spots when he had finished the bowl.

At this point, while admiration of Sam's deportment was being expressed by everyone, Sam handed a note to George E. Dieckman, president of the Zoological Society, and Dieckman read it. It told about the party tomorrow night, and invited the City Club members to bring the womenfolk.

Sam looked longingly at the sugar bowl while the reading was going on, but did not touch it. Once he relaxed his company pose so far as to put his feet on the table.

The keeper had brought a light air rifle, and he handed this to Sam, who stood up in his chair and performed the manual of arms. After "Dis-missed!" he was ready for his dessert, a plate of ice cream, which he ate with a spoon. His enjoyment of the ice cream overcame his caution as to points of etiquette, and Sam licked the plate. By this time everyone else was smoking, and Sam took a pipe and pulled at it, although it contained no tobacco. Soon afterward he was on his way back to his daily task of delighting the children.

BATTLE ON FARM, RESCUE OF WOUNDED ROBBER, WAS HOAX

Tale of Revolver Fighting on Place of Miss Malisa McCurdy Just Nephew's Fabrication.

By the Associated Press.

CARLINSVILLE, Ill., Sept. 11.—Investigation of the reported shooting and subsequent rescue of a member of a gang of robbers, on the farm of Miss Malisa McCurdy, of near Bunker Hill, in the southern part of Macoupin County, revealed this afternoon that the story was a hoax, perpetrated by one of Miss McCurdy's two nephews.

The incredible story, circulated by the young man, was that robbers, on their third visit, were driven away with the loss of one member, but that they returned soon and after much revolver firing rescued his body.

Publication of this incredible story in St. Louis was made by the Globe-Democrat yesterday.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES ASK FOR MINIMUM WAGE OF $3 A DAY

Resolution Urges Reclassification With Pay Ranging Upward From $1080 a Year for Both Sexes.

SOME NOW PAID AS LOW AS $240 A YEAR

66,000 Persons in Government Employ Get Less Than $3 a Day—Increase in Bonus Also Asked For.

A resolution for the "concentration of the National Federation of Federal Employes on reclassification as the measure of foremost importance to all members of the organization" was adopted yesterday at the closing session of the convention which was in progress at the Planters Hotel the entire week.

The resolution for reclassification, prepared by the committee on legislation, set a minimum wage of $3 a day, $1080 a year or 37½ cents an hour, as a basis from which to work, and urged salary ratings above the minimum according to skill, training and responsibility, without regard to sex.

It provides also that the organization work to have Congress pass measures establishing a central administrative agency on which the employes shall have representation equally with the administration and the public and for a civil service court of appeals, with jurisdiction over all questions of discipline and dismissal.

$840 a Year Maximum to Laborers.

Federal employes are now paid as low as $240 a year and a maximum wage of $840 a year is paid laborers in the customs and treasury departments. There are more than 66,000 persons in the Government employ who are paid less than $3 a day, according to officials of the employes organization.

These officials declare their efforts to have Congress enact minimum wage legislation have met with strong opposition from Southern statesmen who will not set a precedent by granting a minimum wage of $3 a day to negro labor. The schedules of wages now in effect were adopted, for the most part, in 1854. They have been supplemented by a uniform bonus of $240 a year, for all employes paid $2500 a year or less, passed by the last Congress as an emergency measure to meet the increased cost of living.

The convention of the employes' organization yesterday voted also to work to bring about an amendment to the bonus system of the Government, adopting a resolution providing for bonuses of $480 a year for employes receiving salaries up to $2500 a year, $360 for those between $2500 and $3500 and $240 for those paid between $3500 and $4500. A resolution for a revision of the system with a more elaborate schedule, of which $600 was the maximum bonus provided, and this for the lower paid employes, was voted down. The budget system, as approved by the President and now pending before Congress, was approved by resolution.

217 Resolutions Passed Upon.

During the week the convention was in session it adopted or rejected 217 resolutions, following discussions of the measures. Of the resolutions adopted two provided for increasing the salaries of the president, Luther C. Steward, of Kansas City, and the secretary-treasurer, E. J. Newmyer, to $6000 and $5000, respectively. In each instance an increase of $1500 a year was voted.

The salaries voted to the two officials by the delegates are in excess of those paid any man or woman in classified service of the Government and are more than five times as great as the average paid to employes in such service. The president's salary is equal to that of the highest-paid Government executive in St. Louis with the exception of the Postmaster.

Another resolution adopted disapproved of the present pension system and urged a revision to provide a pension of 60 per cent of pensioned employe's average salary for a period of 10 years instead of a maximum of $720 a year, as now provided.

Extension of Pensions Urged.

This resolution also urged the extension of the pension benefits to unclassified as well as classified employes, permitting them to retire with pension after 30 years' service. Unclassified employes can be retired with pension now only with a special executive order.

A resolution urging all locals of the Federal employes' organization to join actively with the American Federation of Labor bodies in their localities was also adopted. Another resolution was of protest to the Republican National Committee against recent statements of former Congressman Clarence Miller, its secretary, to the effect that the high cost of living could be effectively reduced by the dismissal of 300,000 useless Federal employes. The statement was wholly untrue, as concerning the number of classified employes of the Government termed "useless," the convention declared.

SMOKE OF LAMPS LEADS TO FINDING STILL; OWNER HELD

Fire Alarm Turned In by Neighbor While Aged Man Is Away; Whisky and Mash Seized.

Joseph Tory, 60 years old, who lives in a one-story brick building at the rear of 1509 South Tenth street, left two coal oil lamps burning when he went to market at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

When he returned, he found the house in the possession of policemen and firemen, and was placed under arrest, through this sequence of events:

The lamps began smoking, and fumes poured out of the windows. A neighbor telephoned a fire alarm to the Soulard street station. A fire engine company, a police sergeant and two patrolmen responded. Breaking down the door they discovered the smoking lamps.

They also discovered two jars of grape and prune mash heating over the lamps, a 20-gallon still boiling on a gasoline stove, 40 gallons of fruit mash, 25 gallons of corn mash and 14 bottles of moonshine whisky.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DENOUNCES MOORE'S TESTIMONY AS FALSE

Statement by General Counsel of Body Also Assails Record of Close Friend of Gov. Cox.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The Anti-Saloon League of America has taken exception to remarks of E. H. Moore of Ohio, before the Senate investigating committee at Chicago.

"The statement of E. H. Moore before the committee at Chicago that the Anti-Saloon League is a Republican organization is false," says a statement issued from the office of Wayne B. Wheeler, attorney and general counsel for the league, today. "The league is nonpartisan. It works through all parties. Our co-operating membership is about equally divided between Democrats and Republicans."

Moore's record is attacked by the league, which asserts:

"The confidential prospectus of the association opposed to national prohibition discloses the information that Mr. Moore was their Ohio representative and that he accepted the position. It is commonly known that he has been the manager of wet organizations and campaigns in Ohio for years. These wet organizations were closely associated with the State and national German-American Alliance, which organizations were investigated by the United States Senate Judiciary Committee on the ground of disloyalty during the war."

Another statement by Wheeler carries a threat to throw the Anti-Saloon League forces against that candidate who is the "recipient" of liquor influence. He also refers to an inquiry that is being made into the prohibition unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue by Treasury Department officials. There has been so much talk of corruption among prohibition enforcement agents that Secretary Houston is having the situation gone over.

DEMAND FOR INQUIRY OF LIBERTY LEAGUE

Negroes Denounce Anti-Slater Faction and Ask for Investigation of Finances.

Resolutions denouncing Joseph B. McCoy, Theodore Wolfley and negroes of the Citizens' Liberty League who are trying to oust Frank M. Slater as Republican City Committeeman from the Seventeenth ward, were submitted to Mayor Kiel, Chairman Strodtman of the Republican City Committee and the Board of Election Commissoners yesterday by the Seventeenth ward Republican Precinct Committeemen, most of whom are negroes. These resolutions, which were adopted at a meeting in the Douglas Hotel, Beaumont and Lawton avenues, Friday night, and which are signed by 21 precinct committeemen, also demand that the finances of the Citizens' Liberty League be subjected to scrutiny, and the sources of its revenue and the nature of its expenditures made public.

These resolutions also attack the anti-Slater faction which is described as "a rule or ruin gang of disgruntled office seekers," and appeal to the negroes of the Seventeenth to ignore McCoy's advice that they refuse to register unless the conditions of which they complain are remedied.

McCoy and a delegation of Seventeenth ward negroes complained to Mayor Kiel recently that Slater had been "counted in" over Ernest Patillo, a negro.

McCoy yesterday wrote to Jesse W. Barrett, Republican nominee for Attorney-General, in reply to a published interview in which Barrett was quoted as criticizing McCoy for advising the negroes not to register. McCoy informed Barrett that Republican candidates had "stood around with indifference while the ballots of negro voters were stolen" and that the negroes are weary of such treatment and propose now to find out who their friends are. He warned Barrett that the best way to get the Republican ticket defeated was to allow such frauds to continue, as Republicans were very likely to vote some other ticket in the hope of obtaining relief.

VETERINARIAN GOES TO FACE CHARGE OF MURDERING GIRL

Warrant Issued for H. C. Winnes After Finding of Teacher's Body Near Harlan, Ky.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 11.—H. C. Winnes, field veterinarian employed by the State, left here today with a Deputy Sheriff for Harlan, Ky., near which point the body of Miss Emma Parsons, Pine Settlement school teacher, was found Thursday night.

Word from Harlan said a warrant had been issued there, charging Winnes with murder.

MAN ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF BIGAMY

Sought Since January Also on Allegation That He Took $3000 From Second Wife.

Edward Clyde Butler, 25 years old, who has been under charges of bigamy and larceny since Jan. 5 last, was arrested at noon yesterday as he left the Municipal Courts building. He gave his address as 4628 Olive street and said he returned to St. Louis from Florida. He said he went to Municipal Courts biulding to see a lawyer.

An information issued against Butler alleges that under the name George Everett Martin he married Miss Dolores Goodhart, then of 5611A Delmar boulevard, Jan. 3 last, while he had another wife. The first wife was Miss Marie Corrigan, a former guest at the Warwick Hotel, whom he married Nov. 16 last.

Another information accused him of obtaining $3000 from his second wife, who reported she had not seen him after entrusting him with the money.

Courtship of Three Days.

The second wife, formerly Miss Goodhart, told the police she met Butler, known to her as Martin, at a New Year's eve dinner dance at Hotel Statler Dec. 31 last and he wooed her persistently and told her he was the son of a Pittsburg millionaire. They were married three days after their first meeting. She said she gave him $3000 of her money for safekeeping and sent him to Union Station to buy railroad tickets for their honeymoon journey to Pittsburg and he failed to return. They were then stopping at the Jefferson Hotel.

Butler today admitted that he had been married to two women at the same time, but said he did not mean to commit bigamy.

Says He Thought Wife Divorced.

"Just before my second marriage," he said," my first wife, Marie, called me up on the long distance telephone and I understood her to say she had obtained a divorce in New York. Later and after my second marriage I learned that my wife's application had been taken under advisement. I understand that a divorce has since been granted to her."

Butler denied his second wife entrusted $3000 to him. He said she gave him $300 to buy railroad tickets and he bought one for himself and went to Los Angeles and later went to Florida.

NEITHER PARTY TO NAME WOMEN FOR ALDERMANIC BOARD

Chairmen of City Committees Agree That Men Will Be Nominated for First and Tenth Ward Vacancies.

CANDIDATES TO BE SELECTED THIS WEEK

Recently Enfranchised Voters to Center Their First Efforts on School Board Members Next Spring.

Chairmen of the Republican and Democratic City Committees yesterday definitely ended all discussion as to whether women will be nominated on either side for Alderman in the First and Tenth wards, in which vacancies are to be filled at the November election and for which candidates are to be named this week by both Committees. Both chairmen said there is no possibility of a woman being named for either vacancy. Women indicated, however, that they will have candidates in the field at the April election, at least for members of the Board of Education, and possibly for other offices.

Leaders in both the partisan and non-partisan women's organizations already had concluded that neither committee would select a woman, though some discussion still persisted and a number of men politicians expressed the belief, that for the Democrats at least it would be excellent politics to name a woman candidate in one of the wards, as in that manner they might augment the normal Democratic vote with women in number large enough to overcome the Republican margin.

Statements by Chairmen.

Chairman Mestres of the Democratic committee, said, however, that none of the women had talked to him about getting on the ticket for Alderman and that there is not the slightest probability that a woman will be named in either ward.

"They haven't even voted yet," he said. "It may come some time that they will be on the ticket, but not this campaign."

Chairman Strodtman of the Republican committee said abotu the same thing.

Mrs. George Gellhorn, State president of the Women Voters' League, a non-partisan organization, said that she had canvassed the situation with other women and that they had decided it would be unwise to try to get a woman candidate named at this time. She said they had decided to wait and concentrate their efforts upon women candidates at the spring election, and especially upon women candidates for the Board of Education.

The same views were expressed by Mrs. Walter McNabb Miller, also a prominent worker in the League.

View of Mrs. F. A. Reid.

Mrs. Fred A. Reid, president of the Democratic League of St. Louis, thought it would be good politics for the Democratic Committee to choose one woman candidate.

Mrs. R. A. Oldfather, chairman of the Democratic Women's City Committee, said that the idea had not been broached with her.

Both Strodtman and Mestres said that the selections of the ward organizations, in each instance will be approved by the City Committees. Strodtman, who is Republican Committeeman from the First ward, will call a meeting of his precinct committeemen during the week to choose a Republican candidate from among the 12 aspirants to the place vacated by the death recently of Alderman William E. Godfrey.

Republican City Committeeman George Meisinger of the Tenth ward has virtually been chosen by the Republicans to run for the place vacated by Alderman Otto Hampe, nominated upon the Republican ticket for public administrator, and who has resigned as Alderman.

The Democrats have not yet agreed upon their candidates.

Lawyer Chosen Head of G. O. P. Women's City Committee

MRS. CELESTE T. BLESSE…

MRS. BLESSE CHOSEN BY THE REPUBLICANS

Woman Lawyer Elected Over Mrs. E. E. Butler for the City Committee.

Mrs. Celeste T. Blesse, a lawyer, of 3635 Page avenue, yesterday afternoon was elected chairman of the Republican Women's City Committee, defeating Mrs. E. E. Butler, daughter of Henry L. (Hanke) Weeke, who was considered the "machine" candidate. Mrs. Blesse will succeed Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson, who resigned several days ago following a contest over her right to sit on the committee.

Mrs. Hutchinson was an adherent of the Schmoll element in the committee, which was repudiated at the August primary, Schmoll being defeated for re-election as committeeman in the Thirteenth Ward by Dr. A. H. Meyer. After the primary, Mrs. Hutchinson, who had been appointed committeewoman by Schmoll, called a meeting of women in her ward and announced that she had been elected committeewoman. Meyer a few days later called a meeting at which Mrs. G. Whittelsey was elected. For a time Mrs. Hutchinson insisted upon her right to continue as chairman of the committee, but later resigned.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. C. W. Swingley, Twenty-eighth Ward, secretary; Miss Hattie Hewgill, Twenty-fifth Ward, treasurer; Mrs. Julia Hammerstein, Fifteenth Ward, sergeant-at-arms.

In yesterday's meeting Mrs. Butler had the support of most of the followers of the Kiel-Schmoll-Goldstein element of the committee.

Mrs. Blesse is the wife of Justice of the Peace William J. Blesse and practices law with him. She is a graduate of Missouri University and of the Benton College of Law. She also is a court reporter and for 11 years has reported all courts-martial at Jefferson Barracks.

INVITATION DATE TOO EARLY FOR JUNIOR C. OF C. MEMBERS

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have been invited by Gov. Gardner to be his guests at Jefferson City on Sept. 25, but Secretary A. G. Mungenast said yesterday that the invitation had not been accepted because the date named is too close to admit of working up such an excursion. The organization, he said, would be glad to accept the invitation if a later date could be had.

The Governor planned to meet the young men at the station and conduct them to the executive mansion and from there to the penitentiary, where they would have luncheon, afterward going to the House of Representatives, where heads of the State departments would explain the work of their departments.

Loot From Mail Less Than $15,000.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—Post-office inspectors investigating the theft of a registered mail pouch from an eastbound Southern Railway train Wednesday night reported today that the amount of bonds stolen would aggregate less than $15,000. First reports indicated the loss would exceed $50,000.

Christensen Refuses to Speak.

HAMLINE, Minn., Sept. 11.—Parley P. Christensen, Farmer-Labor candidate for President, scheduled to speak at the Minnesota State Fair today, refused to do so because he would not be permitted to discuss politics. Political addresses are barred at the fair, and, according to Fair Board officials, Christensen was so notified, as were Senator Harding, Republican presidential candidate, Gov. Cox, Democratic nominee, and Dr. Aaron S. Watkins, Prohibition candidate, who have spoken here previously.

Charge Accounts Solicited

PROSPECTUS BASIS OF FEDERAL MOVE IN MARLEY CASE

Literature Circulated by Broker, Indicted Yesterday by Grand Jury, Leads to His Arrest in New York.

CHARGE IS USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

Local Accusation Made by William J. Hook, Is That Marley Took His Stock Without Recompense.

The familiar allurements of oil stock "literature" were fetchingly brought out in a prospectus of the "Montague Syndicate," recently circulated about St. Louis, to a point where 250 residents invested an aggregate of $10,500 in the hope some portion of what it set forth might be true.

Now, with the arrest in New York of J. C. Marley, who resided at 1405A North Euclid avenue previous to his flight from the city in July, the investors have discovered that the prospectus was the basis of a Federal warrant charging Marley with use of the mails to defraud.

The prospectus comprised four pages of five columns each. The border of the first page was formed by facsimile reproduction of newspaper articles, the headings of which contained phrases such as these: "New York Banker Favors Texas Oils," "Sale for $570,000," "To Receive Large Dividends," "Predicts Boom," "St. Louis Company Makes Good."

Queries Catch the Eye.

In the upper central portion of the page was the fascinating query, "What makes millionaires?" Then, just below, "An opportunity within your reach." At the bottom of the page was a distracting picture of a cluster of drilling rigs, labeled, "A nest of fortune builders."

The back page was completely plastered with more seductive facsimiles of newspaper clippings, each, almost without exception, relating Aladdin-like tales of fabulous oil riches: "Bidding $610 for humble oil stock," "$100 shares bring $23,000," "Oil land makes lineman rich" caught the eye readily.

Page No. 2 was devoted to "Our Plan," and Page No. 3 to a map, bearing annotations in the language of geologists and glamored over with drill rigs representing producing wells. A large cross near where the wells were thickest was labeled as indicating "Our 215 acres."

The plan, as set forth, was as follows:

"We have subdivided 215 acres of our holdings into 3440 lots or drilling sites. Each lot is 25x100 feet, containing 2500 square feet. We are offering these lots for sale to the public at $50 each, upon full payment of which we agree to issue a warranty deed, free and clear of all incumbrances, whatsoever, to the lot or lots purchased. The purchase of a lot makes the owner a holder in the company and entitles him or her to an equal proportion of 75 per cent of the net profits from the sale of all oil, gas or other minerals found on any part of the other 215 acres held by the company.

"The Montague Oil Co. is to receive 10 per cent of the net profits from the sale of all oil, gas or other minerals found on said land, and the remaining 15 per cent is to be set aside as a development fund.

"Fifteen dollars from the sale of each lot is to be placed in charge of our trustee, George P. Heckel, to be held in escrow by a bank or trust company until an amount sufficient to start drilling operations has been accumulated. At such time the money is to be released only for the purpose of drilling a well or wells to the known sands of this district."

George P. Heckel, referred to in the prospectus, resides at 4564 Washington boulevard, and is trustee of the Heckel estate, which has an office in the Federal Reserve Bank building. The land referred to as "Our 215 acres" belongs to the Heckel estate. The "Montague Syndicate" had only an option on the land. The option expired in April. No payments had been made on it, so it was cancelled. Nor were any payments made to Heckel toward the fund of "no less" than $55,000 for drilling purposes."

Inquiries Start Coming In.

Soon it became apparent that lots were being sold, for purchasers began to inquire of Heckel when he was going to start development and what he was doing with the fund of "no less" than $55,000. Heckel replied that he had received no money and related the facts to the post-office authorities.

Marley was general manager of "Jannings & Co., which had offices in the Arcade building. His account at St. Louis banks resulted in a search for him by Pinkerton detectives on a charge of obtaining $2225 on worthless checks. His wife left St. Louis two weeks ago. Her trunks were traced to New York, thence to her meeting place with her husband, and he was arrested.

The grand jury yesterday returned an indictment of Marley on still another charge, based upon the accusation of William J. Hook of 2842 Eads avenue, that he turned over stock valued at $1295 to Marley for which he was to receive stock in the "Compeer Oil Co." Hook declares that he did not receive the stock.

DOCTORS STRIKE AT AMERICAN HOSPITAL AT NEUILLY, FRANCE

Trouble Said to Have Arisen From Attitude of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, One of Managers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The whole staff, with one exception, of doctors at the American Hospital at Neuilly have gone on a strike because of the attitude of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt of the Board of Managers. The hospital now is in difficulty, as the French Government refuses to permit the importation of American doctors, and French doctors, sympathizing with the resigning physicians, refuse to serve on the staff.

According to one of the doctors, the trouble began more than a year ago, when Mrs. Vanderbilt joined the Board of Managers and tried to abolish the Medical Board. At the time the attempt failed, but last April the Board of Managers passed a resolution to bring a doctor from America to have full charge of ward patients, thus practically abolishing the Medical Board.

All the doctors, except Dr. Edmund Gros, at once reseigned, but they agreed to stay until the American doctor arrived. Later they learned the French Government had refused to allow the doctor to practice without a French certificate. The Board of Managers then tried to get French doctors, who generally refused because of sympathy with the former staff.

BLANCHE PILLEN, 17 YEARS OLD, A waitress, who said she resided at 5045 Geraldine avenue, was taken from the Health Department detention hospital at 200 South Twelfth street last night at 10:20 o'clock to the City Hospital, suffering from mercurial poisoning. She refused to state any reason for having taken the poison.

ACTING MINERS' HEAD URGES MEN TO WORK

Such Action Will Hasten Consideration of Grievances by Operators, He Points Out.

By the Associated Press.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 11.—Acting President John Collins, of District 1, United Mine Workers, today issued a circular urging all union miners to return to work, declaring that such action will the quicker bring about consideration by the coal companies of any grievances the men may have.

The first effect of President Wilson's refusal to have the scale committee of miners and operators in the anthracite region re-open the wage agreement signed last week came today when the Coal Brook Collieries at Carbondale, the largest operation in this region of the Hudson Coal Co., closed down.

General Scale Committee to Meet Tomorrow to Determine Policy.

By the Associated Press.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 11.—The general scale committees of the three anthracite districts will meet in Hazleton Monday to determine upon a policy, following the refusal of President Wilson to re-open the wage agreement as requested by the United Mine Workers.

Leaders of the United Mine Workers expressed the opinion that differences between the operators and miners can be adjusted without much delay. A statement issued from union headquarters at Hazelton said:

"We are still of the opinion that there are ways left to have the matter adjusted and the Policy Committee will likely map out plans calculated to best meet the needs of the situation."

The Policy Committee, comprising all members of the executive boards of the three anthracite districts, will meet in Hazelton Monday to consider the situation.

The refusal of President Wilson to grant the request of the miners' union to use his offices to reopen the wage agreement had the effect of tightening the ranks of idle men, union leaders said. They add, however, that the workers are awaiting action of the Policy Committee and will return to the mines if advised to do so by the officers of their organization.

The number of men who quit work after the wage award was announced 10 days ago is estimated at nearly 100,000.

BODY OF DROWNED DETROIT HEIRESS NOT YET RECOVERED

Former Husband of Mrs. Kuehling Says She Recently Wrote to Sister Saying She Feared Harm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The body of Mrs. Gertrude Kuehling, Detroit heiress, whose husband reported her drowned on Wednesday night, still is unrecovered.

Harry B. Osgood, a wealthy Detroit real estate operator and divorced husband of Mrs. Kuehling, who is in Washington assisting in the search, today informed the police that last July while a patient in a Washington sanatorium the wife wrote her sister that she feared harm.

Kuehling was introduced to his wife by a Detroit woman whom Kuehling had met at Palm Beach in 1917. On his discharge from the army he went to Detroit and after Mrs. Osgood obtained her divorce she married Kuehling at Mount Clemens, Mich. She legally surrendered her 5-year-old boy to her former husband. Mr. and Mrs. Kuehling then came to Washington to live.

Last Wednesday evening the husband and wife went for a canoe ride on the Potomac. Late in the evening persons on the shore heard calls for help and on investigating found Kuehling standing in three feet of water beside an overturned canoe. He declared that his wife was drowned. Kuehling has been held by the police, although no formal charge has been placed against him.

Mrs. Kuehling is said to have had an income of about $1000 a month and possessed thousands of dollars worth of jewelry which she kept at home. The police today found $5000 worth of gems that had been hidden in the lining of one of Mrs. Kuehling's hats.

MAINE ELECTION TOMORROW, WITH WOMEN VOTING

Republican Chairman Says Majority Will Be 40,000 if All the New Voters Go to the Polls.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 11.—Final statements were issued tonight by Frank J. Ham of Augusta, the chairman of the Republican State Committee, and by Louis J. Brann of Lewiston, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, in regard to the biennial election which will be held Monday. Chairman Ham said if the women who are registered vote Monday the success of the Republican ticket by a majority of 40,000 is assured. Chairman Brann said the outlook is good for the Democrats.

For the first time the women of Maine will get the polls. The Republican women are well organized, for the Republicans started as early as last winter to form State, county and city committees.

Conservative estimates are that 150,000 men and 75,000 women will vote. A special session of the Legislature was held last week to amend the registration laws which would permit all the women in the State to vote.

Some of the leaders of both parties spoke during the campaign. Both the national committees sent women to the State.

Maine is unique in its constitutional provisions for State elections which are held in September instead of November, and in presidential years the local contests are viewed as of special importance. On these years the fighting is no less for the possession of State offices, representation in Congress and control of the State Legislature than for the psychological effect of the outcome on the rest of the country.

Leaders Take Result Seriously.

To what extent, if any, the national drift may be forecast by a victory or an increased or decreased majority here has long been a matter of dispute with politicians, but certain it is that national leaders have taken the tradition seriously, and have brought as many of their political big guns into the campaign in this State as possible. Four years ago, Charles E. Hughes wound up the campaign for the Republicans. This year both parties have had a big representation of State campaigners, and have drawn heavily on the national committees for speakers of national prominence.

Monday a Governor, State Auditor, four members of Congress, a State Legislature and county officers will be chosen. Maine does not elect a Senator this year.

For the governorship, Frederick H. Parkhurst of Bangor, who defeated Gov. Carl E. Milliken and Judge John P. Deering in the Republican primaries, is opposed by Bertrand G. McIntire of Norway, whom Milliken defeated two years ago by 5545 votes. A typographical error in the Maine Register of 1919-20 makes the vote of McIntyre appear as 4000 less than it was.

League of Nations Issue.

Both parties and gubernatorial candidates have made the League of Nations a fighting issue. Local questions have received less attention; even prohibition, which for more than 60 years has figured largely in state campaigns, and particularly in contests for county attorneys and Sheriffs, virtually was ignored. The Republicans in state convention approved the refusal of the United States Senate to ratify the treaty "without reservations designed to protect the safety, sovereigney and independence of the United States." The Democratic State platform declared for prompt ratification "without reservations destructive to the spirit and effective operation of the treaty." Both Parkhurst and McIntire indorsed their national and State resolutions.

The complexion of the new Legislature is a matter of some concern as it may be called upon to redistrict the State and under the new apportionment Maine may lose one of its four Representatives in Congress.

If there is any virtue in comparisons, the results of previous State elections, may be of interest. A series of Republican victories, beginning in 1882 was broken in 1910 when Frederick W. Plaisted, Democrat, defeated Bert M. Fernald, Republican, by 8660 votes. Two years alter Gov. Plaisted was defeated by William T. Haines, Republican, by a little more than 3000. Haines, in turn, failed of re-election in 1914, the Democratic candidate for Governor, Oakley C. Curtis, leading him a little better than 3000 votes. Gov. Milliken, Republican, won over Curtis in 1916, leading the Democratic candidate by 13,830. In that year Hughes carried the State, his vote being 5475 greater than that for President Wilson. The total vote for President was: Hughes, 69,508; Wilson, 64,033; Benson (Socialist), 2177; Hanly (Prohibitionist), 596. Two years ago when Milliken defeated the present Democratic candidate for Governor, McIntire, by a majority of 5545, the total vote of the State was 121,669. This was nearly 30,000 under the total in 1916.

WOMAN DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COMMISSIONER

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Noted as Red Cross Worker, First to Be So Honored.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—President Wilson today appointed Mabel T. Boardman, for many years a member of the Executive Committee of the American Red Cross, to be a commissioner of the District of Columbia, effective next Wednesday, on the retirement of Commissioner Brownlow, resigned.

The appointment makes Miss Boardman the first woman to be a member of the commission which directs the entire Government of the District.

Miss Boardman joined the Red Cross organization in 1900, and for 12 years has been in practical control of the entire relief machinery. In 1907 she was the American delegate to the eighth internatinal Red Cross conference in London.

Before the European war Miss Boardman's share in the humanitarian activities of the Red Cross had been recognized by decorations from a number of foreign governments, notably Sweden, Italy and Japan. Yale University, in 1911, made her honorary master of arts, the second woman so honored in the history of the University.

HEBREW CONGREGATION TO HOLD SERVICES IN BAPTIST CHURCH

Building Offered for Holiday Use When Capacity of Synagogue Is Taxed.

Members of the United Hebrew Congregation will hold their annual holiday services, beginning with the Jewish New Year tonight and ending 10 days later on the Day of Atonement, at the Second Baptist Church, King's highway and Washington boulevard, instead of at the congregation's temple, Enright avenue and King's highway.

The use of the Second Baptist Church was offered by the Rev. Dr. W. E. Bitting when he learned that more than a thousand persons had applied for seats in the Jewish synagogue, which seats only 400. Rabbi Samuel Thurman will conduct the services.

Reports Loss of $45 From Room.

George Hutchmacher, of Murphysboro, Ill., a visiting lumberman, told the police yesterday he left his room at the Marquette Hotel for about 15 minutes and on returning discovered a purse and $47 had been stolen from beneath a pillow in his room. Investigation at the hotel revealed the purse with only $2 in it had been found by the checker in the soiled linen department, having been dumped in the laundry from a container used by maids in cleaning the rooms. One of the maids was arrested when she admitted having examined the purse. She denied taking any of the missing $45.

REPORT THAT JOHN REED HAS U. S. PASSPORT DENIED

Four Identifying Papers Said by State Department to Be Forgeries.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Reports that John Reed, who sought to represent the Russian Bolsheviki Government as Consul General in the United States has an American passport was officially denied today at the State Department.

All of the four identifying papers which Reed carried, it was announced, were forgeries. They include a seaman's identification card issued last year to a James Gromley, who secured a duplicate upon filing affidavit that the original had been stolen in New York. Reed was said to have substituted his own photograph for that of Gromley on the passport.

An emergency passport which Reed holds made out to "Samuel Arnold Jr.," at Paris, was declared to be forgery in its entirety, including the signature of Ambassador Wallace, as was a letter addressed to Arnold purporting to be signed by the Ambassador and a written authorization from the Committee on Public Information made out to Samuel Arnold Jr.

Reed was said to have employed these papers to shield his activities as a deelgate to the Third Internationale under a cloak of American citizenship.

EXTENSIVE FRAUD IN REGISTRATION IN EAST ST. LOUIS

3300 Names, Many of Whom Do Not Live at Addresses Given, Added to List of Voters in Six Weeks.

ELECTION BOARD IS MAKING INVESTIGATION

Four Precincts Canvassed Disclosed That 48 Persons Not Entitled to Vote Had Enrolled.

Wholesale registration frauds for the express purpose of voting at the primary election next Wednesday, have been unearthed by members of the Board of Election Commissioners in East St. Louis, and judges and clerks to preside at the various polling places have been instructed to take special care in granting franchise to the voters who have registered during the past few weeks.

During the past six weeks 3300 names have been added to the list of voters, and inasmuch as a general registration takes place before the November election, the only purpose of those registering was to qualify to vote at the primary.

Louis Boismenue, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, during the closing days of the registration, became suspicious that some of the persons registering were not qualified voters, and did not reside at the addresses given in their affidavits.

Four Precincts Canvassed.

The primary election law does not provide for a canvass of the precincts by clerks of election prior to a primary, and therefore the Board of Election Commissioners took it upon themselves to make a canvass of the new registered vote in four different precincts. Boismenue said yesterday that the result shows that from 10 to 20 per cent of the late registration had moved or had never lived at the addresses given. As a result of the canvass 48 names have been erased from the precinct books.

Boismenue said he had no idea what individuals or organizations are back of the false registration, but that he was told that a man who is familiar with that kind of work as practiced in St. Louis, when asked about the matter, said he was aware that men living in St. Louis had been hired to register in East St. Louis for the primary. He did not appear to know who did the hiring, nor for whom they were to vote. Boismenue would not give the man's name.

Joseph Messick, Judge of the County Court, held a conference yesterday with the Board of Election Commissioners, and a course of action was decided upon for the prosecution of any of the men who registered falsely should they attempt to vote.

Boismenue said the board yesterday received information of a large false registration in a section different from those canvassed by the board.

Twenty-Eight Cases of Fraud.

"The board has the names of 20 persons in one precinct and eight in another, who have never lived at the addresses they gave, and are not known by residents of those addresses," said Boismenue.

"These men are registered from nine different houses, and one certain man, whose identity is still uncertain, visited all of these houses, handing in a slip of names, and were told to receive mail for them, and say they resided there. Then this individual paid the residents of the houses $1 for each name on the slip handed them.

"The board has reasons to believe that this system has been practiced in other sections of the city, and will do everything possible to prevent the perpetration of this outrage on justice.

"It is now too late to have a general canvass made of the entire city, which we would certainly have done, notwithstanding its enormous cost, but the board is still making further investigations in the precincts not already canvassed.

"The board will give the strictest instructions to the judges of election in regard to the late registration, and hopes to prevent the voting of those illegally registered, and will prosecute anyone who illegally attempts to vote at the coming primary."

BOSTON BANK CLOSED BY STATE

President of Prudential Trust Company Expects to Pay Depositors in Full.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—The Prudential Trust Company, an institution capitalized at $200,000, with more than $2,000,000 in deposits, was closed yesterday by Bank Commissioner Jos. Callen. Withdrawals, which had reduced deposits by $1,200,000 in 10 months, and loans that were considered both bad and slow were said by the commissioner to have made his action necessary.

John H. McNamee, president, said he expected to be able to pay depositors in full.

VOLSTEAD DISQUALIFIED AS NOMINEE FOR CONGRESS

Minnesota Supreme Court to Give Reasons for Its Conclusions in Opinion Later.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 11.—Affirming the disqualification of the Rev. O. J. Kvale as the Republican nominee for Congress in the Seventh District, the Minnesota State Supreme Court today also eliminated Congressman A. J. Volstead as the nominee.

Volstead had been declared nominated by the District Court.

The Rev. Mr. Kvale, who serves a Norwegian Lutheran Church, defeated Congressman Volstead for the nomination in the June primary. A group of voters in the district contested Kvale's nomination on the ground that he had violated the State corrupt practices act.

Judge Johnson of Red Wing, who heard the contest, held the act had been violated when Kvale declared Volstead was an atheist. He disqualified Kvale and declared Volstead, runner-up in the election, the nominee. The Rev. Mr. Kvale appealed to the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court affirmed the decision after modifying it by eliminating the clause declaring Volstead the nominee, and said "the reasons for this conclusion will be stated in an opinion to be filed at a later date."

A Man Responsible for So Many Birdies, Surely Is Entitled to the Nickname of "Chick"

Evans Overwhelms Ouimet, Winning U. S. and World's Amateur Golf Title, 7 and 6

Bostonian Proves No Match for His Opponent, Who Equals Course Record of 34 for Nine Holes—British, Canadian and French Champions Among Foes Eliminated.

ROSLYN, N. Y., Sept 11.—Charles "Chick" Evans, Jr., of Chicago today attained the honor of being the world's best amateur golfer by defeating Francis Ouimet of Boston in the final round of the United States championship tournament 7 and 6

His position as world's champion, while unofficial, is like that of William Tilden of Philadelphia, who holds the highest honor there is in tennis. Each played in a tournament in which the premier players of the world were entered, and each was victorious.

In the golf tournament just ended the champion of France, a Scotchman, and the title-holders of Canada and England competed.

"In what other countries is golf really played?" asked enthusiasts in arguing the claims of Evans to the world's championship.

Evans has now joined the select few who have held the United States amateur title more than one year. Not since 1913, when Jerome D. Travers won the second year in succession, has a champion come back. Evans was both amateur and open United States champion in 1916.

His victory in 30 holes today was a surprise to those who recalled his match with Ouimet at Oakmont where Ouimet won by a long putt at the home green. Ouimet's putting today was a great factor in his defeat; but being two down at the 18th hole, he must indeed have played super-golf to hold down the advantage of his rival, let alone overcome it.

When Evans during the afternoon went out in 34, two under par, admirers of Ouimet saw that his task was hopeless. Evans was seven up at the turn in the afternoon and then there was no doubt of the result.

The warmth of a bright sunny afternoon, with a large gallery and the course dry seemed much to the liking of the Chicago star. His 34 for the first nine holes was equalled during the present tournament only by Fred J. Wright Jr., the Massachusetts champion.

Evans Lost Only One P. M. Hole.

Evans lost only one hole of the afternoon and this time he was in a bunker and for the only time in the afternoon round took more strokes than par, while he had three birdies.

While Ouimet had the longer drives on 16 of the 25 long holes which they played, he drove into the rough from the tee six times and Evans only once. Evans made the longer drive on eight of the long holes, and they were even at one, having to toss to decide which should make his approach first.

Evans put his tee shots nearer the cup on three of the five short holes, Ouimet, on two.

Evans had the better approach on 13 of the long holes and Ouimet on 12. The figures in his respect do not do Evans justice, for the approaches that were to his advantage usually left him dead to the pin or two easy putts. Ouimet put his ball in traps or bunkers eight times and Evans only twice.

The play at the longest and the shortest holes of the course is a good guide to the manner in which Evans won.

The shortest hole, the 105-yard fourteenth, was played only once. A golfer here uses a mashie niblick on the tee and putts back spin on the ball. If he fails to make the ball stick on the green he is in trouble, for it is flanked on three sides by sand traps and gullies. Evans put his tee shot in a position that gave him a chance for a "birdie" 2; but, since Ouimet put his ball over the green on his tee shot and also failed to stick on the green with his second, Evans played safe and took the hole in par three.

Evans the More Accurate.

Ouimet gained no advantage whatsoever from his longer driving, as Evans offset this by keeping his ball in the fairway. He made the 556-yard ninth hole, the longest on the course, in a par five in the morning round, and in a "birdie" four in the afternoon play. Ouimet took a six each time at this hole, needing three to get on the edge of the green, while Evans was at this position in two shots on one occasion and on the other his second shot left him a chance for an "eagle," if he cared to hole a long putt like Ouimet did at two holes, in the morning.

They halved the first holes and Ouimet was one up after a birdie on the sixth. Evans squared it at the turn by his excellent playing of the long hole and Ouimet was never in the lead again. Evans took the lead by a "birdie" on the tenth, and after Ouimet had squared the match by a "birdie" on the eleventh, they halved the twelfth and Evans took the lead by a par four at the thirteenth hole, never to lose it.

Step Lightly Is 12-to-1 Surprise In Rich Futurity

Daughter of Ultimus Wins in Drive From Star Voter in Fast Time.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Step Lightly, a filly by Ultimus-Tripping, ridden by Jockey F. Keough, won the thirty-first running of the Futurity, America's premier 2-year-old classic, in a driving finish from Star Voter, Grey Lag and a field of 18 starters at Belmont Park today. The time for the distance, six furlongs, was 1:12 1-5.

Step Lightly, coupled with Careful, ran in the colors of Walter J. Salmon.

The big field broke in straggling fashion, with Careful showing the way, closely followed by Hildur, Believe Idle Hour and Prudery.

Careful showed the way to the final furlong, followed by Hildur and Believe Idle Hour. There she tired and, bore toward the inner rail while Step Lightly took command and won by a length from Star Voter, one of the J. J. L. Ross entries, ridden by Sande. A half length back Gray Lag, ridden by Pierce and owned by Max Hirsch, finished third. Kirklevington was fourth and Crocus fifth. Prudery finished a tired seventh.

The result was one of the biggest surprises of the turf year. Walter J. Salmon is a comparative newcomer to the turf. The value to the winner was $35,870. Star Voter earned $4500 by finishing second and Gray Lag $2250. Miss Elizabeth Dangerfield of Kentucky, who bred the winner, received $1000.

Man o' War Breaks Another.

Man o' War, carrying 118 pounds and ridden by Clarence Kummer, created a new American record for one and one-half miles when he won the Jockey Club Stakes from Damask, the only other starter, in 2:28 4-5. The old record was 2:29 3-5, made by Thunderclap with 108 pounds up, at Laurel, Md.

TED RAY.

I JOURNEYED to the links one day
To watch the English golfer, Ray,
And note each skillful stroke.
I saw him light his cutty pipe,
Then give the pesky pill a swipe
And then I watched his smoke.

Although the sun was bright and warm,
This golfer had his manly form
Enveloped in a coat.
He also wore an old slouch hat,
In spite of which I noted that
He never lost his goat.

No fancy duds did he effect,
But still his shots were all direct
And headed for the pin.
Which goes to prove that golfing ginks
Can wear old clothes upon the links
And still go out and win.

OHIO PLEASE NOTE.

The Government has $1,500,000 worth of office furniture in storage. We know several gents who are in the market for a presidential chair.

YOUTHFUL AMBITION.

Harry Vardon, Chick Evans, Francis Ouimet and other champion golfers started as caddies. Which probably accounts for the fact that there are more boys toting golf bags than there are splitting rails with an eye on the presidency of the United States in the dim distant future.

YEARLING RACER SELLS FOR $72,500 IN ENGLAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—All world's records for prices for a yearling thoroughbred were broken in the Doncaster sales in England last week when a gray colt by The Tetrarch-Blue Tit sold for the fabulous sum of $72,500. This price for the untried baby racer was paid by Lord Glanely, who last year paid $57,500 for Westward Ho, a yearling out of the same mare, but sired by Cylgad. Westward Ho grew so rapidly this year it was decided not to train him until his 3-year-old form.

The second highest price of the sale was brought by a colt by The Tetrarch out of Honora, and local horsemen are interested in the price of $48,000 brought by this youngster, as he is a full brother to the gray mare Herodias, owned by W. R. Coe, who was a fair sort of handicap performer last year, but who has not appeared under colors this season. At the Doncaster sales 13 youngsters averaged $21,029 each.

Miss America Is Winner in First Heat of Cup Race

New Record Is Established in Events Staged at Detroit—Rainbow Also Victor.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 11.—By a margin of two-fifths of a second, the closest finish in the history of the event, Miss America of the Detroit Yacht Club, driven by Carwood, defeated Miss Detroit V of the Miss Detroit Power Boat Association in the first heat of the gold challenge cup race this afternoon. The two Detroit boats shattered previous speed records, Miss Detroit V, on elapsed time, showing an average speed of 60.98 miles an hour and Miss America 60.90 miles an hour. The fastest of the six five-mile laps was made by Miss America in her third time around, 63.6 miles an hour.

Three other hydroplanes entered in the event met with mishap before the completion of the first heat and were obliged to drop out. Miss New Orleans of the Southern Yacht Club struck a log on the first trip around and filled with water.

The previous heat record for the gold cup race was 56.5 miles an hour made by Miss Detroit II at Minneapolis in 1917.

Rainbow Captures Heat.

Rainbow of the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, driven by H. B. Greenway, took the first 50-mile heat in the Carl Fisher trophy race, open to displacement boats capable of 35 statute miles an hour. Rainbow went 20 times around a two and one-half mile course in 1h. 25m. 27s. elapsed time. Momanche of Detroit, driven by Edsel Ford, was second; Snapshot of the Detroit Boat Club third and Doughboy of the Detroit Boat Club fourth.

The first 42-mile heat in the Garwood $5000 gold nugget race, open to speed boats of any type, was won by Sure Cure of the Detroit Boat Club, driven by Paul Strasburg. Sure Cure covered the single lap in 57m. 59s., at an average speed of 44.75 miles an hour. Second and third places went to Miss Nassau of the Cleveland Yacht Club and Garwood Jr. II of the Detroit Yacht Club.

White Cap of the Toledo Yacht Club won the first heat of 22.5 miles in the Sallan handicap race for cabin cruisers. She was handled by C. A. Peckham. Her elapsed time was 2h. 14m. 48s. Second place went to "2 P. M." of Detroit. Tillamook of Detroit finished third.

AMERICAN STARS BACK FROM ANTWERP, CLAIM THEY WERE NEGLECTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Gross neglect by the American Olympic Committee of the welfare of the United States team on its way to Antwerp, while there and on its way home was charged by athletes arriving here today on the transport Sherman from Belgium. Dismissal of the committee will be demanded, they told newspaper men.

Praise for the army and navy in efforts to make the trip over and back as comfortable and as pleasant as possible was virtually unanimous.

The Olympic athletes blamed the committee for sending them by transport, declaring it was too slow and tended to let the men grow "stale" before they arrived in Belgium. They also said their quarters were unsatisfactory for athletes, who needed to keep in training.

On the way home on the Sherman they came on a "sea-going hearse," they said, characterizing the voyage as "gruesome," for the Sherman brought 763 bodies of American soldier dead from Europe "almost directly under the sleeping quarters." The loading of the caskets on board by squeaking winches made so much noise that a number of the athletes "had to go to Antwerp hotels to sleep," they added.

MEADOWBROOK OPPOSES ROCKAWAY IN OPENING GAME FOR POLO TITLE

I., Sept. 11.—Polo enthusiasts from all over the country were present at the International Polo Field at Meadowbrook Club this afternoon to witness the first game for the senior polo championship, which was played here for the first time, Narragansett Pier having seen this famous trophy played for every year heretofore. The stands were comfortably filled with residents of the countryside.

This is the twenty-sixth time that this cup has been played for, which was given by William Waldorf Astor through the Tuxedo Club. Individual cups are donated by the Polo Association each year.

Tommy Hitchcock Jr. who is spoken of as being one of the challenging four to go to England and bring back the cup, scored two goals for Meadowbrook.

Wounded Nine Times, Decorated Twice, Wallops With the Padded Mitts Mean Little to Ray Smith

Boxer Who Battles Bob Martin Here Tuesday, Suffered Shrapnel, Grenade and Machine Gun Wounds in France, Rescued Hospital Patients and Outfought a "Heinie."

By John E. Wray.

"The mightiest fighting man of 40,000,000 fighting men!"

So spoke Gen. John J. Pershing, Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, on an occasion when, before a vast throng at Pershing Stadium he presented a modest young American soldier of 21 years with a medal emblematic of his victory in the heavyweight ring championship of all the Allied forces.

The clean-cut young man was Bob Martin, who for 27 months—or since the day after war was declared by America—had been serving in the United States Army, the greater part of the time in France.

About the time that Martin was receiving the felicitations of Gen. Pershing and the plaudits of the allied armies in France, another young gladiator, only a few months older, was arriving in America after completing a service abroad almost as extended as that of Martin and who, also, like Martin, had risen to a considerable height in the Army boxing ring. But for the fact that his division was ordered home early, he might even have been receiving the honors that were given Martin, had luck kept him longer in France.

This soldier was Sergeant Ray Smith who, although he had won no ring medals, won the highest of honors for real fighting—honors gained following three battle engagements and the rescue of seventeen hospital inmates under fire. His deeds were testified to by nine wounds from shrapnel, machine gun, grenade and bayonet; and by three citations and two decorations. He was singled out as the only boxer in the American Army to be decorated with the Croix de Guerre, which was personally bestowed by Marshal Petain, after the battle of Cantigny.

Both Soldiers Still Fighting.

All of which is interesting to St. Louisans from the fact that these two fighting units of the late war are now in this city preparing for another battle—one in the ring at the Coliseum, Tuesday night—a battle which should prove one of the few real FIGHTS seen in a St. Louis "main event" in lo, these many days.

Martin and Smith will be battling for the fourth time. Once they met in France and boxed four rounds before 40,000 soldiers—for mere entertainment of their fellows. It was a hard bout and the referee called it a draw.

Since both returned to civilian life and adopted the profession of boxing, they have twice clashed. They met first at Cleveland some months ago. Martin was favorite by reason of a long line of quick knockouts administered to opponents of varying degrees of ability.

In the first round Smith clipped Martin on the chin and sent the Inter-Allied champion to the canvas. Martin weathered the gale and went to his corner.

"Got your feet tangled, didn't you Bob?" Manager Jimmy Bronson jollied him, using a little psychology, between rounds.

"Feet tangled nothing. I got it on the chin" replied Martin.

At the end of ten rounds Smith had gained a popular decision and Martin retired with an injured hand, for seven weeks.

Smith Runs Into a "Kayo."

Later they met again. Smith was winning handily on points, when the powerful straight right of Martin drove home in the seventh. Smith went down and out.

The meeting at the Coliseum will be their third professonal encounter and Smith, a confident fellow, says that he will not get his jaw in the way of Martin's powerful right again.

"Martin can stop anybody, if he can hit him right," Smith admits, "but there isn't much need of letting him hit you, if you're careful."

Smith, a picturesque, rugger, 189-pounder, worked out at the Business Men's Gymnasium yesterday while the onlookers marveled. Stripped, Smith appears to have been in the near foreground when a boiler exploded. His scrambled anatomy is due to wounds with which his body is marked.

Spitted on Foe's Bayonet, Smith Fells Hun With Fist, Then "Mops Him Up"

Perhaps the most interesting of these wounds is one in Smith's leg, gained in a hand-to-hand battle with a "Heinie," as he terms a Prussian. The German had wrestled Smith to the ground, as he briefly tells the story, and had stabbed him with the bayonet through the thigh after he had fallen. Smith smashed the Hun in the face with his fist, as the enemy bent over him, knocking him backward. Smith then pulled the bayonet from his leg, staggered to his feet and brained the enemy with the butt of the foe's own gun.

"I guess I'm proof against a few thumps from padded boxing gloves after that," Smith tells his friends.

It is because of the fighting record of Smith and Martin in France that there is a sure guarantee of a real battle at the Coliseum Tuesday night. Not only are these real fighting men, but neither boxer can well afford to lose decisively to the other. Smith would be definitely out of the heavyweight race, for the time being at least, if Martin stopped him; while Martin would suffer not only a lapse in his reputation, but the loss of a Madison Square Garden fight with Frank Moran, Sept. 27, from which he expects to receive about $20,000.

In his workout at the Business Men's gym yesterday, Smith pleased Walter Heisner and other competent critics by his actions in the ring. He moves around fast, is clever with the gloves and carries a good, stout punch, as was shown when he floored Martin at Cleveland. His confidence made a pleasing impression.

High Praise for Martin.

Martin, who is also in the city, did not limber up yesterday, but has been fighting regularly, and is down to about 185 pounds, Manager Bronson stated. Martin is coming along nicely in his progress toward a bout with Dempsey, and is, according to Bob Armstrong, the former colored fighter and well-remembered handler of champions of other days, "the best looking prospect in 20 years."

Martin's record bears out this praise, for, in the 21 fights he has engaged in since his return from France, he has scored 19 knockouts and his average time required for each has been four rounds.

Martin's is perhaps not as clever as Smith, but relies more on the old wallop. The danger lurks in his right hand and he shoots it in straight and true, with no round-house swing.

Both of these young men own superior personalities, and are far above the usual heavyweight types seen in the ring. Both are intelligent and well-spoken, and the fight profession is the last either might be suspected of having adopted, if externals alone were considered.

Jack Dempsey to Box Bill Brennan Oct. 1 In New York Arena

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

AGREEMENT for a 15-round bout between Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Bill Brennan of this city, was signed today, according to Jack Kearns, the champion's manager. The bout will be staged at Madison Square Garden, Oct. 1, under the direction of Tex Rickard.

BRAVES' RIGHT TO PLAY POSTPONED GAMES AT NEW YORK QUESTIONED

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 11.—August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati Nationals, raised the question today whether two games between the New York and Boston Nationals, postponed last Tuesday, can be legally played at the Giants' grounds on Sept. 28.

Herrmann, in a telegram he sent to Business Manager Frank Bancroft of the Reds, instructed Bancroft to ask John A. Heydler, president of the National League, for a ruling on the point. Herrmann stated that he does not want to do anything to prevent the games from being played, but he thinks that under the circumstances the games, if played at all, will have to be contested at the Boston grounds, where they were scheduled.

Kabakoff to Box Fleming, Friday

National Sporting Club Signs One-Time Ghetto Pride for Four-Round Feature.

Roger Cornell, matchmaker for the National Sporting Club, announced last night that he had signed Harry Kabakoff, the "ghetto pride" and one time feather and bantamweight star, to box Harry Fleming of Tulsa, Ok., in the feature of his four-round program at the First Regiment armory, next Friday night.

Kabakoff has not boxed for several months, his last big bout being a draw with Young Chaney at Detroit.

Fleming is said to have a fair record in the Southwest, where he has fought 25 professional bouts in the last year, or more.

Mike O'Donnell vs. Harry Roth and Eddie Taylor vs. Oscar Joergens, are two other features arranged, Cornell says. The Murphy-Peewee Kaiser contest will not be arranged this week, Cornell stated.

On the same night the St. Louis Amateur Athletic Association will hold a show at the Battery A drill yard with Kid Bandy and Jack Lawler in the main event.

Judging by Yesterday's Game, the Signing of North Was a Step in the Right Direction

Superbas Increase Lead by Winning 2 From Cardinals

Dodgers Slaughter Lyons and Kircher for 15-4 Victory—North Loses Second, 2-0.

OLSON STARS IN FIELD

Brooklyn Shortstop Accepts 14 Chances Without a Slip in Closing Tilt.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 11.—Brooklyn gained on both New York and Cincinnati today by taking two games from the Cardinals at Ebbetts Field. St. Louis was swamped in the first game, 15 to 4, and was shaded in the second, 2 to 0.

The crowd numbered 25,000, filling all the stands and the temporary bleachers in left. The fire department closed the gates when there were still four thousand more fans who wanted to pay for tickets. Brooklyn gained two full games on Cincinnati, which was losing two in Boston and half a game on the Giants, who were taking a single tilt from Chicago.

The second victory for the Dodgers came after a tough battle between Sherrod Smith, the Brooklyn southpaw and Lou North, the former Milwaukee right hander. North held the Dodgers to six hits, but one of them was a home run by Wheat over the right field fence in the fourth inning. Another was the first of two doubles knocked by Smith. It came in the third inning with one out and Smith scored on Johnston's triple to right center.

Olson Accepts 14 Chances.

Olson's fielding was the big feature of the second game. He had 13 assists and one putout, and made no errors. In the first game he had two putouts, three assists and one error, making a total of 20 chances in two games with 19 accepted. Ray Schmandt's fielding for Brooklyn was another feature of both games. He was playing because Konetchy had a split finger.

Hornsby led the Cardinal batters in the second game with a double and a single. The best chance for the Cardinals to score came when Hornsby doubled in the fourth inning with one out. He was caught going to third, however, when McHenry grounded to Olson.

Dilhoefer was put out of the second game for kicking on a ball called on Johnston in the first inning and Clemons finished. Umpire Emslie canned Heathcote for kicking on a decision at first in the second inning and Shotton then went to center.

First Game a Slaughter.

The first game was a slaughter, in which the Dodgers amassed 20 stout blows, including a home run into the left field bleachers by Leon Cadore, who pitched the whole game for Brooklyn, and allowed the Cardinals 10 hits. One of the hits off Cadore was a home run over the right field wall by Cliff Heathcote in the eighth inning.

Six hits and five runs were made by the Dodgers in the curtain-raiser off George Lyons, a rookie right-hander from Sioux City, in the first inning, and none out in the second. After Cadore's home run in the second George faded and Mike Kircher, southpaw from Richmond, Va., finished the game. Fourteen hits, including five doubles and Johnston's triple, for 10 runs, formed Kircher's contribution to the Brooklyn batting averages.

Both managers used substitutes freely after the first game became lopsided. One of the Brooklyn subs was Jack Sheehan, an infielder, bought from Winnipeg, Western Canadian League, who reported this week. He played short for two innings and looked good, but did not go to bat.

Dodgers Start in Early.

Singles by Olson, Johnston and Bill Lamar, with Wheat's sacrifice fly and Schmandt's single gave the Dodgers a flying start of three runs off Lyons in the first inning of the curtain-raiser. Krueger singled in the second and went on in on Cadore's home run, which knocked out Lyons and brought in Kircher.

Myers' double, Kilduff's single, Cadore's double and Olson's single, with McHenry's fumble on Olson, let in three runs in the third inning. Neis doubled in the fourth and scored on Wheat's out and Myers' fielder's choice to Hornsby. Olson singled in the sixth and scored on the triple by Johnston, who scored on Wheat's single. Singles by Schmandt, Krueger and Cadore, Olson's force of Cadore, Johnston's double and Neis' double gave the Dodgers four runs in the seventh.

McHenry walked for the Cardinals in the second inning of the first game, which was the only pass off Cadore. Heathcote's double and Clemens' single scored McHenry and Heathcote. Kircher singled in the seventh and counted on Schultz's single and two fielders' choices. Heathcote hit a home run in the eighth.

Braves Win Two From Champions

Despised Bostonians Weaken Reds' Pennant Hopes by 5-4 and 2-0 Defeats.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Boston weakened Cincinnati's pennant hopes by winning both games of a double-header today, 5 to 4 and 2 to 0.

The winning runs in the first game were scored in the eighth inning when Groh threw low to first, Maranville scoring closely behind Cruise.

The second game developed into a pitchers' battle between Oeschger and Fisher, who weakened in the sixth when four singles and a sacrifice fly, scored Oeschger and Powell with the only runs of the game. Two fine double plays eliminated Cincinnati's chances of scoring.

Browns Maul Griffith's Hurlers For 33 Hits and Win Two Games

Safeties for Burkemen Are Good for 53 Bases and Result in 13 to 6 and 17-2 Victories—Williams Clouts Two Home Runs—Red Sox Open Here Today.

Yesterday was the last time that the Browns were scheduled to meet Clark Griffith's Washington baseball club, this season; and it is quite likely that Grif and his minions hoped that it was their last meeting with the locals forever and ever.

Just as a little farewell festival Jimmy Burke's men lambasted, bombarded and steam-rollered the visitors from the capital in two games, taking the first 13 to 6 and subjecting them to a horrifying holocaust, 17 to 2, in the finale. The double-win put the Burkemen back to a .500 standing for the season, and gave them a 12 to 9 advantage over the Senators on the 1920 play.

The afternoon's performance lasted three hours and 38 minutes, actual playing time, and during that period the cannonading was pretty general, with both teams figuring in on the bludgeon work, although the Browns were, of course, more effective. The locals banged the ball for a total of three home runs, a triple, nine doubles and 20 singles, a record which would compare favorably with any cricket match.

Williams Hits First Homer.

To begin at the beginning, the opening fracas was quite a worthy contest for six innings. During that time the contending teams were battling for the lead, and it appeared as if the game would be a nip-and-tuck affair like the two games Thursday. Washington had hopped off to a lead with one run, in the second inning, but the Brownies got this and two others back in their half, due to Williams' first homer, Smith's first of four two-ply hits, two singles and an error.

The Nationals counted one run in the third, and the battling Burkemen countered in their portion with two. After Gedeon had singled, Sisler walked, and "Jake" forced Gedeon. "Moose Jaw" Williams cracked another hit to right which tallied a pair of runners. Williams, it will be remembered, was a thorn in the Senatorial side, Thursday.

Then all went along peacefully until the eventful seventh. At this stage, Mr. Wilson's fellow-citizens went into the lead for the second time with a brace of markers. Judge singled, stole second and scored on Rice's double, the latter counting on Harris' one-base slap. That made the score 6 to 5.

Details of the Slaughter.

Here was where vengeance came in buckets full. Listen to the horrible details: Severeid walked and Billings ran for him. Austin batted for Davis and forced Billings. Gerber singled. Gedeon doubled, scoring Austin. Sisler was purposely passed. Jacobson walked, forcing in Gerber. Williams popped out for the second demise. Smith singled to right, scoring Gedeon and Sisler. Tobin singled to center, scoring "Jake," but Smith was cut down at the plate, ending the agony.

Three runs were scored in the next inning, but they were inconsequential. Burwell assumed responsibilities after Davis' departure and held down the fort safely. "Dixie," of course, gets credit for the win.

The second spasm was not even as interesting as the first one. Griffith sent Zachary to the hillock, but the locals didn't let Jazebel Tecumseh stick around long. They were a little slow and could only knock a double and two singles in the second inning for two runs, but at least this took away the one-run advantage that his teammates had assumed in their half.

Another Real Slug Fest.

It was in the third inning that the fourth-placers got down to the real business of the conclave. This round, too, may be interesting to the lovers of batting pyrotechnics, so it is given in its entirety: Gedeon led off with a single, Sisler doubled, scoring Gedeon. Jacobson strolled, and Williams got an infield hit. Smith counted Sisler and "Jake" with a rousing two-bagger. Tobin singled to center, scoring Williams, and then pilfered second. Severeid's sacrifice fly tallied Smith, and then Wellman fanned. Gerber's double counted Tobin. Gedeon walked, but Sisler rolled out for the novelty of putting his fielder's mitt on again. All of it spelled six runs.

That was the end of Zachary, and from then on a youth named Joe Gleason from Shreveport served ammunition for the rampant locals. Joe had a baptism which he will never be able to forget. He pitched against the Browns in the remaining five innings and each inning saw at least one athlete cross the counting station.

Carl Wellman was doing all of the local pitching during this jamboree and was doing it quite well. The Senators got to him for 10 safeties, but it must be remembered that he was easing along under wraps since his teammates were making the welkin ring like an eight-day clock. Carl looked better than he has in a local out for some time, but, of course, that may be to some extent due to attending circumstances.

Red Sox Call Today.

It might be well to mention the fielding piece de resistence of the afternoon. This, like the faraway hitting honors, went to Kenneth Williams. In the eighth inning of the first game with the bases full of visitors and one down, Milan sent a low liner to short left center. Williams raced in, mitted the ball with one hand, and while still on the run heaved to Gedeon for a double play.

Today's game with Boston will be started at 3:15 p. m. Manager Burke will probably start Elam Vangilder or Joe Deberry.

Kopf Rejoins Reds.

William L. Kopf, shortstop of the Cincinnati (National League) baseball team and former Oriole, who has been out of the game with an injured finger, rejoined the team at Boston last Wednesday.

Yankees Humble Indians; Record Crowd Looks On

New York's Heavy Artillery Pounds Bagby to 6-2 Defeat Before 30,805 Fans.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 11.—New York made it two out of three from Cleveland today, winning, 6 to 2. Bagby was batted hard and was finally driven from the box in the sixth inning, when Ward and Hannah led off with doubles. Before Clark could retire the Yankees they had scored four runs.

Thormahlen was effective throughout, Cleveland failing to score until the ninth, when two infield hits, with two wild throws by Pipp gave the Indians two runs.

None of the New York outfielders had a fielding chance until the eighth inning, when Ruth caught a fly in short center.

The largest crowd in the history of Cleveland professional baseball was present at the game, numbering 30,805 paid admissions. Ruth failed to hit a home run, but made two doubles and walked twice.

RED SOX SEND CHICAGO DOWN TO THIRD PLACE

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Boston won from Chicago today and sent the White Sox down to third place. The score was 9 to 7.

Jones was batted hard by the White Sox, but the locals tossed their own game away by giving Kerr erratic support.

In the fifth inning three hits with a like number of errors gave the visitors what seemed a commanding lead; but Joe Jackson's home run, with the bases loaded, put the White Sox back in the running.

Jones was forced to retire, when Chicago rallied in the seventh, but Karr managed to pull the visitors together and prevented further damage.

A single and a triple in Boston's sixth forced the retirement of Kerr of the White Sox, and a sacrifice fly which followed off Hodge gave Boston two more runs.

Today was "John Collins' Day" at the White Sox park, and he was presented with a check for $2500 from friends.

GLEN ECHO CLUB NAMES TEAM TO COMPETE FOR WOMEN'S WESTERN TITLE

Glen Echo Country Club will be represented in the women's Western team championship golf tournament, which is to be played this week over the home courses of the various clubs taking part. Mrs. James A. Corbett of Glen Echo announced last night that the team to represent the local organization would be made up of Mrs. L. E. Wasson, Mrs. George E. Mix, Mrs. S. T. G. Smith and Miss Frances Cook.

Glen Echo tomorrow will play off a postponed tourney for women, an 18-hole handicap event, open to club members only.

The next weekly invitation golf tournament for women has been assigned to the Westwood course Tuesday of this week. Play will consist of the usual blind bogey and low score, 18-hole contests.

The feature of the season for women, the district championship, is scheduled Oct. 11 at Algonquin.

Municipal Teams Play Semifinal Contests Today

Triple A Opposes Alpen Braus and Tates Meet Overlands on Fairground Diamond.

Hurling duels are expected to result today in the two semifinal Municipal Baseball Association contests scheduled to be played at Fairground No. 1. In the opener, Triple A opposes the Alpen Braus at 1:30 o'clock, while the Tates and Overlands fight it out starting at 3:30 o'clock.

Each one of these clubs owns a star flinger. Of the quartet, "Poge" Lewis, the former Washington University star, now with Triple A, established the best record during the campaign. He will work for the A. A. A. aggregation against the Alpen Braus this afternoon. His rival will be Lilpop, a veteran in local circles.

In the clash between the Tates and Overlands, Harden and Roettger will be the rival moundmen. Harden has been hurling exceptional ball this season. Roettger also is a star, but inclined to be wild.

In an effort to raise funds to bring out-of-town teams here and send the local champions on a trip, an admission of 25 cents will be charged to a certain section of the bleachers.

The first of a three-game series to decide the title winner will be staged next Saturday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—A hit by Frisch in the ninth inning today sent Bancroft home and enabled New York to defeat Chicago, 2 to 1. The game was a tight pitching duel between Barnes and Tyler.

The Giants' first run came in the fourth when Burns doubled, took third on Bancroft's sacrifice and scored when Young hit a slow one toward third.

Tyler tied the score for the Cubs in the ninth, opening the inning with a single. Flack also hit safely and Terry sacrificed. Tyler counted on Merkle's sacrifice fly.

SHARKEY BEATS HERMAN IN UNIMPRESSIVE BOUT

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Sept. 11.—Jack Sharkey of New York won a newspaper decision over Pete Herman of New Orleans, bantamweight champion, in a 10-round bout this afternoon. The battle does not affect Herman's title, because there was no referee's decision.

Neither fighter was aggressive, but Sharkey took the offensive more than Herman and earned a shade.

Sharkey claimed fouls in the fifth and seventh rounds, but the referee did not allow the claims.

Sharkey weighed 122, three pounds more than he had agreed to make.

ILLINI GRIDIRON MEN START WORK ON MONDAY

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 11.—Coach Zuppke of the University of Illinois football team will start its initial practice of the season on Illinois Field Monday evening. If present prospects are a criterion, Illinois' chances this year loom up better than for a number of years past.

Zuppke will devote a great deal of time to the line, that being the weakest spot this year, due to a number of stellar players of last year's team graduating. The first game of the season will be with Iowa State on Illinois Field Oct. 13.

Avoid the Cut Shot and Play the Underspin, Advises Golfer Duncan

The Former Should Be Used Only to Pass a Half-Stymie Obstruction—All-Important Mashie Shot Should Be Struck Solidly With the Open Blade.

By George Duncan.

British Open Golf Champion.

THERE are some things which happen in golf that are easy to put down on paper. Mashie play is not one of them. So much depends upon the sense of "strength" possessed by the player that it is hard to find words which can fix down to concrete fact that which one wants to convey. When you are a distance from the hole that calls for a mashie shot you are either a full mashie shot away or between that and a chip shot.

Let me say right away that I cannot tell you what amount of force to put into your stroke; but under any circumstances you have got to hit firmly, so that there shall be no slovenliness about the work of your club. How hard you have got to hit the ball must be found out by yourself, but if you tell me the length of the shot and the nature of the ground between the ball and the hole, I can tell you what you have got to do with the club in order to get the desired effect.

Don't Cut Your Shots.

I have heard so much of the "cut" mashie shot that I am almost tired of saying if you cut your mashie shot, except under unusual circumstances, you have made a bad shot. There are few occasions when a shot which is cut is good. If, with driver, brassie, cleek or iron, through the green, you have sent your ball near to a tree or some other obstacle which makes for you a kind of half-stymie for the green, you make a cut shot that enables you to clear the obstruction, and finish on the green. Under such circumstances your "cut" would have to be called a good shot.

When all is straight-forward, and you have nothing in the way, you have played defective golf if you cut your mashie shot, even though you have managed to get as near to the pin as you expected.

What is "cut"? As I understand the term, it is dragging the face of the club across the ball at the moment of impact, so that you put upon the ball lateral spin. Thus does the ball, after landing, take a turn from left to right. Such a thing cannot be good in golf except under the exceptional circumstances I have referred to.

To Make the Ball Stop.

To make the ball stop on the green one does not want cut—but underspin. You should play straight for the hole, and doing so, prevent the ball from running too far. Underspin—not cut—is the thing to do that. This effect is obtained by hitting the ball a descending blow; that is to say, the clubhead meets the ball before the bottom of the arc, which the club describes has been reached. If you hit the ball truly the head of your club will be in the line of flight just before making impact, and it will be still in the line of fight after the ball has gone.

I have seen so many players spoil what would have been good shots by this inclination to draw the face of the club across the ball, that I sometimes get impatient in the telling of them that it is absurd. I have even had pupils who have complained to me that they cannot give the ball that glancing blow when playing their mashie shots. If they would only realize how ridiculous it is to try and do so they would be far more advanced in their play.

This striving after cut has cost many a player many a stroke. What should be thought of is: How rapidly can you make the ball spin in the direction from which it is hit—underspin or backspin, whichever way you like to put it. All this depends upon the individuality or judgment of the striker. You must "feel" the shot because so much depends upon the distance your ball is from the hole when you play it. You must find out for yourself how hard the ball must be struck (once again let me say it must be struck firmly always), and you must see that at the moment of impact you have sent your club's face to the ball at the time that the clubhead is near the bottom of the arc which it has to describe during the stroke.

Hit for the Pin.

The habit of pulling the face arises out of a mistaken term, the misuse of the word "cut." If you cut a ball you do not stop it—you cause it to run from left to right. Why do that? Surely it is better to hit the ball straight to the pin and risk nothing more than distance, instead of risking distance and direction.

When you are playing your mashie shots let the club go straight through with the face of the club square to the line of flight. You will find yourself near the hole on more occasions by doing that than you will if you try to stop the ball on the green by cutting it.

In a recent article I explained the dangers of overswinging. That danger is never greater than when playing a shot which requires the judgment which is called "strength." Roughly speaking, your swing for a mashie shot should be regulated by the distance to the hole, but you should never take your club so far back that you have got to steady it on the down swing in order to "spare" your shot.

Use the Open Blade.

In the use of the mashie the open blade plays a big part. If you address the ball with the blade of the club at right angles to the intended line of flight, you are using the shut or closed blade, which usually insures a pulled shot. The open blade is used when your clubhead is so placed that the toe of the club is pointing slightly to your right. In getting this position you should see that the handle of the club is a shade in front of the head. That should not only be so at the address, but also at the time of impact.

You need not be afraid of smothering the ball; have faith that the loft of the club will do its work if you will but give it a chance. If you do this you will find that the "open" blade, when it returns to the ball, gets back square with the line of flight, and you have insured the direction you required.

The ability to put underspin on a ball has been called the "Soul of Golf." It is. For long it has been my opinion that the man who can put most underspin on the ball is the man who will become a superchampion. I have told of the methods of putting underspin on the ball, and propose next week to go a little deeper into the matter. It is worth while, for it is the master shot at golf that we are dealing with.

Johnston Again Loses to Tilden

"Big Bill" for Second Time in Two Weeks Outplays California Tennis Rival.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—The East today won the East-West tennis title on the turf of the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club. Only one victory was needed to capture the championship, but results showed two triumphs out of three matches played, giving the easterners a total of six matches out of nine in three days' competition.

William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia, world's singles tennis champion, again demonstrated his tennis ability when he defeated William M. Johnston, California, in the feature match, 6—2, 7—5, 5—7, 6—4.

In the other singles match W. M. Washburn, New York, scored a notable victory over Roland Roberts of San Francisco, 3—6, 7—5, 11—9 and 6—2, while in doubles W. T. Hayes and R. H. Burdick, Chicago, captured a one-set match from Dean Mathey, New York, and C. S. Garland, Pittsburg, 8—6.

The match between Tilden and Johnston was productive of many spectacular rallies. Tilden's drives along the side lines and his cross-court shots that found the narrowest of openings pulled him out of critical positions time and again. His high-bounding service worked deceptively and he was particularly deadly overhead.

Johnston also played brilliant tennis. His service, cross-court shots and overhead strokes were executed with great skill. At times in the second set he played unbeatable tennis, particularly in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh games, in which Tilden failed to score a point.

In the other singles match Washburn proved his superiority over Roberts because of his ability in finding his opponent's weak points.

ENGLISH CRICKET TEAM LEADS MERION ELEVEN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—The Incognito cricket eleven of England held the advantage at the end of the second day's play in the match with the All-Philadelphia team at the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford. The British players made 326 runs in their first innings and the Philadelphians 308. The Englishmen in their second turn at bat scored 40 runs for the loss of four wickets, when stumps were drawn for the day. The match will be concluded Monday. C. C. Morris, Philadelphia, was top batsman with a fine 102.

GERMAN CITIZENS FAVOR HARDING

Alliance for Good Government to Extend Activities to All Parts of U. S.

Special to the Post Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Announcement was made today that the Citizens' Alliance for Good Government, Inc., intends to extend its activities to all parts of the country. The alliance, which has headquarters in Queensborough, with Carl Gerks of Flushing as president and John Hering of Astoria as secretary, published a notice in the Long Island Free Press of its intention to hold a meeting Friday evening at Turn Hall, Astoria.

The meeting, according to the advertisement in the Free Press, which is the recognized organ of the German element and edited by Hering, will act upon a proposal to amend the certificate of incorporation of the alliance so as to extend its activities.

Under the proposed change in the powers designated in the incorporation papers, the board of directors of the alliance may issue charters for subordinate branches of the organization in any state or territory of the United States.

Secretary Hering was requested to furnish more detailed information about the plans of the alliance. He said:

"We intend to grant charters to the alliances which have already been formed in Hudson County, N. J., and elsewhere in that State, to those now being organized in New Haven and Bridgeport and to alliances wherever they are formed. Our purpose is to unite the members of the alliances in a body to work for good government and things that will benefit the members in national, state and local elections. After the charters have been granted, power will be given to each alliance to appoint members of a supreme council and this supreme council will then determine the policy of the general body."

Hering, who does not employ "weasel" words in appealing to those of German blood who read his Free Press, prints an editorial in this week's issue of his newspaper criticising Gov. Cox and praising Senator Harding. In part it reads:

"We have been deprived of our political rights because we have failed in our political duties. If the tragedy of the last four years has taught the Germans of the Middle West nothing, they are not worth saving, neither for their own sakes nor the sake of the United States.

"An element that fails to assert itself, after suffering the deep wrongs, the insults and humiliations heaped upon them, deserves no share in shaping the American future. American citizens of German descent, let us remember our experience during the last four years.

"Between Harding and Cox we are for Harding. Will the American citizens of German extraction in the Middle West this time be fooled again like in 1916? No, and a thousand times no. They will not. Today the stakes are bigger than they were in 1916. For the sake of America, German-American citizens to the front."

WILL USE GRAPES FOR BREAD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—From the fifteenth annual Congress Against Alcoholism comes the news that Dr. Eudo Monti of Turin, Italy, who "has discovered many new uses for the Italian grape vine," has perfected a plan whereby the grape, formerly devoted to the usages of Bacchus, may now be used to make bread. This does not mean that there will be such a thing as a booze sandwich to satisfy the alcoholically hungry, for Dr. Monti's formula kills all alcoholic ferment.

His discovery is announced as already having revolutionized the viticulture of France and Italy, as it allows those countries to enact prohibition without harming the economic interests of their great wine grape-growing industry.

AUGUST BUILDING STATISTICS SHOW GAIN OVER JULY

Work Contemplated Gives Indication of Reawakened Interest in Carrying Out the Year's Program.

Building operations during August showed a slight increase over July, according to statistics compiled by the F. W. Dodge Company of Chicago. Contracts awarded during the month in the 25 states comprising the northeastern quarter of the country amounted to $205.651,000, as against $204,398,000 for July.

While this increase is not sufficient in itself to indicate an upward trend in construction activity, there are other factors which encourage the belief that the temporary slump is nearly over.

The amount of contemplated work reported in August was $357,510,000, compared with $334,341,000 for July. This increase, in view of the pressing demand for buildings of various classes, gives some indication of reawakened interest in carrying out the year's building program.

An idea of the amount of deferred construction may be gained from the figures on contemplated projects reported by the Dodge Company for the first eight months of the year, which have reached $3,661,451,000. Normally the amount of contracts awarded during the same period would amount to about two-thirds of the amount of work projected. To preserve the normal proportion, therefore, contracts awarded for the eight months should amount to about $2,400,000,000, whereas the actual amount is $1,952,528,000, leaving a deficit of about $450,000,000 worth of construction.

Contracts in Eight Months.

Contracts awarded in the first eight months of 1920 compare favorably with the amount for the same period in 1919, which was $1,596,314,000.

The indications for the remainder of the year are that succeeding months will show greater activity than has been in evidence during the summer.

Building contracts let during August in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri and portions of Eastern Kansas, and Nebraska, amounted to $81,468,000, an increase of 12 per cent over the July figure. The August total included $38,203,000 for public works and utilities, $14,595,000 for industrial plants, $9,142,000 for business buildings, and $6,720,000 for residential buildings.

Contemplated work reported in this district during August amounted to $113,104,000, bringing the total amount of work projected from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 up to $1,361,065,000, compared with contracts awarded during the same period amounting to $616,808,000.

Contemplated work reported during the first eight months of the year included: $347,975,000 for public works and utilities; $247,800,000 for industrial plants; $245,353,000 for residential buildings, and $185,833,000 for social and recreational projects.

August building contracts in the New England States amounted to $22,921,000, a decline of 23 per cent from the July figure. In New York State and Northern New Jersey the contracts amounted to $38,431,000, an increase of 5 per cent over July. August building contracts in Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, and Virginia amounted to $21,648,000, a decline of 7 per cent from July. In Minnesota, North and South Dakota it amounted to $5,592,000, a decline of 40 per cent from July.

THINKS INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY HERE IS JUST COMMENCING

Ray Johnston of the firm of Johnston & Johnston, realty operators, 5261-63 Garfield avenue, sees industrial activities in St. Louis in their infancy, compared to its great future. Johnston reports that the tremendous sales in Jennings Heights and Marcus Heights, subdivisions which the above firm is handling, shows that the people are just beginning to realize the great opportunities St. Louis now offers to the public in every walk of life.

"The people of St. Louis must wake up and see what is going on; see what the Chamber of Commerce and other up-to-the-minute organizations are doing," he said. "If half of the people would only take a sightseeing trip over their own beautiful, thriving city, they would awaken to the fact that St. Louis is rapidly becoming a great industrial center.

Wilson H. Gage is head of the company, Chester A. Gage is general manager and Leslie F. Gage sales manager.

U. S. CONSUL AT CONSTANTINOPLE WANTS JAIL FOR PRISONERS

He Asks for Permission to Hire Place to Keep Six Accused of Taking Relief Funds.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 11.—Permission to hire a jail in which to imprison six Americans has been requested of the State Department by Consul Charles Allen in connection with the trial of 40 thieves accused of stealing from the American Commission for Relief in the Near East supplies estimated to be worth $20,000.

Six former American army men are now being provided by the Turkish Chief of Police with lodgings where he is detaining them together with their Greek and Armenian alleged conspirators, but the Chief has expressed unwillingness to hold them indefinitely.

Consul Allen has a fund of $1000, but due to high rents, it would only pay two months' rent for a jail outside the embassy.

MANY HOMES PLANNED FOR BEVERLY HILLS

Building Company Formed to Develop Tract to Special Advantage of Home Buyers.

Harry E. Prettyman, subdivsion operator, has leased the store at 608 Olive street, and his new headquarters will be open tomorrow.

Prettyman holds that salesmanship science requires that one bring his wares to the market rather than the market to his wares. About 5000 people pass this location each hour during the busy periods on week days, Prettyman says.

He states that St. Louis real estate is selling far below prices asked in Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland for the same class of property.

"St. Louis is coming into its own as a manufacturing and commercial center," Prettyman says. "Only the man who travels and keeps his eyes open is able to appreciate the great changes which are taking place in this city.

"In Beverly Hills, the subdivision we are developing as a home site, we are planning to build a number of attractive homes. A building company has been formed for the purpose, and operations will be on a scale that will enable us to secure all the advantages in prices incident to wholesale purchases. We will build homes for buyers of lots in Beverly Hills on a 25 per cent cash payment. So carefully have our architects and engineers worked out the plans and methods of construction that we will be able to sell these homes, with the ground, for far less than the average builder can erect the building."

PRESIDENT SAYS U. S. WANTS JEWISH PERSECUTION TO STOP

Declares All Americans Sympathize With Jews Suffering From Unjust Treatment.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—"This Government most earnestly desires that Jewish persecution be ended in all lands and for all time," President Wilson declared in a letter to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, made public here today by the American Jewish Congress.

"I should greatly rejoice to learn through you," the President's letter said, "that there has come about an amelioration of the status of the Jew in Eastern European lands."

The letter, which was sent in reply to one from Rabbi Wise, also said:

"I am deeply moved by the reports which you sent me of the trials and sufferings endured by your fellow-Jews throughout Eastern Europe. No American, whatever his racial origin or religious creed, can fail to feel the deepest sympathy with the Jews of Eastern Europe, who continue to bear not only their burden of war, but also the sufferings incident to unenlightened and unjust treatment at the hands of governments and peoples.

"I am of the hope that those nations with which our own land holds political commerce may do everything in their power to end not only the legal disabilities of their Jewish populations, as provided for by the minority peoples' clauses of the peace treaty, but all the injustices and wrongs which are laid upon them.

"We know in this country wherein Jews of right enjoy entire equality, how loyally they serve and how faithfully they support the purposes and ideals of our nations."

CHAUFFEUR HELD IN CLAYTON SHOOTING RELEASED ON BOND

Earl Sparks, 24 years old, a service car chauffeur, who lives at the Stratford Hotel, Eighth and Pine streets, and who was arrested there Friday night in connection with the shooting and killing of Night Sheriff Conrey and Night Marshal Corner at Clayton Aug. 30, was released at 3 p. m. yesterday on $500 bond to appear tomorrow before the grand jury at Clayton. Professional bondsmen furnished the security upon which Sparks was released by Sheriff Bopp, after Sparks had looked at George Parr and David Burke, held in jail at Clayton in connection with the killing. He said he never had seen either Parr or Burke.

Policemen arrested Sparks because a handkerchief with the laundry mark "Sparks" was found tied around one of the headlights of the automobile abandoned in Forest Park by Willis Anthony Millard, wounded in the Clayton affair and who is held in the prison ward at the city hospital. Sparks is said to deny that he has any handkerchiefs bearing laundry marks, and to disclaim any connection with the shooting.

GOLD AND SILVER PRODUCTION IN LAST YEAR SHOWS DECLINE

California Leads in Precious Metal Output; Colorado Comes Second and Alaska Third.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Production of both gold and silver declined last year, Director of the Mint Baker announced last night, in making public revised figures, which show the production to have been: Gold, $60,333,400; silver, $63,533,662. In ounces, the output totaled 2,018,628 of gold and 56,682,445 of silver.

The director placed the loss in the production of gold as compared with the previous year at $8,313,000, while the slump in silver mining reduced the output by 11,127,000 ounces.

California lead in the production of gold, the State's output being 841,633 ounces, worth $17,398,200. Colorado ranked second with a gold production valued at $10,249,300. Alaska produced 431,984 ounces, valued at $9,963,500.

Montana was the leading state in the production of silver, with an output of 15,102,000 ounces, worth on the current market about $16,860,000. Utah was second with 12,542,623 ounces, worth $14,058,650. Virginia and South Carolina managed to creep into the list of states producing the precious metals, according to Baker's statement. Virginia's total, however, was only eight ounces of silver, while South Carolina found five ounces of gold and two ounces of silver within its boundaries.

Three Held as Swindler Suspects.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Sept. 11.—Three men were arrested here last night for what local officials say was an attempt to obtain $25,000 from Joseph F. Pittman, a rich farmer, near Marshall, Mo. Pittman reached here this morning and identified the men as the three who had induced him to draw $25,000 from his home bank for the purpose of investing in oil stock, officials say.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

G. C.—We would advise you to send your velvet portieres to the cleaner.

READER.—The Carondelet branch of the Public Library is located at Kraus and Michigan avenues.

A. M.—You can get the information you desire from the Educational Aid Society, 1526 Chemical building, St. Louis Mo.

A READER.—Any man who was in the service, not necessarily overseas service, is eligible to membership in the American Legion.

G. C.—Write to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, Interior Department, Washington, D. C., for information concerning homesteading.

A CONSTANT READER.—To remove mildew stains from white cotton goods soak the goods in sour milk and put it in the sun to dry, with a piece of blotting paper underneath it.

MRS. MACK.—To make sauerkraut, cut the cabbage fine, pack in a barrel or stone jar, in layers, adding a little common salt to every layer. Pack the cabbage down tightly, so that it is completely covered with its own brine, and put a weight on it; let stand. If you wish to put it up in jars you must let it ferment again before sealing.

X. Y. Z.—The following is a recipe for green tomato pickle: One peck green tomatoes sliced, 6 large onions sliced, 1 teacup of salt over both; mix thoroughly and let remain over night; pour off the liquor in the morning and throw it away. Then mix two quarts of water and one of vinegar and boil 20 minutes; again drain and throw the liquor away. Take 3 quarts of vinegar, 2 pounds of sugar, 2 tablespoons each of allspice, cloves, cinnamon, ginger and mustard, and 12 green peppers chopped fine; boil from one to two hours. Put in a stone crock.

R. K.—The following are the recipes you desire: 1. Sweet Sour Pickles—Pick small cucumbers with the stems on and put them in salt water of such strength that an egg will float in it. Allow them to stand over night, and the next morning wash the cucumbers in fresh water and pack in jars. Pour over the cucumbers a mixture of 1½ cups vinegar, 1 cup water, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons of allspice, in a bag, which has been cooked for one hour. Seal. 2. Peach Preserves: Peaches for preserving may be ripe but not soft; cut them in halves, take out the stones and pare them neatly; take as many pounds of white sugar as of fruit, put to each pound of sugar a teacup of water; stir it in till it is dissolved; set it over a moderate fire, and when it is boiling hot put in the peaches. Let them boil gently until a pure, clear, uniform color; turn those at the bottom to the top carefully with a skimmer several times; do not hurry them. When they are clear take each half up with a spoon and spread the halves on flat dishes to become cold. When all are done let the syrup boil until it is quite thick; pour it into a large pitcher and let it set to cool and settle. When the peaches are cold, put them carefully into jars and pour the syrup over them, leaving any sediment which has settled at the bottom, or strain the syrup. Some of the kernels from the peach stones may be put in with the peaches while boiling. Let the jars remain open one night, then cover. 3. Quince preserves: Pare, core and quarter your fruit, then weigh it and allow an equal quantity of white sugar. Put the parings and cores in a preserving kettle, cover them with water and boil for half an hour, then strain them through a hair sieve and put the juice back into the kettle and boil the quinces in it a little at a time until they are tender. When they are done, lift them out with a drainer and lay them on a dish. If the liquid seems scarce add more water. When all are done put the sugar in the liquid and allow it to boil 10 minutes before adding the quinces. Let them boil until they change color, say one hour and a quarter, on a slow fire; while they are boiling occasionally slip a silver spoon under them to see that they do not burn, but on no account stir them. Have two fresh lemons, cut in thin slices, and when the fruit is being put in jars lay a slice or two in each. 4. Pear preserves: To six pounds of pears, four pounds of sugar, two coffee cups of water, the juice of two lemons and the rind of one, add a handful of whole ginger. Boil all of this together for 20 minutes, then put in the pears and boil until soft, for about a quarter of an hour. Take out the pears and boil the syrup a little longer. Put the fruit back once more and let it come to a boil, and bottle while hot. You might add a little cochineal to give them a nice color.

S. O. S.—See answer to A. M. in this column.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

M. E. M.—We are not familiar with the tax laws of that town. If you are a resident of the town you must pay its taxes. By the time the tax is payable you will probably have lived there long enough to vote.

OLD TIMER.—1. We do not think that the divorce case could be reopened after 25 years, unless the fraud used in obtaining it had been newly discovered. 2. In order to obtain a divorce you must live here one year after your return, if you intended to move permanently to Alabama.

MISS MARY THOMAS.—Your father's remarriage four months after his divorce would not be considered legal in Illinois. If he wills his property to his second wife and excludes you specifically, we do not think that you can break the will. If he willed property outside of Illinois to you, she might be able to break the will as to it. The best that you and your mother can do is to make wills, each in favor of the other. A will does not have to be filed, prior to the testator's death. It does not require the seal of a notary public.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

THANKFUL.—Your condition, and a remedy suitable, could only be determined by a physical examination. We would advise you to see a physician. Fifteen grains of bromide of potash or bromide of soda, taken three or four times a day, is a good nerve sedative.

TWO VICTIMS.—1. The blood test could be reduced that much after six months' treatment. 2. People vary in their power of resistance, some succumbing more readily than others. This accounts for the difference in the loss of flesh. Eat sweets, sugar, fats and starches; exercise little and get plenty of sleep.

DAISY.—Your bad breath and coated tongue may be due to dyspepsia or to some disease of the tonsils, teeth or nose. Drink a large glass of hot water on arising in the morning, and see that your bowels move thoroughly daily. Take a teaspoonful of essence of pepsin before and after taking food. Have your mouth, nose and throat carefully examined.

WANTED—GENERAL SALES AGENTS.
I have made a lot of money as general sales agent in Chicago, selling one of the best investments ever offered to the public, and I have put thousands of dollars of my good money back into the investment itself. All of my salesmen have done the same. The management now asks me to appoint a general sales agent to organize a sales force and operate in your city and vicinity. This is your golden opportunity. I know from experience. Others have had like experience. If you are capable of handling salesmen, you and they can each make a fortune. If you yourself can sell real estate, life insurance or any good, clean proposition to keen, substantial business men, as my salesmen and I are selling this investment to them in amounts of from $5000 upwards and also to small investors in sums of $100 and upwards, then you can probably organize and handle a corps of salesmen.

This investment has been repeatedly investigated and indorsed. The personnel of the enterprise are indorsed by leading banks and business men. There can be no question about either.

This is not stock or bond selling; it is different; it appeals strongly to all classes and is now appealing more strongly than ever to shrewd business men because of the rapid developments which bring it close to dividends. My agency has over a thousand customers. We have sold them increasing amounts on rising prices. That speaks for itself.

This investment, in my opinion, is not only safe in every respect, but its dividends will soon outstrip any industrial marvel.

Please give age and brief statement of your experience. I will send you full particulars, and then come to see you. All general agencies and salesmen are on a straight commission basis and none of us would work on any other. Come in with the rest of us and get busy and be happy forever after.

A. C. McCLAUGHRY,
826 State Lake Bldg.,
Chicago, Ill.

We don't claim to be able to MAKE a salesman—we do claim to have the very best selling proposition in all St. Louis—with the livest market we have ever KNOWN.

The prospects for the coming Fall and Winter are simply wonderful, so see me WITHOUT FAIL.

WE DON'T WANT a hundred men. Just two or three who will come with us, work WITH us, not FOR us, and stay with us, and work with us when you make big money, as you surely will.

HONEST VALUES IN USED CARS FOR THE Quality Car Buyer

We believe that a high-grade used car, at its low market value, is a better buy than a medium-priced new car.

First—Depreciation practically all taken out. Eighty per cent of their good life still remains.

Second—No war taxes or freight to pay.

Third—They cannot be told from new. Are repainted, rebuilt or renewed in our own shops by our own expert workmen.

Fourth—Scarcity of new cars with their uncertain deliveries makes a used Hudson Super-Six a good investment, as we can make immediate delivery.

The following are some of our many bargains:

1920 Hudson tour. Driven very little; 6 wire wheels, seat covers, 6 cord tires, original paint, mechanically at its best; many accessories.

1919 Hudson Tour.—Repainted standard color; new top and tires; renewed throughout; a real buy.

1919 Hudson Landau—3 pass.; all new tires; motor exceptionally quiet; repainted standard color; looks and runs like new.

1920 Dodge Sedan—All cord tires, wire wheels, beautifully upholstered; good paint; extra wire wheel and cord tire.

1919 Dodge Tour.—A very fine light car with good tires, top and paint.

1919 Buick Tour.—Winter and summer top; good smooth motor and many accessories; a real buy.

1918 Buick—Same as the above car.

1918 Reo Tour.—Summer and winter top; new seat covers; repainted; has all good tires, pumper and a fine powerful motor.

Women's Styles Influence Men's Fashions

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:
In a recent article in these cols., the writer gives some beauty hints for men in response to a demand for same. This last week my Montenegro army of readers have a good many of them asked me to devote a article to the well-dressed man and what they should wear in the comeing fall and inter seasons. Wile my own judgment along these nes is not to be sneezed at without a handkerchief, ll and all I took the trouble to consult a exclusive anklin avenue tailor, cleaner and dyer before I rote this article and the advice give in this article is s opinion combined with mine and certainly should ought to be correct.

We will begin with the correct morning attire as pretty near 50 per cent of the men gets up at that me of day. If the man is a farmer and has got to ilk the cow, they should ought to wear white wash oods and be sure to take a pail along. If they have ot to curry a horse they should comb their own hair st before they leave the house and then use a different comb and brush on Rover. The correct costume or currying a horse is a suit of some material ike velour that the hair can be picked off of easily and hob nail boots so as they will be no chance of slipping and stepping on the equine's foot.

For the business or professional man the proper outfit for morning wear is a Prince Albert coat and Velvet trousers and Bull Durham shoes. The shirt and tie can be of some Turkish blend which can be mild as long as it satisfys.

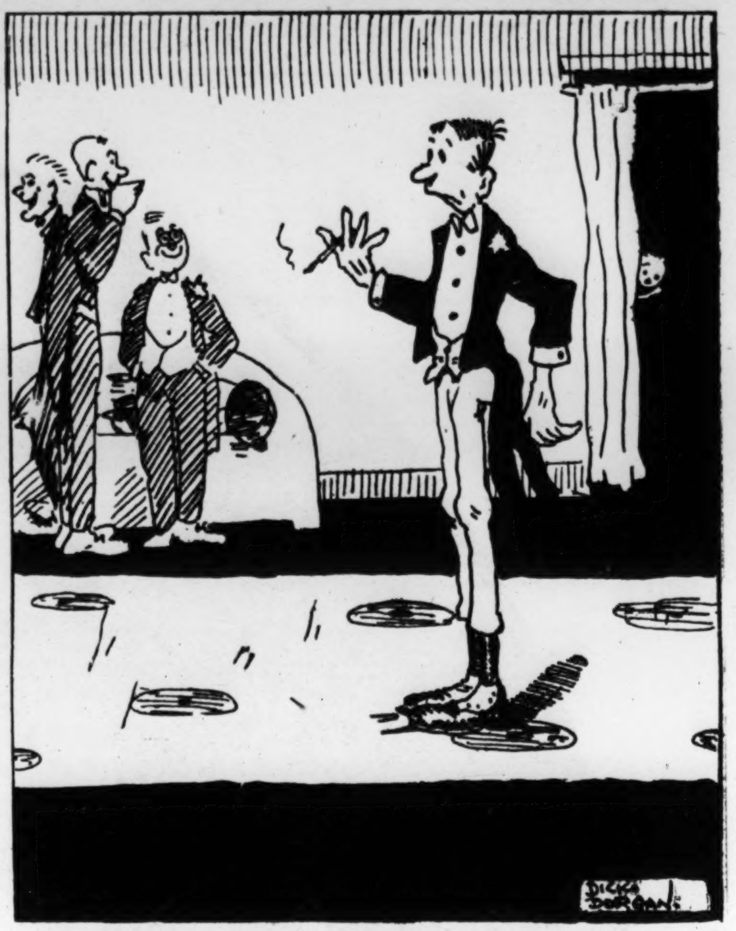
Short men might look kind of funny in the above garments and it is O. K. for them to wear a sack suit which can be obtained for say $15.000 but the expenditure of $5.00 dollars extra will get you a extra pair of trousers which practically doubles the life of the suit provided you don't wear both pairs at once. If you had a suit of flannels this summer they can be used for underwear when the weather justifys such actions. If a shirt is worn they should be a collar of some kind with it and the cuffs should ought to be buttoned as they's nothing that distinguishes the slovenly dressed man from the dude so much like a shirt without no collar or tie and cuffs that gape apart at the fag end.

Recently some men of the smart set that I run around with has been led astray by the example of some of the social leaders of the opp. sex who you might say has went to extremes a specially in the matter of evening close. For inst. I know a man that his wife is just back from Paris and I seen her at a party one night with a gown that was made out of a Sam Brown belt and kilties to match and the next party I was on with this couple, why the man showed up with a evening waistcoat that was cut so low that you could see most of his shirt bosom. To make matters worse, he wore white trousers that had been to the cleaners a whole lot of times too often and when he came in to the reception room all we boys blushed furiously.

The correct attire for a formal dinner or dance or theater party is a full dress coat sliced in the tails, clean shirt, collar in the same condition, white bow ties, white vest cut modestly, black trousers that comes somewheres near the ft. (or pants of the same material) and shoes that is both the same color. If the trousers is cut low enough it don't make so much difference about the garters.

The trousers should ought to be held up in some ways either by a reliable belt or suspenders and also they ought to have a permanent crease on the front and back of each limb rather than the sides of the same.

In regards to hosiery, the kind that don't only come 1-2 way up the limb is rapidly supplanting the full length stocking a specially for men over 14 yrs. of age. The 1-2 hose or socks, as somebody has aptly named them, can be any shade provided the weak spots is concealed. Underwear is largely a matter of taste. Personally I generally always wear red flannels and have had a great deal of satisfaction in them specially around the Yuletide when they match the holly berrys and wreaths. Colors in underwear or any other garment however should be chose to match the proprietor's complexion.



The man showed up in a evening waist coat that was cut so low that you could see most of his shirt bosom, and white trousers that had been to the cleaners a whole lot of times too often.

When a man is invited to a function of any kind a specially in the day time, I have found it a good rule to follow that the minute the hostess calls him up to deliver the invitation is to make her tell him what color the gravy is going to be and act accordingly.

The above hints of course has nothing to do with the man that is going out to play on some college football nine that afternoon. The correct wear in that case is a sweater with a Ascot tie to match, moleskin trousers that comes to the knee, and enough pads in them to make him look shapely, silk hosiery and bedroom slippers. Speaking about bedroom I almost forget to mention the correct night garb for fall and winter, which is a nightgown of some flimsy material like burlap or fur with a cap to match

Long's Island, Sept. 10. RING W. LARDNER.

"A LODGING FOR THE NIGHT"

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

SOME people can run a car into a perfectly strange garage, pick out a narrow space between two expensive limousines, back into it, missing each car by a hair, and stop. Some people can't do anything like that at all. I'm one of the latter kind.

I'm always embarrassed in a strange garage, anyway. I feel overawed in the presence of head waiters and hotel clerks, who merely glare at me with silent, subtle sneers. The country garage proprietor isn't silent and there is nothing subtle about his sneers.

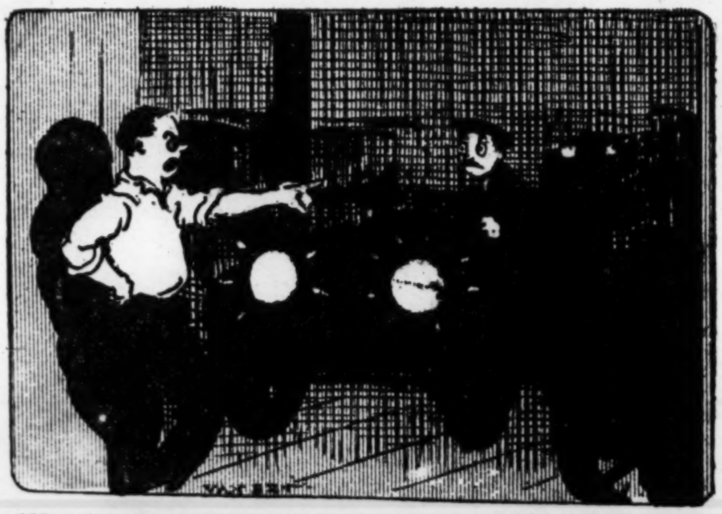
He says frankly what he thinks. And he always thinks unkindly, not to say brutally. In fact, country garage proprietors are the most brutal thinkers who have lived in this world since the days of Capt. Kidd. They can't make you walk the plank, of course, like Capt. Kidd could. But they can scare you just as much. I don't know why, but they can.

I've just got back from one of those little journeys that people take after they've been looking too long at automobile ads. You know the kind, the ones with pictures of beautiful new cars bowling along over country roads, or stopping in front of magnificent summer hotels. Just look at that sort of picture steadily for a week, and you'll go on a tour, too. You won't be able to help it.

The journey itself was all right. It wasn't exactly what you'd call restful, but it was generally satisfactory. Nobody ran into us and we didn't run into anybody, on the hard highway at least. We didn't have to stop in the rain and patch tires, and country children have long ceased to sit on the fence and jeer, "Get a horse," when a motorist stops to clean the mud off his windshield.

The trip, as a trip, was all right. Even the hotels could have been worse, although not much worse. What brought me back with shattered nerves and a predisposition toward violence, was garage proprietors. Yet they behaved toward me much the same as they do toward everybody. 'Tis their nature to behave that way. It was apparently predestined from the beginning of time that they should snarl at you and browbeat you and say all manner of evil against you falsely, just because you are the sort that gets nervous while trying to back a car into one of the tin-plated shacks that they call fireproof garages.

However, let's go on with the story.



"Here," said the boss, "don't do that. You'll knock them cars all to ——."

We followed the red posts and the hotel sign boards till we got to the town where we meant to stop for the night. It was around 10 o'clock when we got there, and dark—very dark.

We petitioned several garage proprietors to let our car abide with them for the night, but they said indignantly that their accommodations were all taken, and wanted to know what the place of torment we meant by coming into a town at that time of night.

The fifth place that we applied to had room. The boss was irritated to think that we needed shelter, but he agreed to provide us with it for $2.

"And if you don't like the price," he said, "you can go on." We assured him that far from not liking the price, we were fanatical about it. We felt, in fact, that he was practically forcing his roof on us. Two dollars for 25 square feet of space for six hours seemed the merest trifle.

"All right," he said, "back her in, and be dern careful, for there's a lot of GOOD cars in here."

Affecting not to be hurt by the emphasis laid on GOOD, I started to "back her in."

And right there is where my embarrassment began to make trouble for me. The inside of the garage was utterly dark. The rear light supplied but little guidance. And the place the boss indicated was a mere black crevice between two almost equally black masses, which I knew to be very high-priced cars. I knew because the boss told me so in set terms.

I backed to a post I felt to be opposite the spot where I was to pocket my car and started to turn to the right. But I didn't. I turned to the wrong.

"Here," said the boss, "don't do that. You'll knock them cars all to ——." He mentioned a destination I couldn't possibly have knocked rather mistrust him. There's a feeling that in these smart, graceful, soft-eyed fellows a yellow streak is hidden somewhere. I have no doubt that most people with a sense of fair play would say that when he started out to love you"——

A Man of Understanding

"Love comes. It isn't deliberate," said Amelie.

"He was competing, I suppose—with me?"

His wife reddened.

"He appears to have won without letting me know that I was in a game."

"What did you begin to say?" Amelie asked irritably. "What did you say you would do if you were a woman—or something of that kind. You said something!"

"Oh, yes. I thought a clever woman would put him—I mean the man involved—to some simple, easily devised test. You know? Just to see whether he was yellow or not."

"Easily devised test?"

"Well, I had not thought much about it. Only I wondered, for instance, how such a man would take it if you—that is, if he were told that a third man existed at a time when he thought all was going well—a man who took precedence of all. I wondered what effect it would have? He might, in his pique, show a nasty side. He might threaten a woman for instance. Or he might try to take her in his arms, so that she would have to call for help. I was just thinking idly."

Amelie looked at her husband for a moment, and then went to the window where the night breeze fanned her hair and her hot cheeks. The sound of Eldon Francis' feet on the floor above, faint and muffled, spoke none the less of impatience.

Pembroke laughed.

"The poor fellow thinks I know nothing," he explained. "He doesn't seem to be so confoundedly interested in my first edition, does he?"

Amelie walked swiftly back into the light.

"I am going up," she said, biting her under lip.

"Shall I go with you?"

"I thought you might light a cigar down here and read your letters," she answered.

Pembroke, still standing in front of the red lacquer screen beside his ill-fated porcelain ornament, watched Amelie, who chose to go into the hall directly instead of through the reception room. She did not look back.

Her husband took out his watch and put it on the low table in front of the roomy sofa. He sat down with his elbows on his knees and his face buried in the palms of his strong hands. Once he reached forward and turned the watch so that he could follow the circle of each minute on the second hand dial. He was waiting.

The unpleasant whine of the warning siren on a motor fire engine opening into its speed on the avenue a block away, came nearer, rose into a wail at the cross street and receded. Pembroke gave a gesture of impatience, picked up the watch and thrust it back into his waistcoat pocket.

The air of the room was heavy with the smell of the critic's cigarette mingling with the rather too luxurious perfume from pink roses nodding above the top of a bronze jar on the window sill. Pembroke walked toward these roses, chucked one of them under its chin with his finger tips and scowled.

Upstairs the muffled sound of walking—a man's slow footsteps—ceased. The clock in the hallway in its usual business manner announced that it was 11.

A door slammed somewhere upstairs on the bedroom floor and a moment later Pembroke could hear the door of the library above closed more gently. Someone was coming down.

He rose quickly, moved to the chair beside the lamp and took out the letters, still unopened; so he was able to look up at the man who stood in the doorway just as if this man had surprised him during some quiet revery.

"Come in, Eldon," said he. "I should have come up sooner."

"No, no," Francis replied nervously. "I must be going, really. I only dropped in to say good-night. I've a lot of work to do after I get to my apartment."

"Better have a cigar before you go," said Pembroke invitingly.

"A cigarette," replied the critic, as if making a concession.

The other took the silver cigarette box from the mantel and flipped back its cover. When Francis' hand went into it Pembroke could see its tremors. He looked at Eldon's face. It was flushed and unsettled, like that of a man with a secret wrath or a secret fear boiling within.

"Sit here," said Pembroke. "There's a light. Going? Good! These cigarettes are Russian. A present."

"Thanks," said the critic.

Pembroke laughed good-naturedly. He said, as if a little bashful about it: "You know that I never have a chat with you without getting some satisfaction out of it. We're rather different types, I suppose, and perhaps it's a good thing to meet sometimes. I'm so tied up with enterprises that I haven't developed much sense of the finer values. About all I can contribute is an appreciation of the more obvious standards."

"You mustn't say so," replied Francis. "Of course, it isn't true." He spoke as one who has other things on his mind.

"Yes it is," insisted his host. "You see, Amelie and I lead a rather quiet life, except for a few dinners every month. We are really too contented—too happy together. The fact is that sometimes I wonder whether I do not rely upon that unruffled perfection of our life too much. Men take too much for granted."

Eldon glanced up quickly and then settled his expression into one of great gravity.

"There is something in what you say, Pembroke," he answered, with extraordinary emphasis on every word. "I go about the world a good deal as a spectator. Most of the emotions were burned out of me long ago. I think if I have any genius it is in knowing men. Women perplex me and I have given them up as—as a bad job. But if I have genius it is for understanding my acquaintances. I sometimes think that I could be of value to them, because I know them better than they know themselves. And I think your observations about men who think they are on a bed of roses when in fact they are living over a volcano is a wise conclusion."

"I did not say just that," said Pembroke smiling.

"I know. But I have seen point given to your thought just the same. One of my great misfortunes is to be the recipient of confidences. I do not understand it at all. I am bothered with them. Who wants to carry around the knowledge which would make a human being miserable—if he, too, knew?"

Pembroke laughed. "That makes me think of a play Amelie and I saw the other night," he said. "'Dog's Ears,' it was called. But I forget. Of course, you know all about it. At any rate, I know that your opinion is like mine. Good plays are seldom seen."

"Yes. But as I was saying, when you changed the subject—what about my duty. Suppose I knew of a home rather undermined by a menace. You know what I mean—a nice girl—a little light of head—a selfish man. If I said a word to the husband? What then?"

"He ought to be grateful to you—very grateful."

"It is not the tradition," asserted Francis. "The way it is done in novels is for the man who has need of the information to reject it and drive a blow at the face of the bearer of evil tidings. And then it's all a mess."

"Not where good sense prevails," said Pembroke. "Come now. It is impossible. Suppose I had been married to less of a real woman than Amelie. You know that—well—so on. Danger. You understand. Danger. You'd tell me, of course. Good offices for everybody concerned. And what would I do?"

Eldon looked up, but Pembroke did not answer his own question.

"If I ever did such a thing—the first thing you'd do, Pembroke, would be to get furiously angry. The next thing you would do would be to go to your wife and tell her. I would be out of her life from that moment, of course. That would be my pay."

"But if I broke faith with you, old man," argued Pembroke. "Then, of course, you could break faith with me. You would deny that you had ever said a word to me."

"We have a chance to test it," Eldon said, throwing his cigarette into the tray. "I must be going. But, Jack—before I go—just a hint. You know Irwin Safford?"

"Know him? Darn it—he's one of my best friends. When he's in New York he goes and comes in this house like a member of the family."

Francis walked toward his host and looking him squarely in the eye said in measured, decisive tones: "Watch him!"

"Watch 'em?" said Pembroke. "My heavens, man! That can't be. I'll speak to Amelie. I'll ask her."

The other man put out both his trembling hands, as if to indicate that he would bar Pembroke's way.

"I shall deny all knowledge of this, Pembroke," he gasped. "I shall deny I said a word."

He repeated the phrase over and over; the skilled maker of phrases sought to be understood now by force of repetition.

"I say I shall deny all knowledge if you tell her. My authority is the very best. But I will do as you suggested. I shall deny I ever opened my mouth."

Pembroke gazed at the wretched man and then he began to laugh, quietly at first, and then louder. "Hello," said he, stopping suddenly. "Look there!"

He pointed toward the red lacquer screen. The wind from the open window or some other force behind ha toppled it forward. It knocked the ancient Chine porcelain from its teakwood stand, so that the va crashed down and tiny fragments skidded across t polished surface of the floor into the corners of t room. And then, with a single giant slap the scre flattened out on the rug.

Standing in the reception room just behind th screen was Amelia.

"It's a trick!" Francis said in a frightened whisper, looking from one to the other.

Pembroke smiled. "No. I rather expected Mrs. Pembroke might come down," he said. "May I speak for both of us, Amelie?"

"Yes, you may speak for both of us, Jack"

The husband turned to the critic and the latter put up his hands, as if expecting a blow.

"No, no, no," protested Pembroke. "Don't cringe like that, old man. It makes me ill. I'm not going to hurt you. I though I'd say for both of us—for Amelie and for myself—good-night and good-by. Please close the door as you go into the hall. I think that's all—you are a man of understanding."

He watched to see that the door was closed in fact; and then, without waiting to hear Francis go out, he turned swiftly toward his wife and spoke sharply at first and with authority.

"That's ended, Amelie," he said. "Never a word about it from either of us. I only want to understand what was back of it all. Perhaps it's because you've got problems and I've never taken them on. We've probably found out the truth about ourselves. We used to think each other perfect and held together by perfection. Now, it's imperfection that will hold us together; we need each other. It's that very thing so many married people ought to see and do not see. I see at last. I've never played your game and I want to begin—now."

"I wish we could take up the problems tomorrow," said Amelie Pembroke. "All I want now is to feel your arms around me."

Whence We Get the Best Sponges

SPONGES are of many qualities, but the most highly prized is that of Syria, with a cuplike shape and a yellowish pale color, which is found in a number of varieties.

The large sponge fisheries are situated along the seashores of Greece, Syria and of certain parts of the Adriatic, as well as along the Tripoli and Tunisian seashores. The fishing of sponges is effected by divers, who are let down from a boat to depths of 10, 20 and sometimes 25 meters, and pull the sponges from the rocks to which they are fixed. Some sponge fishermen use a long trident, but this system is fortunately falling into disuse, since it spoils the sponges. In better equipped fishing grounds the gathering of sponges is effected by divers provided with diving bells or dressed in cork jackets.

Upon being gathered the sponges are squeezed, beaten and washed in order to rid them of their black coating and soft substance, which gives them a very characteristic chlorine odor. When they begin to whiten they are subjected to a frequently renewed solution of sulphuric acid.

La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed
Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand-dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless La-may is now used by over a million American women; it is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say they can not buy a better powder than La-may anywhere at any price There is also a La-may Talcum that prevents the souring of perspiration.

"FOLLIES OF NEW YORK," 1920 EDITION: ODDS AND ENDS OF A LATE SUMMER VISIT

Kaleidoscopic scenes from life of metropolis gathered into prose revue by Post-Dispatch writer—Vague rumor in Gotham that rest of country has gone dry—Highballs, rickeys and cocktails sold openly at 50 cents to $1.50 each—Tremendous jazz fanfare of high prices—Where iced tea is 75 cents a glass — Sketches of successful plays, and glimpses of several famous personalities

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

PITY the poor bootlegger in New York! His occupation is as extinct as Hamlet's. How can the unfortunate wretch hope to keep the wolf from the door when any thirsty soul can march into a saloon in broad daylight, order a highball in as loud a voice as he pleases, elevate his foot upon a brass rail and consume the beverage at his leisure, the while a Tammany policeman zestfully crooks his elbow at the bar a few feet away?

It is taking bread from the mouths of the bootlegger's children—but the saloon man will sell you the best whisky at the rate of $6 to $7 a quart. And even at this price he is reaping a harvest. He pays no Government or city license—though he is no doubt at some expense for "protection"—and has, moreover, seized upon the occasion to raise the cost of drinks.

Downtown, in the Park Row district, the standard price for a highball, a cocktail or a gin rickey is 50 cents. Connoisseurs have distinguished among the various saloons according to the drink which is their specialty. Here one can get the best rye highball; next door the Gordon gin rickey is the piece de resistance, and across the street is the favorite abiding place of the manhattan cocktail.

As one proceeds uptown, the price increases. In the neighborhood of the Pennsylvania Hotel the price of a drink varies from 65 cents to $1, according as the bartender estimates the stage of financial nonchalance at which the customer has arrived. You see in one of these places parties of three smashing $5 bills at each round, just as, in the old days of 15-cent drinks, one used to see 50-cent pieces go bang.

About 10 blocks further north, one comes to a famous Broadway restaurant. Here you pay a 50-cent head tax for the privilege of sitting at a table, and the drinks are $1.50 each. For every round of two drinks you bid good-by to $3. The process of extraction is somewhat anesthetized by administration of cabaret.

There is a restaurant in the forties, not far from Broadway. Entering, you proceed to tables in the rear. Looking around, you notice with surprise that between you and the door, in plain view of the street, is a bar. Anyone on the sidewalk can easily see the liquor virtuoso shaking up a cocktail and dropping into it a telltale cherry. A naive St. Louisan would have fancied that the bar would be concealed in the rear, but there is nothing furtive about New York's defiance of prohibition.

Even in restaurants where drinks are not sold, there is little to prevent the visitor from helping himself from his own flask, and in some places, it is said, the management will cheerfully place buckets of ice at your disposal in which to cool your own wine. There may be saloons in which only nonintoxicating beverages are sold; and, in fact, many of them display signs to that effect. But if one has a friend who will introduce him to a bartender or so, he will speedily find the "desert" transformed into a profusely irrigated region.

Why is New York permitted to lift the lid and throw it away, while in other cities it is fastened down with air-tight clamps? Some say Tammany has an eye to the coming presidential election. One saloon man declared that the prohibition enforcement agents—500 of them, he specified—are just now engaged in cleaning up Philadelphia, and that New York's turn will come later. A man who should be well informed ventured the opinion that the anti-saloon people have decided to let the present liquor stocks of the country be drunk up, and believe they will be consumed faster in New York than in any other place.

There are tales told of great whisky fleets of automobiles plying between New York and Canada. But the chief source of supply, it is declared, is domestic. Whisky comes to New York by the train load, having been taken from the warehouses and consigned "for nonbeverage purposes." Once arrived, the liquor speedily forgets this label, and finds its way mysteriously to the saloons, to be retailed over the bar.

While Prince Carol of Rumania was in New York, a reporter asked him what he thought of prohibition. "When does it start?" countered the scion of royalty, with a twinkle.

Whatever the high cost of alcoholism, New York pays it without a murmur, just as it pays all the other exorbitant prices which make residence there a saturnalia of extravagance. The only cheap thing in New York is transportation—the 5-cent street car fares, the nickel tickets on elevated and subway, the 10-cent busses, and the remarkably low fares of the taxicabs, swarms of which scurry about the streets like fleas, and against which the pedestrian has no rights. As in Paris, it is his business to keep out of the way, not the motorist's duty to look out for him. Two of us rode from the Century Theater at Sixty-second street, to Forty-second street and Broadway; the fare was 40 cents. This was due to no magnanimity on the part of the taxicab driver; he is restrained by a meter which gives the legal rates, and is not permitted to charge more. Also, the number of the taxicab is posted up in conspicuous figures inside the car.

But if the taxi bandit is restrained from profiteering, for other pirates is poured out the full length of the reins. A hotel room with bath costs an average of $7 a day. A traveling man related that he was in New York two years ago, and went as usual to a commercial hotel where the rate was $2.50 a day. Returning recently, he betook himself to the same hotel. Having heard that the rates had been increased, he asked for something at $4.50 or $5 a day. The clerk, pausing a moment in the process of shining his nails upon his palm, remarked haughtily: "We don't cater to that sort of trade."

Rooms in lodging houses have ascended to the average of former hotel rates. You can get accommodations in a room lighted with gas and without a private bathroom, for $14 a week, or, if you are staying less than a week, for $3 a day. The landlady may take the trouble to explain that the landlord has raised her rent from $3500 to $6000 a year and that she must live.

Swinging into Broadway at Fiftieth street and looking toward Times Square, at about 8 o'clock at night —along that radiant and glamorous path known as "The Great White Way"—you will see New York out for amusement bent, in such thronging thousands that plunging down among them gives something of the sensation of dropping into a millrace. They are going to the theaters—and at what prices? At 75 cents for the moving picture houses and at $3, $3.50 and $4 for the other theaters, exclusive of war tax.

And when "The Gold Diggers" or "Lassie" have dropped the curtain at 11, the night seems still young, perhaps. So you wend your way to the Century Roof, overlooking Central Park, where, at 11:30, begins a complete show called "Midnight Rounders." As a little formality, before you are whisked up the elevator, you part with $5.50 for each ticket, of which the Governments gets half a dollar. The tickets call for places at a particular numbered table, and you are no more than seated before a waiter tactfully but firmly presents you with a menu card.

As you glance at it, you wonder whether the riotous syncopation which the orchestra is dinning in your ears has also jazzed your eyes. You behold the familiar item, "Iced tea," but opposite it is the figure, "75 cents." You note another old friend, "baked ham," but attending it is a formidable escort, the notation, $1.50. There is a salad with a fancy name, for $1. You order it, and get a few sprigs of romaine, with a slice of pineapple or so and slivers of pepper reclining upon it. A bottle of near-beer is 75 cents, and a broiled baby lobster is $2.50 Two persons attending the "Midnight Rounders" can easily separate themselves from $25, including tickets and dinner. But New York is full of people to whom $25 means no more than 25 cents.

And in the meantime the barker on the bus for Chinatown—New York has the distinction, it is to be hoped the unique one, of parading the misery of its poor for money—the barker with his megaphone is proudly pointing out the tenements of the Ghetto and proclaiming with gusto how many human beings are sardined in one room; he insists that no one must miss seeing the balconies draped with family wash, on which children must sleep at night to keep from smothering with the heat; and as a last succulent treat, chaperons his party through the basement of a mission, where the "down and outs," as he toothsomely describes them, are sleeping in their rags on the floor, with newspapers for a mattress. For the privilege of beholding this charming spectacle, one drops a coin into a basket held by a pious gentleman, well skilled in hymnology. It would be heartrending, but for a suspicion that the "down and outs" are turning an honest penny by posing for the benefit of visiting provincials.

Similarly, the great mansions of America's multimillionaires stand curtained and deserted along Fifth avenue, while the newspapers are filled with clamors concerning an appalling housing shortage. So many tens of thousands of families are about to find themselves in the streets. And all over town the old houses are having their fronts torn out and being converted into "efficiencies." By the simple process of add-no piece has been produced that will live like the music of the Spanish-American period, which in turn fell far below the standard of music in the Civil War. The Civil War songs like 'Rally Round the Flag,' 'Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching,' 'Marching Through Georgia,' and others, will live forever. In the Spanish-American War some really pretty pieces were produced, that are seldom heard now except under other names. In the last war, with the single exception of 'Over There,' there was really no widely known song. The 'Long, Long Trail' was popular at training camps, and 'Till We Meet Again' became popular at the close of the war. But none were so widely sung as 'It's a Long Way to Tipperary,' which really took the place of 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight,' developed in our own war with Spain. A case in the late war where a song had frivolous words was that 'Katie' song, sung in recruit camps, which seemed to consist only of one verse.

"I have been deeply interested in watching the trend of jokes and songs in the local theaters. I have played at turner halls and in the old Imperial Theater when Irene Franklin, who produced original stuff, was making her early appearances there. I can recall Lew Dockstadter as an end man in a minstrel show at old summer gardens here and have played when both Al Jolson and Frank Tinney were appearing locally in vaudeville. I also played for Haverly's Minstrels at the old Pope's Theater, when Ben Brown, who later was caller at the Union Station, was an end man. In the old days, when Montgomery and Stone were beginners, I played for Stone when he had a partner named Williams. This was at the old Union Trust Roof Garden at Seventh and Olive. I remember when Lucille Cavanaugh made her first local appearance and when Mabel McCane started out with a Louisiana production. Minnie Maddern Fiske was a St. Louis girl and was a cousin of the late Billy Maddern, for whom I once played in the orchestra. I also played for Ben Vogel at the old Olympic and for Theo Bendix at old Pope's Theater. One of my early engagements was at the Palace Theater, on Seventh and Elm, and another at the Casino, later the London, on Broadway. Della Fox went to the old Benton School when I was going there, and I frequently played for her productions thereafter.

"Before that time I was traveling with a medicine show for a man named Pizarro. He had a contortionist, I remember, called Demonio, who had a wide reputation. Shows of the sort employed first-class performers and we had a tight-rope performer known as Little Percy, who later went to Barnum for a big salary. He was killed in a fall.

"Of course, there have been changes in all those years. For instance, the saxaphone has become popular as an instrument, where formerly it never was used. Pat Gilmore was first to introduce it in bands. He had a quartet using the instrument. A Frenchman named Le Fevre did much to make it popular. The instrument then dropped out of use, but of late years has been adopted again.

"You can recall some of those 'human xylophones' who used to make alleged music by drawing the muscles of their faces tightly and pounding them so as to make resonance. You don't see them now, but they will come back to the stage in time. Those acts run in sequence, it seems. They may be unpopular for a time, then come back strongly. I saw Bert Williams and his most recent partner in an act not so long ago that I recognized as having been made over from an old piece I have at home.

"Salaries are much larger now than they used to be in vaudeville, but outside of that there has been little change. I have followed all the old-time pieces and I enjoy tracing the jokes, the situations and even the scenery—for new scenery is often painted to imitate a successful setting created long ago.

"Characters and faces change in vaudeville, but one thing never changes. That is the old, time-honored joke. It approaches immortality more nearly than anything else in this world of ours."

Budapest Under the White Terror

they prefer to let the crops rot in the ground rather than sell them to the radicals in the capital. In Hungary, however, the peasants are behind the militaristic government now in power, with Admiral Horthy as Regent. It must be remembered that the peasants in Hungary starved the Bela Kun regime into helplessness. The most hopeful sign in Central Europe today is this attitude of the Catholic peasantry, who have absolutely decided not to feed the cities where radical Socialism is rampant.

I learned a lot about the atrocities of the Bolsheviks in Budapest from Col. Anton Lehar, one of the biggest military figures in Hungary today. More than any one man he is responsible for crushing Bolshevism in Hungary. Col. Lehar and I dined together at the Hungaria, where he made my blood run alternately hot and cold with stories of the frightful atrocities of Bela Kun's followers.

One of Kun's Bolshevist leaders often executed the oldest man and youngest child in a community to strike terror into the hearts of the other inhabitants. The outrages committed by these radicals are almost unbelievable.

"It is no wonder that there are cases of revenge," said the renowned soldier, after he had told me how a young clerk in a factory owned by one of his friends had murdered the proprietor, who had befriended him, and then, with the Communists' support, installed himself in the dead man's house, with the latter's daughter as his mistress.

"The brother of the outraged girl would have been justified in shooting him on sight in any country," continued the Colonel. "Such cases cannot wait for the courts, greatly as they are to be deplored. But Budapest has had its lesson," he added grimly. "Never again will the people here tolerate any Bolshevism."

We lingered so long over our dinner, not because of the fogosh and its excellent sauce, or the marvelous Tokai, but because it took a long time to go over the many changes in the political situation since I had been away. In fact, it was so late that we didn't bother to go to the Kiraly Szinkaz or King's Theater, to see a musical play by Buttykay, for which I had bought seats. The performance at the Vigszinhaz, or Comedy Theater, was about over, too, so we listened to the gypsy orchestra torment their catgut in the hotel dining room until Col. Lehar took train for his headquarters at Debreezen.

As it was too early to visit any of the night cafes, I strolled over to the Cafe Abazzia to pay my respects to Molnar or any of the other literary lights of Budapest who make that cafe their nightly headquarters. I found the Abazzia ablaze with lights and filled with people; but, except for some of the editors of the Azest, the leading Budapest daily, there were no celebrated literary lights in evidence. The reason, I discovered a little later, was that the majority of the playwrights, writers and composers in Budapest had openly sympathized with Bela Kun's Bolshevist regime. When the militarists returned to power many of the literary set took to the tall and uncut. A few are still living in Budapest, but they do not venture out at night.

However, Budapest is by no means dull at night, because a part of its population remains at home. There is no 11 o'clock closing hour as in Berlin and Vienna. The night cafes, like the Folies Caprice, Winter Garden and Casino Mulato, to mention only three of the liveliest, keep open as long as there is anyone to pay a check. Their variety shows are not difficult to listen to, for their gypsy bands are the best in Europe. Unlike Paris, the capital of Hungary has not been corrupted by our jazz music. But I heard wild czardas played in a manner that made our jazziest jazz band sound like a music box.

The Rumanians carried off many things when they left Budapest, but evidently they didn't steal many pretty girls or much wine—judging by the supply of both commodities in the night cafes. And as an American dollar brings anywhere from 160 to 200 kronen, even a conservative spender would not be a financial coward.

At the Winter Garden I met an American "colored gentleman," who confided to me that he had moved here from Vienna because the life in Budapest was more aristocratic.

"Titles have not been abolished in Hungary," my chocolate-colored friend informed me, "and we're expecting King Charles to return to the throne in a few months."

"Where do you get that 'we' stuff?" I interrupted.

"I'm a white," he replied, employing the term applied to the monarchists. "I couldn't stand for the Socialists in Vienna. Where anyone is everything no one is anybody."

"You said a mouthful," I was tempted to remark, but I restrained myself with an effort.

It is well to practice restraint—even in the capital of Hungary in 1920.

them to—even in my nervousness. I swung around the other way.

"What the deuce are you goin' THAT way for?" he inquired. "Haven't you ever druv a car before?"

I told him that I had, but not in that garage, and, craning my neck backward, discerned, as I supposed, my error and tried to correct it.

"No, no! Stop! Stop, I tell you!"

I stopped.

"Now go ahead."

I went ahead.

"Now around to the right. No, not that way—to the right. To my right, not yourn."

I went to his right. There was a grinding sound, followed by a rending one. I clapped on the brakes.

The boss, however, did not burst into the mad fury I supposed he would.

"Back her again," he commanded.

"What did I do?"

"You ripped off a mudguard on that post. But it was on your car." Of course, that was nothing to worry about. The mudguard was on my car. I proceeded to back her again.

This time there was an explosion—a verbal explosion.

"Don't do that, you dum idiot. You'll ram Doc Smithers' Ford and he'll raise tun'et around here. Stop!"

I stopped.

"Now back her again."

I started to obey orders. But before I had gone six inches the boss leaped on the running board, wrested the wheel from my grasp and twisted it violently to the left.

"Now back her," he ordered.

I backed her. He neglected to tell me where to stop, but I found out. The wall was there, and the law that no two bodies can occupy the same space at the same time has never been repealed.

The damage wasn't much. The garage man said he could fix it all up in a couple of days for eighty or ninety dollars. But he didn't. And the reason he didn't was that I stepped on the gas and drove right out of there, without touching so much as a door jamb when I left.

And for the rest of the trip I had no trouble with garage men at all. I always left the car out in the field overnight.

Reveries of Maurice Spyer After Listening to Some 10,000 Performances of Stage Jokesmiths

Veteran leader of orchestra in St. Louis, now retiring after twenty years in St. Louis theaters, analyzes the vaudeville jest—Anything good for a laugh comes down through the decades, redecorated and remodeled to fit the times, but its ancestry is easily discernible—Some of the old classics :: :: ::

PORTRAIT BY J.C. STRAUSS

Maurice Spyer, orchestra leader, who, after attending more than 10,000 variety performances, believes that the most durable thing in the world is the vaudeville joke, which never dies.

AS AN expert on matters vaudevillian, no doubt Maurice Spyer of St. Louis could qualify in any court in the land. Listening to 14 performances a week, 40 weeks in a year, for some two decades—about 10,000 performances in all—there has not been much in a generation behind the footlights that he hasn't seen or heard. Now that Mr. Spyer has surrendered the orchestra leader's violin and bow for a place with the St. Louis Symphony it is in order to listen while he tells something about the stage jest and the jester as he has observed them during the last 20 years.

And the thing, he says, that has impressed him most is the fact that a vaudeville joke never seems to die. Clothed in new verbiage, he can recognize the hoary cracks that were ancient when he started his career. And the singular thing, he says, is that they draw just as many laughs now as they ever did.

Audiences may change as new generations of theater goers develop, but the jokes go on forever. Of late years he has been keeping close trace of stage witticisms and says he can locate the parentage or original source of nearly all the laugh-producing material of today.

Spyer started his career at the mature age of 13, when he traveled with one of the old-time "medicine shows." This show, which toured the Northwest, had a "lightning dental artist" as a feature, who made a specialty of pulling teeth for patrons of the show. Spyer says that the value of an orchestra can hardly be appreciated except by those who have attended some such performance. When the patrons or victims stepped on the stage to have molars "painlessly" extracted, it was the orchestra that drowned all racket and made the tragedy that was occurring on the platform seem like a pleasurable feature of entertainment.

Spyer's last directorship for vaudeville was with the orchestra at the Orpheum Theater, which he left to go with the St. Louis Symphony. But after extensive experience in the variety houses, he says that the chief charm of the theatrical business is the opportunity it affords to constantly meet old acquaintances—whether these are jokes, musical selections or human characters.

In a reminiscent mood last week he talked of the familiarity with which some of the modern witticisms struck the ear of men who had been conducting music at popular playhouses for any length of time.

"We get to know the old jokes and music and can recognize them in any setting," he said. "Then do you think there is anything new about jazz music? Even the name originated in the old days of touring minstrel troupes, when the trombone player used to stick his instrument down into the sand as he played to 'jazz it up a bit,' as they called the effect on the notes. Jazz is the outcome of ragtime, which, in turn, developed from what is known as syncopated music that the old darkies used to produce on the levees when they loaded the steamboats—'Jump, Jim Crow' is a typical example of old-time jazz.

"A person who has followed theatrical music can trace the origin of nearly every song that appears. A few new bars here and there clothe an old tune in a new garb. Portions of 'Annie Laurie' and 'Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms' have made the reputation of two or three avowedly new songs.

"But it is the joke that lives forever. Vaudeville has changed since I started in the Columbia Theater orchestra when Frank Tate and Zach Tinker were stockholders and when Clark Brown was manager. But the old jokes still exist.

"There was always the liquor joke, for instance. A time-honored crack was for one comedian to ask another why they called a party for males a stag party. The other would reply that it had something to do with the poem which commences, 'The stag at eve had drunk his fill.' Then the stage Irishman would brag about the good time he had the night before, and would be reproved by his teammate, who would demand how he knew what sort of time he had, when he was so drunk early in the night that he could not see. The Irishman would reply that he knew he had a good time, because he heard the policeman tell the Judge all about it when he was in court that morning. This was always good for a laugh.

"In fact, all kinds of Irish comedy seemed to go well 20 years ago. One act that came from burlesque opened with an Irishman washing blood and dirt from his face. His wife would demand who had beaten him up that way and he would say it was Finnegan. When she commenced to berate him for letting himself be whipped by a man like Finnegan, whom she would describe as a measly and insignificant creature, he would interrupt gravely and tell her not to speak evil of the dead. When this had soaked into the audience, he always got a hand.

"Years back, at the time of the Spanish-American war, a vaudeville act had a scene in a recruiting office, when one man would be rejected because he had bad teeth. He would bring down the house by saying that he wanted to fight the Spaniards, not bite them. You can recall that this was dished up again in the late war. So was another episode in the same act, where a recruit would be turned down because he was not quite tall enough in his stocking feet. He would object, saying he didn't expect to take his shoes off when he started fighting; this was also rehashed for the late war.

"Another joke that developed in those days and that was dragged up for use in the late war treated of the patriotic young woman who had taken some cakes and biscuits of her own making down to the train to give the boys when they left for Cuba. Later, she recognized one of them and asked whether he was the same man who had eaten her biscuits some months before. To which he retorted: 'No, and what's more, the doctor doesn't think I ever will be.' This was dug up for use in 1917.

"Jokes about married people always will be popular. One stage crack that occurred in a show down at the old Mercantile Library Hall, on Broadway, was made by a boy in the piece who asked his father what bald eagles were. His father would reply that they probably were married eagles. This has evidently been regarded as witty, for it has lived ever since. In the same show the mother would accuse the daughter of having let a young man kiss her and demanded: 'When he started to kiss you, why didn't you call me?' To which the daughter would reply: 'Because, he wanted to kiss me, not you.' As an indication of how times have changed, I might remark that this was regarded as slightly improper in the old days.

"All the booze jokes took well in the old days, just as they did up to a couple of years ago. One remark that really had no point would always bring down the house. This was when the comedian would drink a glass of liquid and say to the audience: 'Some of you may think this is beer.' After a pause he would add: 'It is.' For some reason this is considered funny even to this day. Of course, a man who took his wife to a show was much more likely to go out between acts than he is today, and one bit of stage repartee was that of the wife, who, when asked whether her husband was in the habit of going out between acts, replied that she thought it better to say that he came in between drinks.

"Of course, in these automobile days, they have to perpetuate the story of the old darky who was struck by a carriage and who, when told that he might get damages, said indignantly that what he wanted was repairs, not more damages.

"The old play, 'The Phoenix,' which was last produced here at Havlin's Theater, had a starving author of the Edgar Allan Poe type as a character. A line was interpolated in the last production, where he was asked whether he had ever failed to have his work returned. To which he would reply that he had sent his cuff, with a poem on it, to the laundry, and it had not been returned. He was the character who made the line, 'And the villain still pursued her,' famous.

"Family jokes of that period included one about the man who was told to take a period of uninterrupted reading every night and who demanded where his adviser thought his wife spent her time. The stage Irishman would be asked whether he had given his wife anything on her birthday, and when he replied that he had, would be asked what it cost him. To which he would reply: 'Ten dollars and 10 days.' All these have been revived, as well as the one where a friend asks a husband whether his wife pestered him much for money, to which he would answer that she didn't but the firms where she charged things did.

"One of the stock jokes about the country would be that of the summer boarder who would demand indignantly why a pig kept trying to get into his room. To which the child in the play would reply innocently that it was the pig's room in the winter time. Another old-time outdoor joke was that of the man who was asked whether he took any time off and went fishing; to which he would reply that he did, but that the fish always seemed to take the same day off as he did. This was usually good for a laugh.

"Now, all these cracks have been rehashed time and again, just like old music is played and replayed.

"One thing can be said about music of the late war—

ing a private bath to a room, the rent can be boosted from $50 to $150 a month. Even hotel rates do not yield the maximum income possible to a building, so that the Manhattan and Knickerbocker hotels are being transformed into office buildings. There is scarcely any new building in progress throughout the city, but there is a universal patching, cobbling and resoling of old buildings.

But we may turn from these considerations to a few of the picturesque sights of the city. It is afternoon on Fifth avenue, and the flood of traffic is rolling along like a tide. In a signal tower several blocks ahead one light winks out and another opens its crimson eye. Instantly the torrent stops dead; as far as the eye can see the great mall stands motionless, while the crosstown traffic sweeps across at Forty-second street. Then the lights wink once more, and the avenue springs to life as by a miracle. In a taxicab a young woman exhales a puff of smoke, and flicks the ash from a cigarette.

In the study of a distinguished American actor, about to sail for England to make his London debut. He is deeply concerned. Not about the reception he will receive from the British public. A telegram has just come with the sad tidings that burglars have raided the wine cellar of his home in Canada. He is going to take the night train up to see whether they left anything. One is surprised at his profound grief. He could so easily replace his loss in New York.

At the new Capitol Theater at Fiftieth and Broadway, "the world's largest theater," with its 5300 seats. It is Sunday night. The law forbids theatrical performances in New York on the Sabbath, so we have "concerts," with a strange resemblance to vaudeville shows. A young woman in costume begins a song. You can't see the program in the vast gloom. But surely it is the "Gianninia mia" song. Two other singers launch into the "Sympathy" waltz. Yes, it is a number of excerpts, beautifully costumed and staged, from "The Firefly," familiar to municipal opera goers in Forest Park. After an interval there is another number of the same sort, this time levying upon "The Bohemian Girl."

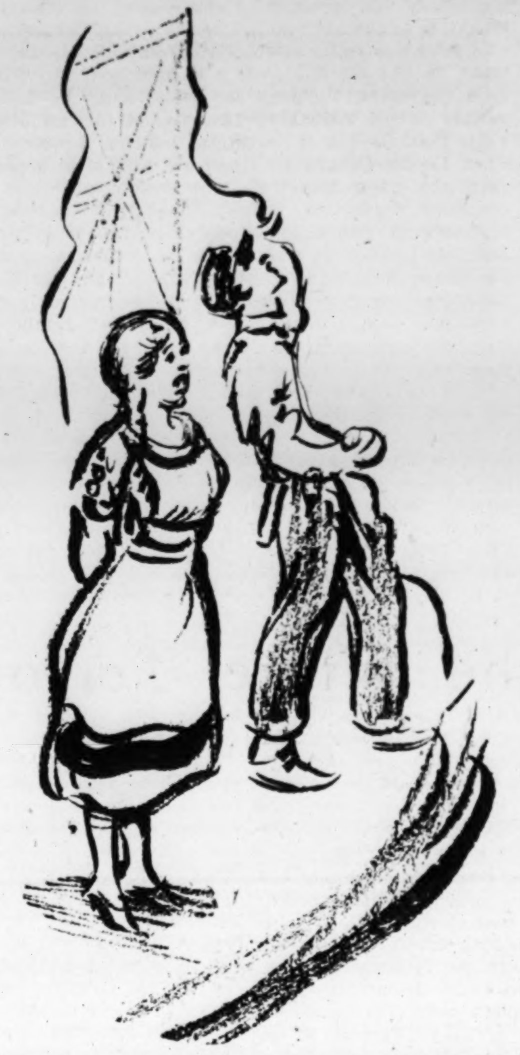
At the Cort Theater in Forty-eighth street a gangling actor, with the facial makeup of a gorilla, prates and prays and prates again through six interminable scenes. This character is always right, and everyone else is always wrong. Finally, while he is making an oration from a theater box, another actor creeps up and shoots him with a revolver, no doubt because he was so ruthlessly loquacious, so incorrigibly infallible Not at all, for the play is John Drinkwater's celebrated "Abraham Lincoln." Gen. Grant's gargantuan swigs of whisky win the "big hands" of the evening, though they have competition when the presidential foot falls asleep.

In the lobby of the Commodore Hotel, one Saturday morning. Files of Broadway's "finest" suddenly occupy strategic points. Loungers arouse enough to ask what's up. Gov. Cox will enter the hotel in a few moments. "Oh!" murmur the loungers, and sink into contemplation once more. Quickly enters a brisk little man, a sort of miniature edition of Campbell Cummings of St. Louis, strutting along in the midst of an escort of men who tower above him. He wears a yellow suffrage flower in his lapel. "Three cheers for our next President!" shouts a white-haired man, and gives them himself.

In a dressing room at the Gaiety Theater sits snow-haired Frank Bacon, having just completed the 844th performance of his comedy, "Lightnin'." His shiftless, drunken and lovable old vagabond, "Lightnin'" Bill Jones, has been Broadway's darling for more than three years. The attendance has been capacity every night since the second performance. "Yes," says Bacon, "I carried that play around New York 10 years before a manager would touch it. It was built up from an act which my wife, my daughter and myself used to do in vaudeville." His leading woman is Jane Oaker, a member of the Peper family of St. Louis.

On the stage of the Manhattan Opera House Fokine, the famous dancer who invented the Russian ballet, is drilling a troop of girls for the spectacle drama "Aphrodite," which starts soon for Chicago. New Yorkers have been puzzled to pronounce the name of the play. As it comes from France, some highbrows call it "AphroDEET." Other learned ones, preferring to English the title, say "AphroDIEty." The general public prefers "AphroDITE," but there are those who would compromise and pronounce it "Aphro-dirty."

Anyhow, the famous Fokine—who is said to draw $1000 for every five-hour day of work—sits munching a caviar sandwich and drinking tea. His bald head glistens. Before him the coryphees leap, roll in the grime of the stage, and shower imaginary flowers upon their companions. They attempt the same pantomime over and over, 25 times perhaps. The master loses patience and springs to his feet. "If you cannot dance with the leg," he exclaims, struggling with his precise English, "I can teach you. But if"—and he claps a hand to the region where the intelligence is supposed to have its seat—"if you cannot tell right from left, then I cannot teach you."



On the stage a plump young girl, her yellow hair in a pigtail.

Again, we are before a theater in Forty-eighth street. The first performance of a new comedy is under way. The writer, entering, casts a glance at a man sitting in solitary dejection on the curb. A black velour hat reclines at a morose angle over one eye. The pallid face is heavy with gloom. "Poor devil," you think; "some actor out of a job and hungry." You inquire at the office for Mr. Morris Gest. "That's Mr. Gest, sitting on the curb," you are told. Mr. Gest being hailed, springs up with alacrity. "Why aren't you inside seeing your show?" he is asked. "Can't stand it—too nervous—hate to see a first night," surprisingly replies the young producer whose genius gave New York "Chu Chin Chow" and "Aphrodite."

Presently several men emerge whom you recognize as dramatic critics. They hold a brief pow-wow on the sidewalk, heads close together. From the group there float to the ear repetitions of the word "artificial." Sure enough, in every review next morning the changes are rung upon the "artificiality" of the new play.

Ina Claire, in "The Gold Diggers," at David Belasco's Lyceum, nightly edifying throngs with the preachment that a chorus girl's function in life is the pillaging of men, but that she never—no, never!—by any chance yields recompense, save at the muzzle of a marriage license. Similarly, at the Central, a musical comedy, "The Poor Little Ritz Girl," consecrated to the message that the technical celibacy of show girls is axiomatic, however flagrant appearances may seem to the contrary.

John E. Hazzard, comedian and former St. Louisan, starring at the Liberty in one of the wittiest and most bounteous and tuneful of musical comedies, "The Night Boat." Blanche Bates and Henry Miller, at the latter's theater in West Forty-third street, struggling valiantly to sweep back the tide of feminism with a melodramatic broom called "The Famous Mrs. Fair." While the celebrated Mrs. Fair is gallivanting about on a lecture tour, Mr. Fair finds consolation with a widow and Miss Fair, a daughter, elopes with a scoundrel. Moral: Woman's place is in the home.

At the tiny Nora Bayes Theater, upstairs in West Forty-fourth street, charming Eva Le Gallienne in a delicious and poetic romance, "Not So Long Ago." Only a handful of people present. At the New Amsterdam, crowds turned away every day from Ziegfeld's "Follies," 1920 edition—the best of the series in recent years, as the 1919 redaction was the worst. Vanished are the Eddie Cantors, Bert Williamses and Johnnie Dooleys. Fannie Brice all over the place, with a song regretting she married a broker with an explosive vest.

Ziegfeld defeated on his own ground, however, by the "Midnight Rounders" revue on the Century Roof. Such sustained good taste, such unflagging sumptuousness, such universal beauty as to create a glamor and enchantment unprecedented among Shubert productions. Electricity in thrill after thrill; New York's tingling ozone breathing from the stage. The audience seated in the midst of arches and paintings quite lovely enough to make a stage setting themselves. And below, the star lights of Central Park, like a terrestial milky way.

Once more, the Manhattan Opera House, in the early afternoon. On the stage a plump young girl, her yellow hair in a pigtail. She trembles with terror. Enthroned like a Juno in a rear seat Mrs. Hammerstein, widow of the redoubtable Oscar. An audition for an aspirant to operatic opportunities in the season which the San Carlo Opera Company will open there this month. An oily vocal teacher, rubbing suave hands, trots back and forth. "Will Mrs. Hammerstein be pleased to hear the 'Caro nome' from 'Rigoletto'?" Mrs. Hammerstein will be pleased. A frightful rendition. Teacher unabashed. Trots back and forth tirelessly, with hands kneading in propitiation. "Will Mrs. Hammerstein hear the Waltz Song from 'Romeo and Juliet?' My pupil sings it in four languages, French, German, Italian and English." Mrs. Hammerstein prefers French. Another terrible performance, and one more little tragedy of the opera house. Among the auditors a handsome lad, working as messenger boy, son of former Governor of a province in Russia.

Back on Fifth avenue. Stately churches, in which the rich graciously condescend to confer their patronage on God. Horrors! A 5 and 10 cent store on this sacred mall! And on it a sign half a block long, in red and gilt! It is said neighboring merchants protested in anguish against the monstrous advertisement. Astounded owner, having thought he had added notably to avenue's esthetics, protests: "Why, I hired the best carriage painter in America to make that sign!"

In the Metropolitan Art Museum, at Eighty-second street, now become one of the world's greatest collections. Fabulous names leap from brass plates on paintings and smite your eyes—Raphael, Tintoretto, Correggio, Titan, Botticelli, Verrocchio, Murillo, Goya, Gainsborough, Reynolds, Bonheur, Turner, Hals, Rembrandt, Rubens, Velasquez, Van Dyck, Claude Lorrain, Millet, Corot, Poussin—a blinding cloud of the archangels of art. Forests of sculpture, of all ages and climes; and there, as a memento of death in the midst of beauty, the hideous, shriveled mummy of a woman who lived and loved on the banks of the Nile 6000 years ago!

At Central Park and Fifth avenue, the Plaza Hotel, "where the wealthy of St. Louis go to blow in their money, and then return home to economize." Downtown again to the Woolworth Building, 60 stories high, from the tower of which, on a sunny day, one fancies he can see half way to Europe. The world's tallest office building; New York's triumph of skyscraper architecture. A Gothic cathedral on stilts; or better, a Gothic cathedral made of rubber, stretched as far as the elastic will give, and then frozen.

Coney Island at 1 a. m., with Luna Park's elfin temples of light. Jostling throngs of insatiable pleasure seekers. Home on the last bus, careering wildly along, like a star rushing through interplanetary space—the only living, moving thing in the deserted streets of Brooklyn, graveyard of the living. Greenwich Village at midnight. Gloomiest, most solitary region of New York. Through basement windows glimpses of frowsy geniuses, male and female, at dreary, shabby revels.

New York—metropolis of success, playground of capitalism, inferno of poverty, conglomerate appetite of 6,500,000 greedy souls! Yet a city of magic, of inspiration! Who can stand in the midst of its stupendous architecture without a responsive soaring of spirit? Or behold its honeycomb of subways and Hudson River tunnels, without a thrilling consciousness of being a part of the collective human mind, capable of such titanic achievements?

Better Not Change Left-Handedness

IF a child be naturally left-handed, it should be allowed to remain so, for an attempt to train it to right-handedness may easily result in making it mentally inferior. Dr. H. Griesbach emphasizes this in an article in the Deutsche Medicinische Wochenschrift (Berlin), explaining that in left-handed persons the speech center is in the right hemisphere of the brain, instead of in the left hemisphere, as is the case in right-handed persons.

The result of persistent efforts to make them right-handed may be a speech center that is not predominantly situated on either side, which condition, Griesbach says, interferes with the differentiation of the hemispheres throughout childhood and adolescence.

He says that once the unilateral hemisphere differentiation is complete, as it is in adults, a re-education from left to right or from right to left handedness will do no harm to the brain.

Budapest Under the White Terror

No. 4 of Capital Nights' Entertainments

The Hungarian Capital is strongly monarchial and anti-Bolshevik, under Militarist rule, which brings grateful relaxation after the Red reign of Bela Kun :: :: :: ::

By KARL K. KITCHEN

BECAUSE the caption of this chapter sounds like the title of an Al Wood's melodrama, do not expect to encounter a thrilling tale of rapine, murder and sudden death.

Budapest under the Red Terror may have been exciting enough for those in search of lurid adventure; but under the White Terror life in the capital of Hungary is about as thrilling as a cat and seven kittens asleep behind a kitchen stove. And the number of the kittens does not make any difference.

News rumors have been many to the effect that since the militarists have regained control in Budapest there has been a reign of terror, as bloody in its reaction as the reign of Bela Kun and his Communist followers. It has been reported that hundreds of citizens have disappeared from their homes, "sunk without trace" in the beautiful blue Danube.

I regret to report that the "beautiful blue Danube" is a muddy green, but I doubt if it has been very much discolored by hurling Budapestiferous Bolsheviks into it since the White Terror has been under suspicion. It is true that a number of prominent Bolsheviks have been facilitated on their journey to join the 60,000 victims of Bela Kun's 105 days of Red Terror. But these "felicitous felicitations" are in the nature of individual affairs. In fact, they might be compared with our lynching bees in the South. While everyone is invited to attend them, they are distinctly unofficial, and after they are all over they are greatly deplored by everyone except the victims, whose views, of course, are not available.

This may seem a light way to handle such a weighty subject, but the truth of the matter is that the so-called White Terror is more or less of a myth. The "Whites," as the militarists are called, have not frightened as many people away from Budapest as Bela Kun and his followers killed here. And it must be remembered that the militarists are in power as the result of the popular vote. After four and a half months of the Red regime, the populace was ready to play the Whites.

If I had not been told in Vienna that the White Terror was rampant in Budapest I would never have guessed it. There are surprisingly few soldiers in the capital, and, outwardly at least, there are no signs of any melodramatic happenings. Like the much heralded international boycott against Hungary, which has never been anything more than a half column in the newspapers, the White Terror is of the stuff that dreams are made of, the particular variety of dreams being classified as "pipe."

But because life in Budapest is not very different from what it used to be—the present Government is frankly monarchial and King Charles may return at any time—it must not be gathered that the Hungarian capital is an easy place to reach, to say nothing of leaving it in a cloud of dust.

The two through trains a week from Vienna require seven or eight hours to make the journey, instead of three hours 45 minutes, the time of half a dozen daily trains before the peacemakers at Versailles carved the Austro-Hungarian empire into building lots. It was not unusual for the Viennese to jam over to Budapest for the races in the afternoon and return to their homes to sleep. Today, however, a trip from one capital to the other is a serious undertaking, involving a passport vise, a police permit, a bundle of kronen and unlimited patience.

The gentlemen who are responsible for the new Europe allocated Pressburg (or, if you prefer, the ancient city of Pozsony) to Czecho-Slovakia. The fact that there is hardly a single Czech or Slovak in the city, which is located on the main rail and river route between Vienna and Budapest, didn't figure in the decision. Pressburg was detached from Austria and Hungary, with the result that the through trains between the two capitals have to run via Bruck and Komoron—a much longer route.

As none of these new jazzy nations allow their rolling stock to cross their borders—for fear that it will never be returned—it will be seen that commerce is practically at a standstill. And even for a traveler entering Hungary from Austria today there are as many obstacles as one would expect to encounter in Thibet. When I stepped out of the station in Budapest the first thing I discovered was that my Austrian kronen were no good. Although Austria and Hungary are supposed to have the same paper money, Austrian money isn't accepted in Budapest unless it is stamped with a funny little seal. The money changers demand a 15 per cent commission for exchanging bills of the stamped variety for the unstamped Austrian kronen—which seems very foolish, since neither of them are really worth anything.

Both countries are running a race with their printing presses to see which one can print the most money, but the surprising fact is that the Hungarian bank note buys more than the Austrian, though the two are exactly alike except for the little stamp on one corner.

Budapest has grown considerably since the war—its present population is close to a million and a half—and since there has been very little building, the shortage of living quarters is acute. Thousands of people are living in box cars, and if I had not engaged a room at the Grand Hotel Hungaria long in advance, I would have been obliged to put up in a freight car.

Despite all Budapest has suffered from the revolution, the Rumanian invasion and Bela Kun's Bolshevist rule, conditions, generally speaking, are much better than in Vienna. There is an abundance of food, and the prices of almost everything are much lower than in the Austrian capital. The reasons for this betterment are the wonderful crops throughout Hungary, and the different attitude of the peasants toward the city dwellers. The Catholic peasantry in Austria despise the Socialist Government in Vienna to such an extent that

"Hello, Amelie," he said cheerfully. "Hello, there, rancis. It's a wonderful moon—a very decent, cool evening. I'm a bit late. I said I'd be back at 10."

here appeared to be no warmth of welcome for him; he looked from his wife to the critic and back again, s if searching for one. None other than a word of reeting, a little colorless, came from either. There as mail for him on the corner of the mantel, where s house letters usually were laid, and with a nod toard them he walked across the room and picked hem up. He was a shorter, brisker man than Francis; is face was more square, more like a wood carving and less elastic and expressionful.

"Well," began Eldon. "It is late."

Pembroke replied quickly. "Don't go. It's only the shank of the evening. Climb up to the library and make yourself at home. I've just bought a first edition of Thackeray. Told it was a good one. Elie and I will come right up."

"Really," Francis began.

"Nonsense! Shall I send up a Scotch and soda?"

"No, thanks."

"The cigarettes are on my desk. Just browse around."

The critic glanced at Mrs. Pembroke as he went out and smiled as if rather amused and a little bored.

"I forgot you two would want a moment together," said he. The remark was not without his soft caressing manner, which he could use even in malice. "I'll be glad to see you, Pendennis."

His steps sounded on the tiled floor of the hallway and then very faintly in the room above.

"Amelie, dear one," said Pembroke, bending over her. "Get up and give me a figurative pat on the back, will you? What do I come home for, anyway?"

"Don't, Jack!"

Pembroke sometimes raises one of his eyebrows. The men who are associated with him and are familiar enough with this expression, know exactly what it means. He raised his eyebrow and his lips were a little drawn in. He went toward the red lacquered carved Chinese screen, picked up the ancient porcelain and touched its velvety glaze with his finger tips.

"Do you know what made me fall in love with you?" he asked, out of a clear sky.

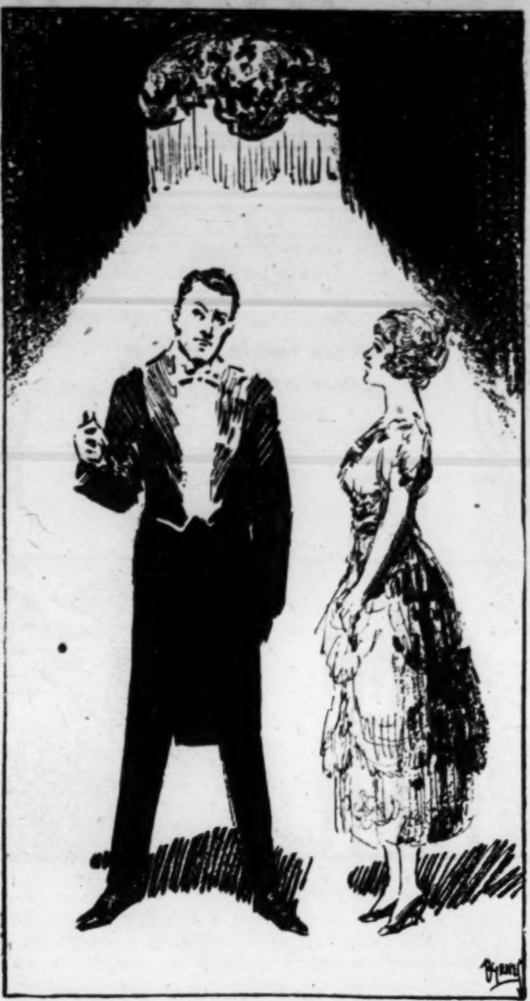
His wife rose quickly from the sofa to withdraw from the circle of light which the swinging lamp above it threw down upon her shoulders and across her upturned, startled face. He watched her seek the shadow and, when she had reached the corner, turn toward him again, as if she felt that she was at bay.

"I didn't mean to startle you, Amelie," he said. "I was going on to say various things. Among them was a mention of the fact that where there was to be real love there must be truth also. You said that to me once. It made a great impression on me. I think I had always a pretty decent standard of truth. But I saw that love required even a higher standard—if it was to go on."

Pembroke had spoken a little as if it were she had answered affirmatively and there would now be no fairness nor reason in her demanding from him information or accounting unless she first gave information and made her own accounting. She sensed, no doubt, the fact that he recognized that something had gone wrong in the house of the Pembrokes, as one smells in the dark the presence of some human menace or as one, without turning about, knows that eyes are gazing from concealment.

Seeking to protect herself from any question of his she foolishly emphasized her own empty inquiry by saying: "Are you sure, Jack?" The words had no more than been pronounced when she knew that she had made a mistake. She may have wondered, indeed, whether her husband had not deliberately made a bid for her inquiry so that it would be fair to make one of his own.

His smile might have increased this suspicion as he put down the porcelain and taking out his letters looked at each one. His words might have confirmed this suspicion as he said: "I answered you without any quibbling. The thing you taught me was that the relationship of love could not exist unless each of us thought aloud—unless we exposed to each other our minds and 'played the game,' as your father called it. He expressed the idea when he said to me: 'Amelie is of the right blood, the right training, the right traditions, and she is also herself. She will play the game.'"



He raised one eyebrow and pointed to the ceiling.

"Do you doubt that now?" she asked in a frightened and trembling voice.

Pembroke looked at her rather indulgently as she came forward again out of the shadow. She was a figure good to look upon. Her hair, the warmth of tint in her flesh and the deep blue of eyes lent color to her and the black, gray and silver dinner gown gave her a graceful setting, free from that fortissimo with which most women's clothes drown out their personalities.

"No, I do not doubt it, Amelie," he replied.

She walked straight toward him and announced deliberately. "I have been having an affair, Jack."

He stiffened; he drew his neck down as if a weight had been set upon his head.

"Well, then, we must think," he said.

After a moment he raised one eyebrow and pointed toward the ceiling.

"Him?"

"With him—yes."

"I am sorry you chose him," said Pembroke. "He is really a very attractive fellow. But, by the way"——

He stopped.

"Yes, of course, I would have told you. I merely wanted you to have the first chance to tell me."

"You knew?"

"I knew," he said.

"Because he had been coming here so much?"

"No. That rather bothered me; but I knew tonight because of the maid."

"Annie? She's been listening. She told you?" The words had come out too soon again.

"No, no," said Pembroke. "She said nothing to me. No doubt you are right; she probably had overheard something. And she's a dramatic old thing, who thought my mother was the finest woman in the world and my family was the finest family, including royalty. No, no. She wouldn't presume to tell me. Not as you mean."

"What did she do?"

He laughed outright and heartily.

"She had been up in the library and she met me on the stairs, and with only a word she handed me—Oh, Lord, this is funny!"

Amelie stepped back as if afraid.

"You will be amused. She handed me the revolver! She'd got it from my bureau drawer. All she said to me was this. She called me by the name she used when I was a boy. Rattled—poor old thing. She said: 'Mr. Jack, you are a man of understanding, sir.'"

"You wouldn't"—— She gasped.

"Oh, no, Amelie. If I chose anyone it would be him. But you see that would mean awkwardness. It might mean rough punishment. There is no need for that if we handle the matter right. It probably would be a silly waste. Let us begin more sensibly. What is it you want?"

"Want?"

"Yes. Elie, what is it you want? I can arrange it, perhaps. I love you well enough to try. I am trying to keep my good sense for your sake, and, of course, for mine, too. By the way, he hasn't—kissed you?"

She shook her head.

"I thought not."

He smiled at her again, confidently.

"How could you have known that I didn't"——

"By knowing you," said Pembroke. "You are not cheap. You would not go about it that way. I just knew by knowing you. I have been proud of you. You would make up your mind first. I do not mean that you do not love the man. You must. You see things as I do not. You know him better than I do. I leave almost all of that decision to you. But I am sure that you are not—what shall we say?—well, vulgar."

"Why do we talk about it now?" she asked petulantly.

"Because I am dead in earnest about one thing, Amelie. I want to know where I made my mistake. I know this smash can be traced back to me. I feel I am to blame."

He took her wrist. "Come on now, tell me!"

"Well, I will tell you," she said, with her eyes blazing. "You have been so blind, so lacking in perception. You do not know a woman at all. I am like that porcelain vase there. You love me, I don't deny it. But you have that same sense of leaving me here that you have when you leave that old Sung vase there."

He interrupted her. "Oh, that makes me tell you something I didn't tell you before," he said grimly. "That Sung vase has a tradition. It was said by the Chinese who sold it to Capt. Watterburn in Shanghai to have been moulded by a murderer. That's the tradition. And it carries death and bad luck and so on. Utter nonsense, of course. But, nevertheless, Watterburn had paid 2000 Mexican dollars for it, and he took a loss on it to get rid of it."

Mrs. Pembroke turned to look at the porcelain as if she had been told that it was creeping up behind her like a living thing.

"Well, I interrupted you," Pembroke said, calmly. "You were saying that I"——

He wiped the back of his hand across his forehead.

"What was it you were saying?"

She wheeled toward him again. "I said that you have dealt with me as if I were not a human being at all. Love? Yes, I never doubted you loved me."

"I kept it up quite steadily for these three or four years," he interposed with a grimace. "But go on."

"There is a side of me—an expressive side of me, Jack. You were blind to that. You went your way on your activities. When you wanted rest and recreation you came back. But you have been blind to the fact that I, too, must have a way to express myself. You looked upon me with your—your club mind. I wanted to express myself."

"How?" said Pembroke quietly.

The question seemed to daze her.

"Well, you know, self-expression is expression of self. If you had wanted to be captain of a transatlantic liner, I couldn't very well do it for you, could I? It wouldn't be self-expression, now, would it? I wouldn't oppose you being navigator or mine owner or president of a corporation or a painter of china. Lord knows, I wouldn't even stand in the way of your doing burnt-wood work! You can write, paint, play, work. I would never say anything but 'that I am delighted.'"

"You have no genius for understanding," she said, clenching her hands. "You just do not understand. There is no use—no use in another word!"

"Then we may speak of him," said Pembroke, raising one eyebrow and pointing at the ceiling.

"It is all futile!"

"Perhaps it is. But I was going to speak of the woman's point of view, Amelie."

"Well, what is it?"

"I was just thinking a while ago that if I were a woman—a young, beautiful, clever woman, I would not finally commit myself to a relationship—of any kind—with a man until I had—however, it is of no consequence."

She was eager now; she leaned toward him.

"Say what you were going to say," she commanded.

"I was just musing," he said. "I suppose I have an unromantic, business point of view. I know that some women like Eldon Francis. Why, I like him myself. He is more brilliant than I am. He is a fascinating talker. But sometimes I ask myself whether his cleverness ever creates anything. His writing—his criticism is so little about the book he is reviewing and so much about Eldon Francis. And then I think men

A thrilling mystery story with romance closely interwoven

PUBLISHED FOR THE FIRST TIME IN ANY FORM

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON,

author of "Graustark," "Castle Craneycrow," "Brewster's Millions," and many others

THE story is that of an ocean liner and its passengers and crew, bound from South America for a port in the United States. On the second day of the voyage a stowaway appears, announcing himself as Algernon Adonis Percival, an American mining engineer, whose money has been stolen and who wants to get home to join the American forces in the great war. He proposes that he work his passage by taking the place of one of two deck hands whom he saw jump overboard the night before. His casual reference to the deserters causes consternation among the officers, who immediately set about searching the ship.

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

AND so it was that while Algernon Adonis Percival, under the watchful eye of a burly seaman, fell to work scraping the scuppers of the boat deck, the stern business of searching the ship went forward with a thoroughness that left no room for doubt as to the fears and apprehensions of the men who had her in charge. Despite the fact that intensive, anxious hours of delving revealed no hidden, sinister agent of destruction, there was no relaxation on the part of the officers and crew. One by one the passengers were examined; their rooms and their luggage were systematically overhauled. No one resented these drastic operations, for by midday the whole ship's company knew what had transpired during the night. Eagerly they answered the questions, cheerfully they submitted to the examination of their effects, and then fell silent and subdued, oppressed by the suspense that hung over the ship like a cloud. Crew and passengers alike underwent the most rigid questioning, the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the young and the old.

Early that morning—in fact, some time prior to the time that Percival told his story—the wireless operator reported that his transmitter was out of order. While he was satisfied that the apparatus had not been tampered with, he was plainly affected by the rather grim coincidence. He was an old and trusted man in the service, competent, efficient, loyal.

His assistant, the night operator, however, had made less than half a dozen voyages on the Doraine. He was an Englishman, a cripple; twice he had been rescued after vessels on which he sailed had been sent to the bottom by German submarines. His credentials were flawless. He was on duty during the night just past, and had picked up several indistinct, incomplete radio messages. There was nothing wrong with the receiving or transmitting apparatus when he went off duty at 6 in the morning; and as his superior came on at the same hour—they exchanged greetings at the door of the wireless house—it was absolutely impossible for anyone to have entered the well-guarded room without attracting attention. Cruise, the chief radio man, had his assistant routed out of bed, and together they worked like beavers over the disabled mechanism.

Hour after hour the nervous, uneasy passengers paced the decks. Few remained indoors and few possessed the calmness to loll in deck chairs.

Percival toiled cheerfully, but with eye and ear alert for the first inkling of definite peril. With commendable thoughtfulness he had shed the clean white shirt and collar so generously supplied by his fellow townsman, and had donned a commodious sea jacket.

He could not help observing the dark, suspicious glances cast upon him by the deck walkers, nor were his ears proof against audible comments. Mothers nudged their children and said in slightly lowered but distinctly impressive tones:

"That's the man. He's a stowaway."

"See, Wilfred, see the man? No, no! The one with the mop, dear. Don't go near him."

"What a dreadful looking creature he is."

"The captain captured him this morning away down in the bottom of the ship. He was stealing a ride."

"Poor fellow! He doesn't look like a bad fellow, does he?" And so on and so forth as the day went along.

Masculine strollers had very decided opinions about him. Mr. Landover, the banker, stopped to discuss the toiling menial with Mr. Nickelstick, Mr. Block and Mr. Fitts.

"He ought to be in irons," said Mr Landover, glowering at Percival. "That's what I told the captain a little while ago. He's a bad egg, that fellow is. I'm a pretty good judge of men, gentlemen, and I don't often make mistakes. That fellow is a fugitive from justice, if he isn't something worse. Observe the cut of his mouth—ah! see that? What did I tell you? Did you ever see a more evil grin?"

"Take it from me," said Mr. Nickelstick, "that guy knows a good deal more about what's going on aboard this ship than he lets on. He ain't as simple as he looks. I told Capt. Trigger just now that he ought to give him a dose of the third degree. That's the way to get to the bottom of this business. String him up by the thumbs till he squeals. What say, Mr. Fitts?"

Mr. Fitts, the architect, was a mild man.

"He strikes me as a rather honest looking sort of chap," he said, and was promptly glared at by his companions. "Of course," he hastened to add, "I am not saying that he is all right. He may be as crooked as the deuce. I'm only saying he's got a rather pleasing sort of face."

"The most innocent, open-faced young fellow we ever had in the bank," said Mr. Landover, "turned out to be the damndest rascal I've ever encountered."

"How did you happen to have him in the bank if you are such a good judge of men?" inquired Mr. Fitts, utterly without malice.

Mr. Landover reddened. "My dear sir, I do not come in contact with every employe of the bank. You forget that it is quite an immense institution."

"It sure is," said Mr. Nickelstick. "I'm thinking of transferring our account to your bank, Mr. Landover. We've been banking with"——

"I vas telling my vife at lunch," broke in Mr. Block, twitching his Hebraic nose emphatically—not that ve could eat any lunch, by gracious, no!—I vas telling her I bet my boots dere ain't enough lifeboats to get as much as half of us off safe in case something happens. I counted up all the lifeboats I could see, and ven I estimate the number of peoples on board, w y, by gracious, the loss of life vould be frightful, gentlemen. The only chance ve would haf would be for approximately 50 per cent of the peoples on board to be killed outright by the explosion."

"I hear there is a detective from Chicago on board with a prisoner," ventured Mr. Fitts. "Why doesn't the captain ask him to have a look at this stowaway fellow?"

"What would be the good of that?" demanded Mr. Landover. "I never saw a detective in my life that knew what to do in an emergency. Soon as you get one of them where he can't telephone in to headquarters for instructions he's as helpless as a baby. Don't talk to me about detectives. Why, this fellow would simply laugh in his face."

"Just as he is laughing in yours at this moment, Mr Landover," pursued Mr. Fitts pleasantly.

"The damned rascal!" said Mr. Landover, and stalked away.

"There goes one of the biggest figures in the United States," said Mr. Nickelstick, looking after the banker. His remark was addressed to Mr. Fitts. "I wish I had his brains."

"Dey vouldn't do you any good, Nickelstick," said Mr. Block, "unless you had his money, too, also."

"If I had his brains," said Mr. Nickelstick, "he wouldn't have his money, so what's the difference?"

Mr. Block looked uneasily out over the tumbling ocean, focusing his gaze on a section of the horizon that, for want of something more definite than mere hope, lay in a direct line with the city of New York.

"And ven you stop to think," said he wistfully, "that ve are still something like 6000 miles from home—Oh, vell! Vat's the use? I bet you I never go so far avay from my business again. Vot a fool I vas to make this trip ven the whole ocean is full of submarines and German agents and plotters and—yes, vat a fool ven I had so many high-priced men vorking for me who vas crazy to come. But my vife, she vould do it. Paris and London every year it used to be, so she must haf a little holiday or she vill die, she say. Vell, here ve are. And ven I think vat a long holiday it is going to be, maybe, by gracious, I could kick myself for not giving in to my brother-in-law ven he begged so hard to be allowed to make the trip because he needed the change from not being avay from the office for five years, and his vife and children, too. His vife, she needed a change so much as he, vat with not being able to get into any good hotels in the summer time and not being able to keep out of them in the vintertime, she vas nearly distracted. No, I vas selfish. My vife, she was selfish, too,—and him her own brother. Vy shouldn't he haf a vacation vonce in a while?"

He turned abruptly to the sailor who lounged near the perspiring Percival.

"How far is it to land, my frient?" he inquired.

The sailor touched his cap. "Which way, sor?" he asked solemnly. "Fore or aft?"

(Percival said to himself: "By golly, I'll bet that man is an American.")

"Vat? Land—you know vat I mean—the end of the ocean. How far avay is it?"

The sailor calculated. "Well, the nearest land, sir, I should say, is about 300 miles away, to port."

"How deep is it here?" asked Mr. Nickelstick, moving away from the rail suddenly.

The sailor glanced down at the water, squinted an eye, and then spoke reassuringly.

"It ain't half as deep here as it is a little furder on," he said. "It's only a shade over three miles where we are now, sir. We're comin' to the deepest part of the ocean—ought to be there inside of a couple of hours. Here, you! On the job, on the job!"

"You ought to search that man carefully," advised Mr. Nickelstick.

"I have," growled the sailor. "He says he never uses it in that form. I guess he's tellin' the truth."

"Never uses what?"

"Tobacco, sir."

"Oh!" said Mr. Nickelstick, and, catching a glimpse of Mme. Obosky emerging upon the deck, unceremoniously deserted his companions and hurried off to join her, his speed being suddenly accelerated by the spectacle of Mr. Shine, the motion picture magnate, who approached the lady from an equi-distant station and with similar haste. Mr. Block, being a trifle

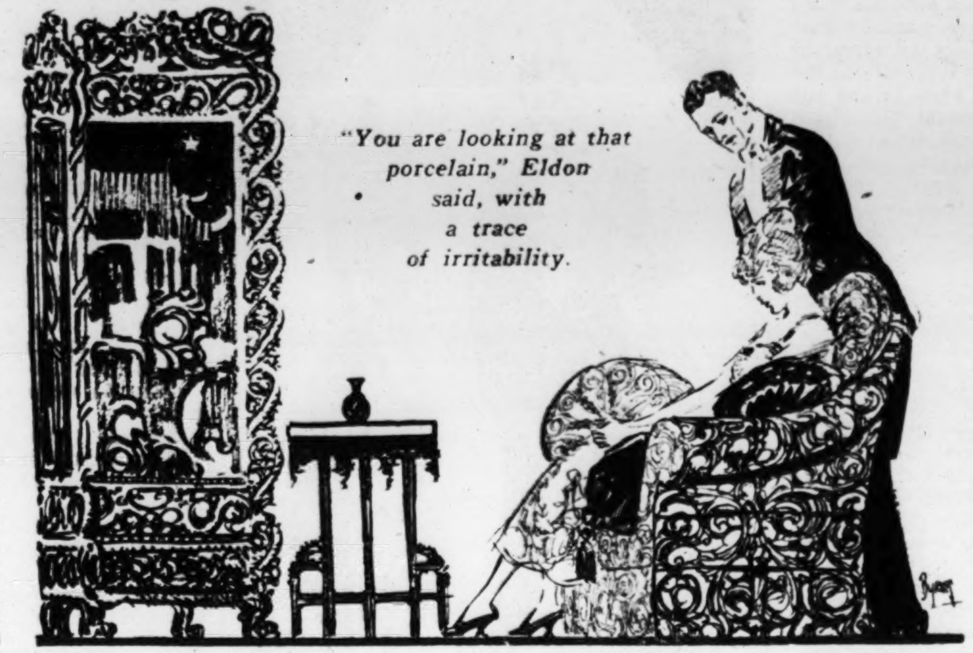
A MAN OF UNDERSTANDING

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD



"You are looking at that porcelain," Eldon said, with a trace of irritability.

AMELIE knew that the moment had arrived. She leaned back against the French brocade of the over-stuffed lounge and squeezed one of her small, slender hands with the other until both were pink with the pressure. She either could go on with Pembroke, building with him the structure which, as lovers and as man and wife, they had begun four years before, or she could take the other road.

"There are men and women in the world who believe I have a sixth sense," Francis was saying. "We have been seeing each other enough, Amelie, for you to judge. The sixth sense is understanding—the kind which needs no words, the kind which words sometimes mar. I think if I can claim any genius it is that genius—the genius of understanding, the talent of sympathy."

She had closed her eyes and had pressed the palms of her hands against the sides of her bare throat; she did not reply, but when he had finished his sentence she stared in front of her without a motion. The door into the darkened reception room of their house was half filled by an ancient carved Chinese screen done in fine red lacquer. In front of it, upon a low table of ebony, stood a small pigeon-blood vase of the Sung period. It was at this vase she gazed so steadily, while inside her head, under a mass of red-gold hair, too heavy, perhaps, for a woman of her stature, there went on the conflict of forces which might decide whether the house of Pembroke would tilt back onto a base firmer than ever or would topple over toward the ultimate smash.

"You are looking at that porcelain," Eldon said, with a trace of peevish irritability. He had hoped that the magic which he believed he could create by his soft voice, his quick changes from dreamy, lulling sentences of discourse to rapid and passionate paragraphs, his manner of being a philosopher ages old in wisdom, but also a youth, in spite of his 37 years, and a youth of fire, he had hoped that his poise, his resource in fine phrases and half truths and subtle flattery and all the qualities that made him the sought dinner guest, would have entranced this young wife. She still had the freshness of untouched bloom all about her; she was a novice and he an expert. He was too clever not to cover quickly the suggestion of a whine from an offended egotism overfed usually by smart society women and those who adore the flash and thrust and utter cleverness of his book reviews. He said:

"I think it has a warm motive behind its still, cool, sheer beauty."

"Jack paid $900 for it," Amelie replied, as if preoccupied. "He just said he liked it."

Francis examined his carefully tended hands, saying slowly: "I was tempted to sneer, I suppose. The appreciation of the club mind"——

"The club mind?" she repeated, looking up puzzled, and straight into his flushed face.

Eldon laughed. "My dear girl—the expression is my own. The club mind is one of those minds which belong to the higher type of American banker or broker or industrial man, the type which likes to think of itself as doing, saying and thinking the correct and proper and conservative thing.

"Of originality it is a little frightful," he went on. "Of departure from well-trod paths it is fearful. It belongs to the worthy gentlemen who are smug in their wealth, who take their code of morals from society and break the rules on a basis of secrecy rather than on a basis of revision. It goes to church because going to church is the thing to do, and praises a certain picture or a certain opera or a certain book because pilots of the world's ideas—like myself—have started the sheep all running in one direction. It pays due attention to having proper clothing and proper, smart country club exercise. Under no circumstances can it cope with a vision of changing social order or with the understanding of the most important thing in the world—a woman. In a woman"——

"Yes?" said Amelie quickly.

She had just reviewed like lightning the companionship with which her love of her husband had begun and the succession of disappointing disillusionments by which she had found herself somewhat sidetracked every day without being able to phrase a sound protest. She was miserable because there was not much to express to herself; she concluded that a conspiracy existed to prevent its expression. To have a hard time being a wife used to be thought unfortunate; to have too easy a time being a wife, it has been discovered, is more unfortunate still. She would have been glad sometimes if she could complain that Pembroke did not love her sufficiently, or to have found some awful flaw in their wholesome and rather happy establishment of marriage. She had the perverse idea that she, at least, might have the labors of repairing this flaw, or, in the absence of a flaw, of making one so that she could repair it.

Francis had told her that under a different influence—his, for instance—she would open like a flower into expression through some art. She only half believed him yet. Unfaithfulness to Pembroke, if undertaken with the man who now leaned over so that his cheek touched her red-gold hair, would come, if at all, partly because life as it now ran was too smooth to be bearable and there was temptation to smash it into bits as none better than a spirited, lovely woman can. But unfaithfulness would come also because Eldon Francis, whatever his overfed ego might be, was rather a handsome, and certainly a fascinating and, to her mind, very probably a lovable man, requiring her care, needing her, furnishing her more of an excuse for being than her husband, who was steady as a rock.

If these were many thoughts to go into the moment's pause before her questioning "Yes?" it was because Amelie's mind is faster than those who are interested because they say that she has the most beautiful arms in New York, have ever realized.

"I said that understanding of a woman was the most important thing in life," said the man, putting his hand on hers, which was resting on the back of the couch, at arm's length. "I said the club mind did not understand woman. To that mind woman is rather a plaything for marriage or what you please—whether that or worse or better—as you choose to regard it. The club mind is just stupid enough never to see the treasure in a woman. It regards woman indulgently. Perhaps it says—beating itself on its chest—that a fine woman is God's best creation and dismisses her in that way, or perhaps it looks out of the corner of the eye and says that womankind furnish better hunting than foxes. It's all the same. A woman when the real business of life—the man's interests—are on hand, is checked at the waiting room like a hat box or a Gladstone bag. If you must hear something you have never heard before from me, I will tell you that I think your husband has a club mind."

Amelie said nothing; she took her hand away and squeezed her slim, white fingers again until they were pink and a ring with a great emerald pressed its carved platinum setting into the soft flesh.

"You better go, Eldon," she said dully. "You have come here too much. I have seen you too much. There might be harm come of it."

Of course, he had been waiting to hear this. No worse a man than many others, and in some respects a great deal better than most men in his capacity for seeing things, people and the world as they are, and not as they are masked and painted, Francis had twisted the quick wit of his Irish blood into an ability to think and reserve expression as well as to think and voice his thought. He might have said something then and bent forward toward her. Instead he looked into the palm of the hand which had touched hers as if some of the warmth from her would be visible there.

"That really is a most beautiful porcelain," he said, glancing again at the Sung vase standing against the background of the high red lacquer screen. "It is sympathetic and graceful, Amelie. I would want my love for a woman to be sympathetic and graceful."

Amelie trembled. She said: "You must go."

"We are not children," he replied. "Besides, your husband will be in soon. Didn't he say he'd probably get here from his dinner with the bankers before 10? There it is now."

The old, tall, English clock in the hall upstairs, where the library is, had tolled off the hour in a businesslike manner; now there was only the flutter of the yellow silk curtains in the reception room behind the red lacquer screen, and, stewed together and flowing out in a dull, faraway roar, the sounds of the city. Eldon waited, knowing that Amelie had come to the crisis for which he had been training her mind for several months. He no longer wondered which of his two accustomed plays to make—whether to have the intense satisfaction of saving her from herself with all its safety or to take the harvest of his planting with all its risks. He himself had been swung off his feet at last and sought his bearings now. Every shred of evidence furnished by this literary man's subsequent conduct indicate that with Amelie he played thereafter for winnings rather than the sport itself. The whole hunger for personal satisfaction uppermost in his otherwise rather attractive personality had concentrated on this affair with young Mrs. Pembroke. He paused at the summit of his climb to look around before taking final possession.

"My dear girl, I would be wanting in candor—untrue to myself—if I did not tell you that the reason I shall not obey you is because neither of us have the right to shut our eyes to the lie which you have been living. We ought to tell ourselves, and we ought to phrase in actual words, the truth about Jack Pembroke. I have never permitted myself to say to you what I know of him by reason of the genius I have for knowing men. It is this"——

He came around in front of the lounge and stood with his back against the tiled and oak carved fireplace—the same which Pembroke had bought out of an Italian villa on the honeymoon trip with Amelie. His voice grew dreamy and rich in tone as he spoke and once he smoothed the black brocade waistcoat of his evening clothes as a fastidious cat might stroke itself.

"Your husband, I said, has a club mind. You are like that Sung vase to him. More important—certainly. But, like it, a possession of rarity and beauty. He shows it to his friends. He shows you to his friends. He leaves it behind when he hurries from his breakfast. He leaves you behind."

Francis lit a cigarette, gazing at it with the eyes of a professional critic who is not without his poses.

"All in all, Amelie, your husband is a man of no fine understanding. It boils down to that—no delicacy, no fine understanding. He is slender and athletic, he is well poised and correct. And yet"——

He shrugged his shoulders slightly and opened very wide his blue eyes—a characteristic expression serving to emphasize the contrast of these eyes with their black, heavy brows and his black hair above a high, dark forehead.

"And yet—and yet one must say that he has an ice-wagon soul!"

Amelie stared at the floor and at the tips of the two black satin slippers upon her small feet.

"I dismiss him now," said Eldon. "There is no near-sighted and in some doubt as to the whereabouts of his wife, peered here and there intently, and then bore down upon the celebrated Russian dancer, who, it would seem, was in dire need of consolation.

Mr. Fitts followed them with a glance over his glasses and then turned to the sailor man.

"I suppose it's against orders for me to speak to this man," he said.

"Yes, sir."

The architect sighed and walked away.

The parade became more interesting as the lack of news from the investigators restored a sort of hopeful optimism to the breasts of the anxious company. Those who had maintained a stubborn air of bravado now became almost offensively jaunty. Others, frankly terrified at the outset, sauntered timidly away from the lifeboats to which they were assigned. Everyone was glad that the captain had ordered a lifeboat drill on the first afternoon out, and everyone was glad that he had ignored the demand of Mr. Landover that the boats be lowered the instant he discovered that his passengers were in peril. No news was good news, argued the majority, and jesting was in order.

Peter Snipe, the novelist, got out a pad of paper and began jotting down impressions. Mme. Careni-Amori and Sig. Joseppi exchanged the first friendly words they had spoken to each other in three weeks, and, in full view of an entranced audience, linked arms and strode bravely to and fro, the former clasping a huge jewel case to her ample bosom, the latter chafing perceptibly under the weight of an invisible belt stuffed to its capacity with bank notes and gold.

Chilean ladies and Chilean gentlemen, dazzling Brazilian ladies and pompous Brazilian gentlemen, smug Argentinans, lordly Castilians, garrulous Portuguese, lofty English gentlemen and supercilious English ladies, friendly and irrepressible Americans —all of them swinging their sea legs with new-found abandon—clattered solidly around the wind-swept circuit. New faces appeared in the procession, new voices were raised with energy, new figures sprang into existence with marvelous rapidity.

It seemed to Percival that the population doubled and tripled and quadrupled with every throb of the powerful engines. He saw his "bunkie" of the night before—the man who was trying so hard to die and couldn't—he saw him plunging along with the throng, pale but valiant, ferociously glaring at everyone who smoked.

A small group of American nurses, some young and pretty, others young and homely, but all of them sprightly and clear-eyed—nine of them, in fact—tramped by in "columns of three."

Percival's guardian jerked his head in their direction after they had passed, and volunteered this bit of information:

"Hornswoggled, them girls was. Come all the way down from New York six months ago. Promised double pay and plenty of work in the American colony. Sore as crabs, all of 'em. They got double pay, all right, all right, but there was some misunderstandin' as to what single pay was to be to start off with. Single pay turned out to be just whatever suited the people that employed 'em, seein's they were nearly 7000 miles away from God and up against it, so they're beatin' it back home to volunteer for service in France. I heard one of 'em say she could save more money workin' for nothin' in France than she could earn in a year down here at double pay. What'd you say your name was, young feller?"

"Percival."

"I mean your last name."

"That's it."

"Come off! Nobody ever had a last name like that."

"You ought to hear what my first name is—and my middle one, too. You said a little while ago you'd never seen anyone of my size with bigger and harder muscles. Well, if you knew what my full name is, old man, you'd understand why I began developing them —I've got a lot more, too, that you can't see—when I first began going to school."

"What is your other names?" inquired the sailor curiously.

"Algernon Adonis," said Percival.

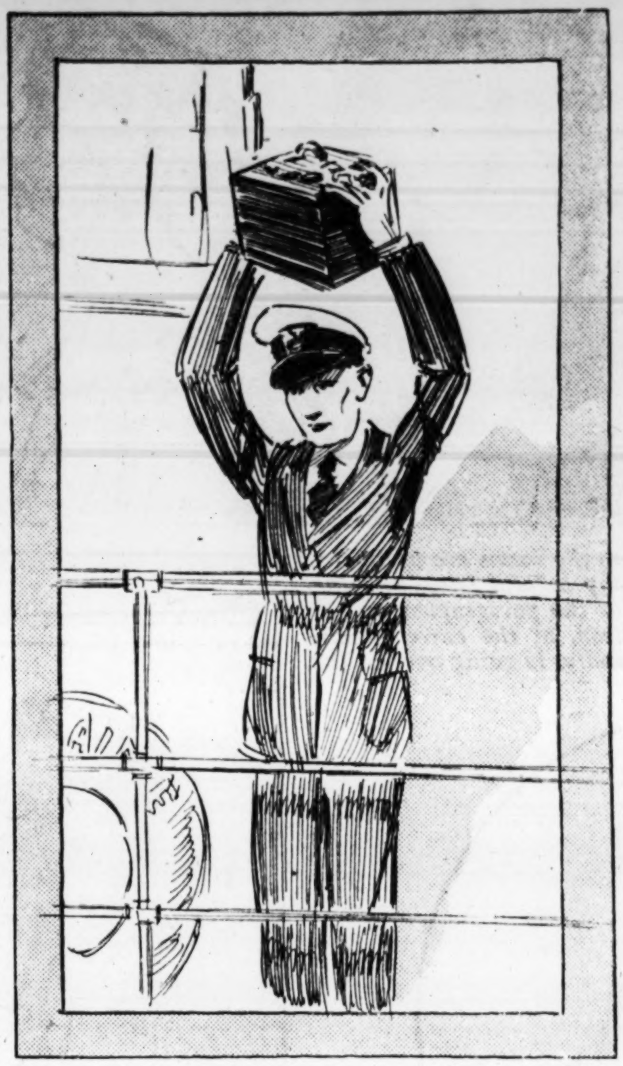
The sailor was silent for a moment, thinking of the proper thing to say. Then he said:

"You're dead right. It takes a heap of muscle to protect a name like that."

Three women stopped in front of the two men. Percival kept his head lowered.

"Why—why—aunties—I know him," fell from the lips of one of the trio. There was not only surprise in her voice but a trace of awe as well.

The swabber looked up quickly. He found himself gazing straight into the eyes of the speaker. Her lips were parted, her head was bent slightly forward, her eyes expressed utter incredulity and bewilderment. Her companions, an elderly lady and a bespectacled young woman who carried an armload of steamer rugs, stared not at him but at the girl who had delivered this startling announcement.



The discovery of four bombs and their immediate consignment to the sea saved the ship from being blown to bits.

"I mean I—that is, I may be mistaken," stammered the latter, suddenly averting her eyes. A wave of crimson swept over her face.

"Undoubtedly," exclaimed the elderly lady with great positiveness. Turning to inspect the object under discussion, she sustained a shock that caused her to stiffen and draw in her breath quickly.

Percival was smiling in a most friendly and encouraging manner. He went farther and lifted his disreputable white canvas hat.

"Oh, goodness!" exclaimed the young lady in a sort of panic. "Are you—is it really you, Mr. Percival?"

Mr. Percival glanced inquiringly at his guard.

"That's his name, miss," said that worthy. "And that's one of the three reasons why he's got them muscular arms you're lookin' at. Sorry, though, but my orders are not to allow anyone to speak to him."

"Are you crazy, Ruth?" cried the older lady aghast. "It's the stowaway everyone is talking about. The one who tried to blow up the ship."

The young lady returned Percival's smile—rather a diffident, uncertain effort, to be sure, but still a smile—and murmured something about night before last at the Alcazar Grand.

"What are you saying, Ruth? Do you mean to say you met this man at the Alcazar Grand?"

"Yes, Aunt Julia," said the other, wrinkling her pretty forehead in perplexity. "He—he danced with me."

"He—you danced with him?" gasped the horrified Aunt Julia.

"Don't you remember? Phil Morton introduced him to us. I—I can't believe my eyes."

"I can't believe mine," snapped the elder woman. "I never saw this fellow before in my life. The idea! Phil Morton having a friend like him. You are mistaken. And people are staring at us."

"Just the same," said her niece, stubbornly, "I did dance with him, and, what's more, I danced with him more than once. Didn't I, Mr. Percival?"

Mr. Percival, still beaming, again looked at the sailor appealingly.

"You can tell it to me," said the latter, furtively glancing to the right and left before making the concession.

Looking straight into the sailor's eyes, Percival said: "Yes, Miss Clinton. I had four dances with you—and a lemon squash."

"Wait a moment, Aunt Julia," protested the young lady, holding back. "Would you mind telling me, Mr. Percival, how you happen to be here and in this plight? You didn't mention sailing on the Doraine."

Mr. Percival to the sailor: Neither did you, Miss Clinton. You certainly are no more surprised than I am.

"Why are you on board as a stowaway? Phil Morton told me you belong to an old Baltimore family and had all kinds of—that is, you were quite well off."

Mr. Percival to the sailor: Please don't blush, Miss Clinton. I'm not the least bit sensitive. Money isn't everything. I seem to be able to get along without it. Later on, I hope to have the opportunity to explain just why——

"That'll do," interrupted the sailor. "Here comes the captain."

Capt. Trigger hove in sight around the corner of the deck building, with Chief Engineer Gray and the second officer.

"I don't know what to make of you," said Miss Clinton, sorely puzzled. Her aunt was clutching her arm. "You seemed so awfully jolly the other night. And—and just look at you now."

She moved away, followed by the bespectacled young woman and the steamer rugs, graceful despite the sudden yank with which her aunt set her in motion. Percival managed to keep an eye on her until she turned the corner. Then he sighed.

The captain halted in front of him.

"Are you acquainted with Mrs. Spofford and her niece, Percival?" he inquired.

"Miss Clinton has done me the honor to remember meeting me night before last at the Alcazar Grand, sir. Mrs. Spofford is not so generous."

"I see," said Capt. Trigger reflectively. "You will report at once to Mr. Gray. He will give you a less public job, as you call it." A twinkle came into his eyes. "He doesn't like the hat you're wearing. Nor the shirt. Nor the boots."

"Thank you, sir."

"And by the way, Percival, as soon as you are slightly refurbished I want you to stroll through the second cabin and, if possible, identify the two stewards who came to No. 22. Let me see, was it during the day or at night?"

"Some time during the night. Eleven or half past, I should say."

"Very well."

An hour later he reported to Capt. Trigger. "I have seen all of the stewards, sir, according to Mr. Codge, and I do not recognize any of them as the men who came to No. 22. I had a fairly good view of them, too, from beneath the lower berth. They spoke in a langauge I did not understand"——

"Do you understand German?"

"No, sir. I know it when I hear it, however. They were not speaking German. I may have been wrong, but I came to the conclusion that they were transferring someone to No. 22. They brought in two suitcases and left them when they went out. I"——

Capt. Trigger brought his clenched fist down on the table with a resounding, emphatic bang.

"Now I have it! That Chicago detective was right, by gad!"

"Then—then, that means our search isn't over?" cried Mr. Mott, starting up.

"It does! Every inch of this ship, every damned inch of it, from stem to stern. Overlook nothing, Mr. Mott. Don't delay a second."

Percival was alone with the agitated captain an instant later. Trigger's eyes were rather wild and bloodshot. The younger man's face blanched. He knew that the danger was real. He waited for the captain to speak.

"Percival, the two men you saw in 22 were not stewards. They were the men who jumped overboard. You tell me they left two bags there when they went out of the room. Well, they were not there this morning when the regular steward went into the room. They have disappeared. But the contents of those bags are still somewhere on board this ship. And if they are not found in time, by gad, sir, we will all be in kingdom come before we know it."

The first explosion occurred at 6:11. The charthouse and part of the bridge were blown to pieces. Three dull, splintering crashes ensued in rapid succession, proving beyond question that the bombs were set to explode automatically at a given time. One of them wrecked the engine room; another blew a great hole in the stern of the ship, above the water line; the third destroyed the wireless house and carried away a portion of the deck with it.

There were eight in all of these devilish machines in the heart of the Doraine. Some time prior to the first explosion the feverish searchers had uncovered four of them, cunningly planted in the most vital parts of the ship. Two were taken from the lower hold, one at each end of the vessel, and two more were found close to the carefully protected section of the vessel in which a rather insignificant but deadly shipment of high explosives was stored.

The discovery of the four bombs and their immediate consignment to the sea saved the ship from being blown to bits.

With another hour to spare, it is more than probable the remaining four would have been found, notwithstanding the amazing cleverness with which they were hidden, so thorough and so dogged was the search.

Confusion, terror, stupefaction and finally panic, followed the successive blasts. The decks were strewn with people prostrated by the violent upheavals, and many there were who never got up again. Stunned, dazed, bewildered, those who were able to do so scrambled to their feet, only to be hurled down again and again. Shrieks, groans, prayers and curses filled the brief, ghastly silences between the muffled detonations. The great vessel surged and rolled and plunged like a tortured animal.

The splintering of wood, the rending of plates, the shattering of glass, and, above all this horrid turmoil, the mighty roaring and hissing of steam! And the wild, gurgling cries of the franctic unfortunates who had leaped into the sea.

Out of the chaos with incredible swiftness came the paralysis of despair, and out of that, slowly but surely, groped the never failing courage of the men who go down to the sea in ships. Hoarse commands lifted above the groans and prayers, and strong but shaken figures sprang with mechanical precision to the posts allotted to them. Lifeboat after lifeboat went down into the sea that glistened with the slanting rays of an untroubled sun, low lying at the end of the day.

Fire broke out in several places. Down into the bowels of the ship plunged the resolute heroes who remained behind, the chosen complement, reserved for just such an emergency by the far-seeing master.

"Fight, men! Fight! Fight! There are dying men below! Stand by! Fight for them!"

He was bloody and almost unrecognizable as he stood there clutching a stanchion for support. His legs were rigid, his body swayed, but his spirit was stanch as the star that had guided him for 50 years through the trackless waste.

And while these doughty, desperate spirits fought the fire and smoke with every means at their command, down in the suffocating depths of the ship, braving not only the peril visible and at hand, but the prospect of annihilation in the event that a belated bomb projected its hideous force into the nest of high explosives, while these men fought, the smiling, placid sea was alive with small white craft that bobbed in the gleaming sunlight, lifeboats crowded to the gunwales with shuddering, bleak-eyed men, women and children waiting to pick up those who stayed behind, and who inevitably would be driven overboard by the resistless, conquering flames.

Cruising about at a safe distance from the menacing hull, these boats managed to rescue a few of the beings who had leaped overboard in the first mad panic of fear, but many there were who went down, never to be seen again. No boat was without its wounded—and its dead; no boat was without its stricken, anxious-eyed survivors, who watched and prayed for the salvation of loved ones left behind. With straining eyes they searched the surface of the sea, peered at the occupants of near and distant boats, stared at the scurrying figures on the decks of the smoking steamer, hoping, always hoping, and always sobbing out the endless prayer.

At last, as the sun sank below the blue-black horizon, exhausted, red-eyed, gasping men struggled up from the drenched, smothering interior of the ship, and hurled themselves, not into the sea, but prone upon the decks! They had conquered! The scattered, vagrant fires, attacked in their infancy, while still in the creeping age, had been subdued.

Darkness fell. A chill night air stole out of the east, stealthily trailing the sun. Will o' the wisp lights bespecked the sea, surrounding the black hulk that lay motionless in the center of the circle. Lanterns in a score or more of small boats bobbed fitfully in the gentle swell. Presently lights appeared on board the Doraine, one here, one there, then others in twos and threes, some of them stationary, others moving slowly from place to place. The lifeboats crept closer, still closer. Then, out from the silent hulk, came the voice of man. It was the voice of the first officer, hoarse and unrecognizable, but sharp with authority. Other voices repeated the command from various parts of the ship—commands to the encircling will o' the wisps.

The words came down to the scores who filled the boats that they were to lie by until sunrise, keeping in close contact with each other and at no great distance from the ship. The most thorough, careful examination of the steamer was in progress. If it was found that she was in no danger of foundering—and the word was most reassuring—all of them would be taken aboard in the morning. Nothing more could be done at present. A few hours more would tell the tale.

And then, for the first time since the disaster, the note of the croaker was heard. Each and every boat contained at least one individual who knew exactly what ought to be done in a crisis like this.

Mr. Landover addressed the benumbed, unresisting occupants of the boat into which he had climbed with commendable reluctance as one of the last persons to leave the ship.

"Why don't they begin sending out S O S calls? What's the wireless for, if not to be used at a time like this? Say, you! Yell up there to some of those damned muddle-headed idiots and tell them what to do. Tell them that I say for them to send out calls for help. What's that? What did you say?"

The steward in charge of the boat repeated his remark and Mr. Landover at once said he would report him to Capt. Trigger.

"But it won't do any good," complained the banker dispairingly. "Capt. Trigger hasn't the backbone of a fishworm. He'd let you tell him to go to hell and never think of jacking you up for it. No wonder we're in the fix we're in now. If he had the sense of a jellyfish he'd have—— Here! Sit still! You'll upset the boat, you fool! What—what are you going to do with that oar?"

"I'm going to crack you over the bean with it if you don't take back what you said about Capt. Trigger," said the steward earnestly. "Take it back, do you hear me?"

"My God, would you murder me for a little thing like that?"

Mr. Nickelstick aroused himself from the torpor of despair.

"Take it back, Mr. Landover—please do. If he misses you, he'll get me sure, it's so dark, and so help me God I got nothing but the deepest respect for Capt. Trigger. He's a vonderful man, steward. Don't make any mistake. You hear me say he is a vonderful man! Yell"——

"Oh, shut up, Nickelstick," grated Landover, crouching down behind the gentleman addressed.

The steward sat down. "I'd do it in a minute if it wasn't for the women an' children in this boat."

"I intend to have every officer on that steamer arrested for criminal negligence the instant I set foot in New York," boomed the banker. "I call upon every one of you, my fellow passengers, to testify to the utter lack of precaution taken by the men in charge of that ship. And what efforts are they making to bring help to us now? By gad, if I was in command of that vessel I'd be shooting wireless calls to every—— Great Scott! What's that?"

"That's a rocket, you blamed old fool!" roared the steward.

"Good God!" gasped the exasperated banker. "Are we having a celebration with fireworks?"

The dull, hapless occupants of the lifeboat watched with fascinated eyes the first of the giant rockets that whizzed and roared its way from the deck of the ship, an endless arrow of fire piercing the night. A loud report, the scattering of a hundred stars, and then—denser blackness that before.

Morning came. Up out of the east stole a sickly gray. It turned slowly into pink, and then suddenly the sea once more was blue and smiling. In the heart of the dancing cordon lay the weirdly camouflaged Doraine, inert, sinister, as still and cold as death. No smoke issued from her stacks to cheer the wretched watchers; no foam, no spray leaped from her mighty bow. She was a great, lifeless thing. Waves lapped gently against her sides and fell away, only to come back again in playful scorn for the vast object that had rent and baffled them so long.

On high fluttered the Stars and Stripes, gay in the presence of death, a sprightly harbinger of hope flaunting defiance in the face of despair.

Men, stripped to the waist, grimy and shining with the sweat of hours, moving about in knots of three and four—always in knots of three or four, as if afraid to disintegrate — leaned upon the rail and watched the approach of the crowded boats, looked down into pallid, anguished faces, with their eager, hungry eyes, eyes that devoured the groups along the rail. Now and then a glad shout of joy went up from one of the boats, and a figure in the huddled mass was transformed into a responsive thing of life.

In each of the square, black openings in the hull of the ship stood men with ropes and ladders. The great steel doors lay flat against the side, swung wide to admit this time a human cargo. From the interior of the vessel came the brisk, incessant clatter of hammers against wood and steel; from the decks broke the loud, commanding voices of men calling out directions; from the gliding, slapping boats went up the hearty shouts of understanding and obedience, the rattling of boat hooks, the grinding of oars in the locks, the murmur of voices revived.

"Women and children first," was the shrill, oft-repeated exhortation from one of the boats.

And up in the center of another sprang a fine, imposing figure, from whose lips rolled these thrilling words:

"By God! they're great. They're great, after all! God bless Capt. Trigger and every man-jack of them!"

"Sit down!" roared his still unpacified critic, the steward. "You'll fall overboard, you dam' fool!"

Don't Try to Get a Quick Coat of Tan

A COAT of tan is nature's own way of protecting the body from the burning rays of the sun. It is not the light rays that burn, but those that are invisible, the so-called chemical rays. These penetrate right through the skin and sometimes set up abscesses in the tissues.

The best way to get a coat of tan is to be patient and let the sun do its work gradually. You cannot get a coat of tan in a day; you will succeed only in acquiring a painful case of sunburn, which may blister.

It is foolish to stand or sit around in the sun after bathing unless covered by a sweater or a bathrobe, for this is the very best way to get a chill.

All that "Do you solemnly swear," etc., stuff in the passport ritual sounds suspiciously like a wedding ceremony before a justice of the peace, and Morton is beginning to wonder whether he wasn't being just a little bit too helpful when he volunteered to assist Miss Widgie at the passport bureau. There's no telling what foolish notions it will put in Miss Widgie's head.

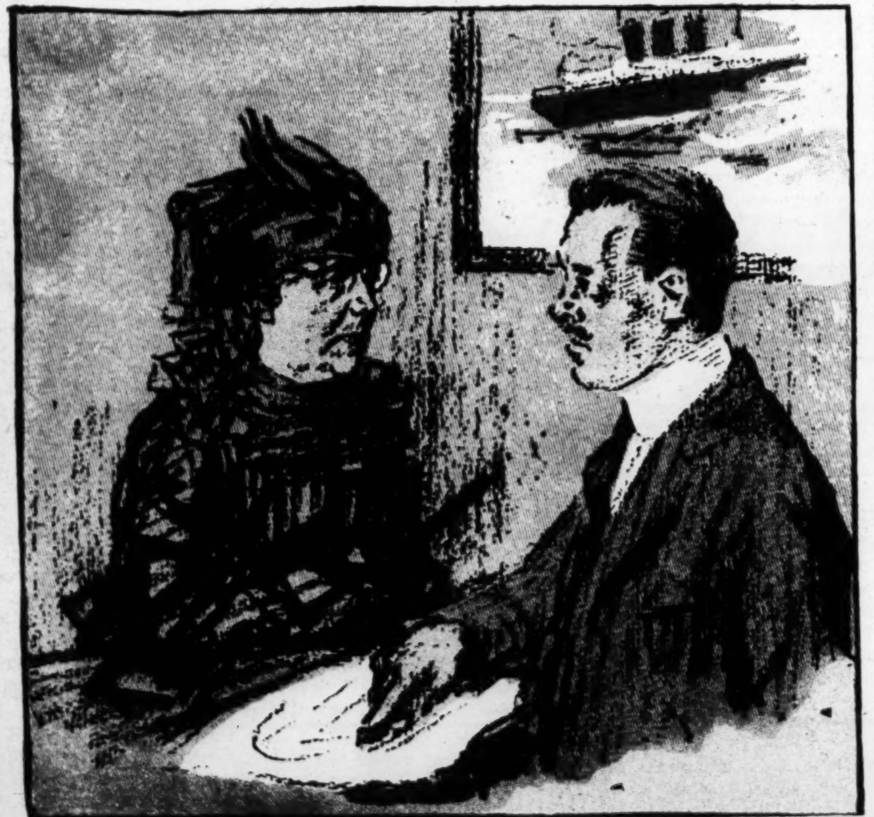
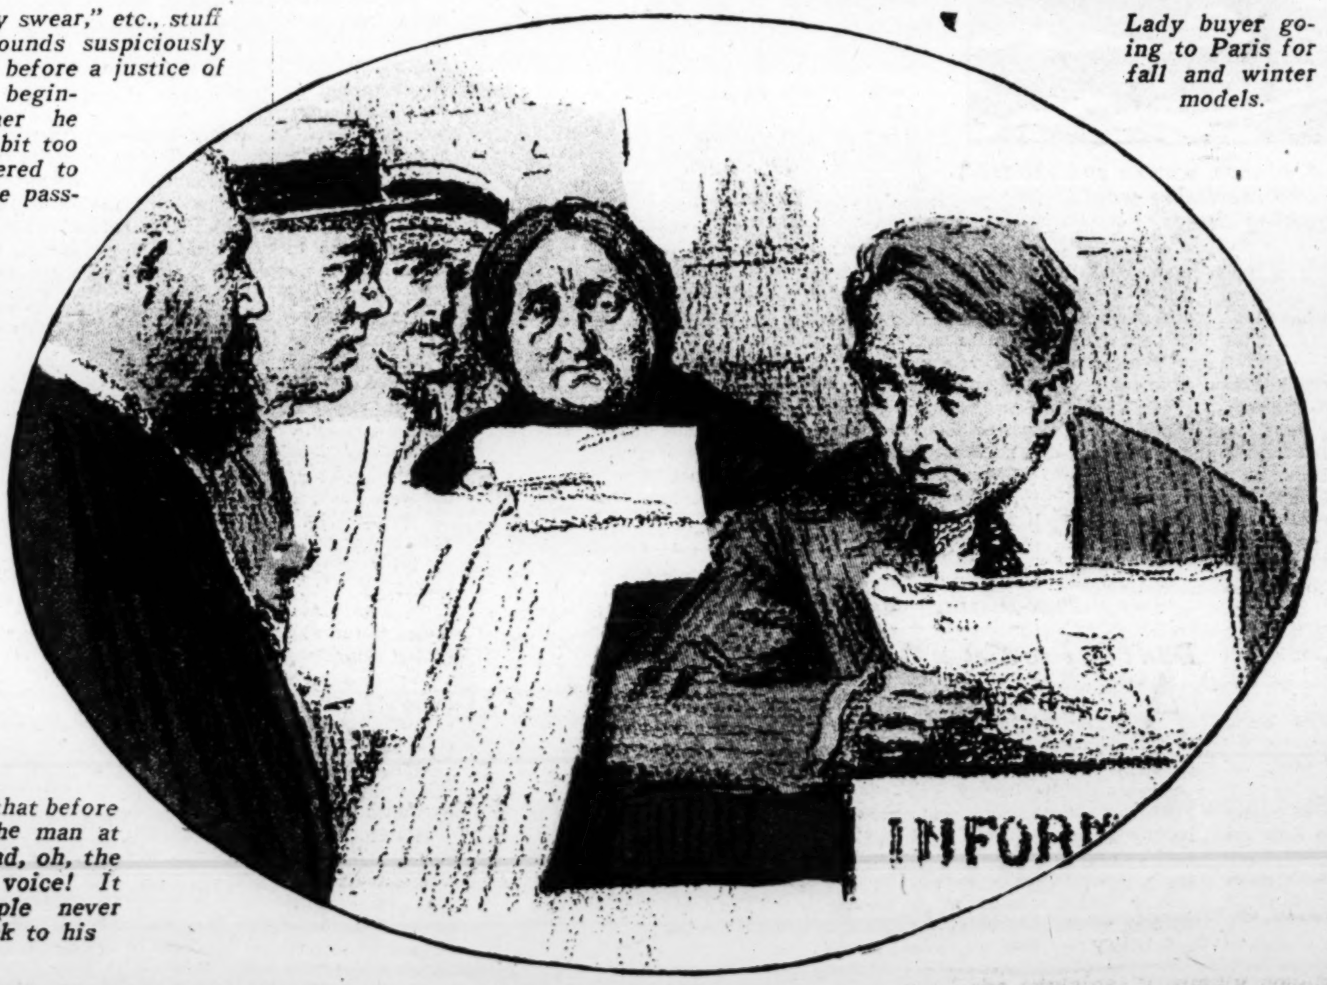
The only distinguishing mark Russell can think of is a cat bite just below the left knee. Of course, it's pretty faint after all these years, but then it may come in handy if someone fails to recognize one's passport photograph.



Even with the passport out of the way, it isn't always plain sailing. Here's Mrs. Prey, for instance, trying to impress upon the clerk at the steamship office the quite obvious fact that if she can get a whole stateroom for what one berth would ordinarily cost she'll wait. "You see," she explains, "I simply couldn't stand being in with some one else. Why I might have to go in with someone's maid!"



"You shoulda seen to all that before you come here," says the man at the information desk, and, oh, the boredom there is in his voice! It seems as though people never would let him get back to his fiction story.

The central arch has a clear span of 250 feet and the side arches are 502 feet each. Half of each arch was built out from the pier on which it rested, being joined at the apex. The total cost of building the bridge was $6,536,729.

Among the many anniversaries being celebrated this year in the United States and abroad is the centennial of the admission of the State of Maine into the Union. The pageant from which the above picture is a scene was presented by the artists' colony at Ogunquit, Me., on the estate of Mrs. E. R. Hoyt of New York. It depicts an original and rather startling conception of the Pilgrim Fathers landing from the Mayflower on (quite literally on) the Plymouth Rock. The use of the United States flag is another novel touch.

"—Not One Gray Hair, Now"

"And my hair was quite gray a short time ago!

"It was falling out, getting brittle and stringy. My scalp was filled with dandruff and itched almost constantly.

"A few applications of Kolor-Bak produced a wonderful improvement. The itching stopped instantly. There was no more dandruff. And — marvel of marvels—it is now restored to its original color—not a gray hair shows anywhere!"

Kolor-Bak is not a dye or stain. It is colorless, stainless, harmless and restores original color to gray hair simply by putting hair and scalp in a healthy condition.

Send for our special trial offer; also Free Book on Hair which explains how Kolor-Bak restores gray hair to its original color.

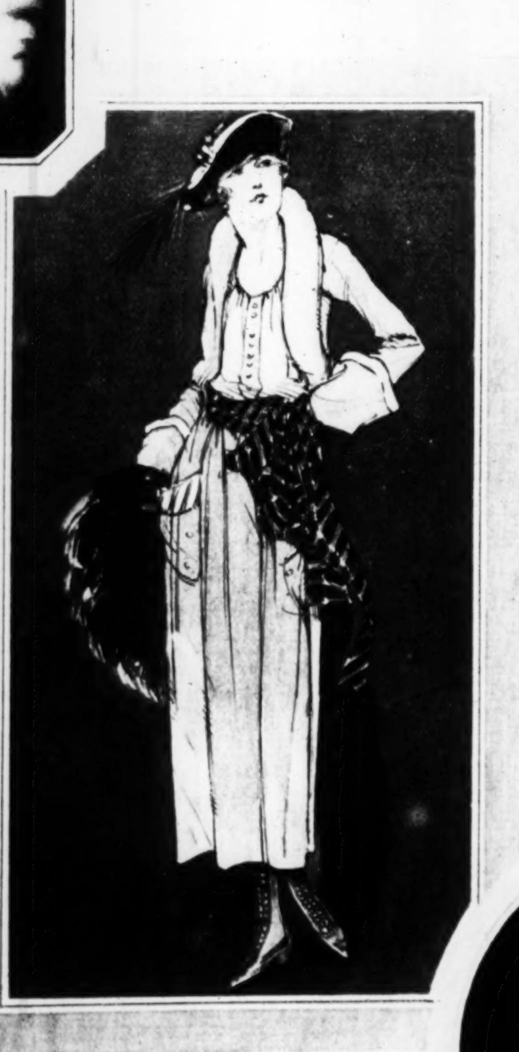
How to get Good Shoes at Reasonable Prices

This is just the daintiest pump imaginable. Its lines are such as to make one's foot appear its very smallest. Made of black ooze of a soft suede finish, with a shapely French heel and turn sole, it is wonderfully light, graceful and dressy, yet exceedingly comfortable and will yield a substantial wear.



THE answer is to buy "Queen Quality" shoes. The styles are superb. The fit is perfection. They are utterly comfortable. They yield a wear beyond expectation.

And because more "Queen Quality" shoes are sold than those of any other high grade make, it is possible to sell them, quality considered, at prices that are distinctly reasonable.

The photograph is of Mary Jane Dixon of Brooklyn who is 6 mos. old and weighs 19¾ lbs.—a charming example of Imperial Granum nourishment.

Her mother states:

"I cannot say too much for Imperial Granum. nursed my baby until she was 3 mos. old. Then gave one bottle of Imperial Granum a day in place of one breast feeding, and each week increased one bottle of Imperial Granum until she has entirely weaned, with absolutely no trouble. She then continued to thrive on Imperial Granum, and had 11 teeth at 9 mos. My doctor says I could not use anything better."

CHENEY SILKS

TRUE FASHION REQUIRES BEAUTY

FASHION is for once broad-minded. She smiles agreeably at Fall Frocks of Satin Barré, in which one sees oneself slim-waisted, billowy-skirted—in a very replica of one's Grandmother's Sunday best; she smiles, too, at slender-lined afternoon gowns of Crêpe Chenette, conceived in the spirit of a Greek drapery.

There is, however, one point on which she brooks no compromise—whatever its silhouette, the smart frock must be of the finest fabric. Wherefore, milady may indulge her own fancy as to line and color, and settle the question of fabric in the simplest manner by choosing a Cheney Silk.

Cheney Satins of highest lustre to the softest shimmer;

Cheney Crêpes of depth and richness;

Cheney Taffetas as durable as they are lovely;

Cheney Lining Silks in designs of simplest dignity to the most elaborate and riotous of colorings.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready-to-wear.

Today's Trend of Fashion

is toward low cut gowns and waists of the sheerest materials, revealing arms and shoulders. This makes Delatone a toilet necessity to pretty women.

"My! but it's cooling!"—on a hot day

WHEN you are hot and perspiring, when your hair clings to your head and your clothes are wringing wet from labor or vigorous outdoor exercise, then there is nothing quite so cool and refreshing as a shampoo or bath with "La Creole" Liquid Shampoo.

One of the principal ingredients of this preparation is menthol. You apply it to your feverish scalp and body while in the bath just as you would ordinary soap, and the "coolness" of the menthol draws the heat from your scalp and skin like a plunge into an icy stream.

The "coolness" spreads over you like a breeze from snow-capped peaks. And the cost is so trifling as to be hardly worth mentioning.

"La Creole" Liquid Shampoo is not only delightfully refreshing—but it is exquisitely cleansing. It is made from an exclusive Menthol formula of purest vegetable oils. It contains no animal fats to ruin the hair or clog the pores of the skin, such as you get in common bath soaps and inferior shampoos. The soothing vegetable oils lather freely and leave the hair soft and silky—the scalp clean and healthy—and the body delightfully refreshed.

Especially recommended for bathing and washing the hair of children because of the purity of the oils from which it is made. It will be found refreshingly beneficial to their tender, sensitive skin.

Proper care of the hair

"La Creole" Hair Tonic is invaluable to those whose hair requires stimulating. If your hair is falling out, growing thin or shows a tendency to lose its luster and brilliancy—then apply "La Creole" Hair Tonic two or three times a week for several weeks. You will be surprised at the results.

The Council of the American Medical Association (the highest authority known) has recognized Resorcinol Monoacetate—the principal ingredient of "La Creole" Hair Tonic—for the treatment of dandruff (seborrheal eczema) and baldness (alopecia-areata)—the common foes of beautiful, healthy hair. Thus science approves the use of this wonderful preparation.

There are two reasons why food tastes good and is nourishing.

The first is: pure, wholesome ingredients, and the second is: careful preparation.

Every ingredient that goes into a Gambrill product is as good as money can buy—and each ingredient is scientifically tested and proportioned.

It is not possible to make a better or more wholesome pancake flour; if it were, Gambrill would make it.

Wheat

—makes golden brown, fluffy, tender pancakes every time you use it.

Pure wholesome wheat, rice and corn flour, the best of milk, salt and baking powder, and delicious corn sugar—these are the ingredients of Pantex.

And because there is twice as much milk and corn sugar in Pantex as in the average pancake flour, Pantex hotcakes are always delightfully tender and wholesome—they brown evenly and quickly on both sides—and they have a wonderful flavor.

Yet Pantex is one of the most economical pancake flours you can buy.

PANTEX

Buckwheat

—makes real buckwheat cakes with the rich nutty flavor of whole buckwheat.

The skill used in combining choice buckwheat with fine wheat and corn, milk, phosphate, soda and corn sugar makes I-Spy a perfect hotcake mixture.

Each ingredient measures up to the Gambrill test for purity and quality and each ingredient is scientifically dried so that I-Spy will keep much longer than the average pancake flour, and yield more cakes to the pound of mixture.

If you like buckwheat cakes you'll love I-Spy!
